“ Our enlightened age laughs at the rudeness of our ancestors, and overlooks the manners of that “ rank of men whose simplicity is the best guardian of antiquity. Innumerable lights may be “ drawn from local customs and usages, which are generally founded on some antient fact, and “ serve to guide us back to truth.”

P R E F A C E.

THE use of books of accounts for ascertaining and exemplifying the prices of the several articles of life in different ages has always been acknowledged. At the same time that they shew how our ancestors lived, they inform us how they could afford to live.

The few monuments of this kind that have been brought to light are confined to particular societies, and in places distant from the capital. Such are the registers recited in Bishop Fleetwood's Chronicon Preciosum; those of Burcester Priory, printed in Bishop Kennet's Parochial Antiquities; and those of Christ Church College, Oxford, by Mr. Hearne, in his Antiquities of Glastonbury<sup>1</sup>. Or to individuals of higher rank; as the bills of fare for Archbishop Neville's inthronization, that of the Prior of St. Austin, Canterbury, 1309<sup>2</sup>; dinners of the Mayor of London<sup>3</sup>; and the Mayor of Norwich<sup>4</sup>; of the Company of Salters<sup>5</sup>, and of the Stationers, to the latter of whom literary property is a perpetual feast<sup>6</sup>. And the circumstances of societies and solemnities had an influence on the expence of the articles.

But the accounts of a Parish or a Family for half a century are not liable to this inconvenience. They contained provision, burned candle, paid for labour and materials at the current price; to say nothing of many lesser circumstances of time, place, customs, or manners, of which they inform us. Such a stock of cattle and corn we have in the reign of King John<sup>7</sup>. The appraisement of Serjeant Keble's goods, 1500<sup>8</sup>; and of Sir Peter Frecheville's, in 1582<sup>9</sup>. The expences of the barriers in West Smithfield, 1524<sup>10</sup>. The stock and furniture of a London tavern 1012<sup>11</sup>.

The Accounts of the Churchwardens of St. Helen's church at Abingdon, originally printed by the Society of Antiquaries<sup>12</sup>, with illustrations by their late learned member Professor Ward, are re-published in the present collection<sup>13</sup>.

Those of Wigtoft<sup>14</sup>, in Lincolnshire, though belonging to a country town and parish, may perhaps be considered as a record of superstitious practices, rather than of necessaries or ordinary occurrences of life.

These last are supplied, without omitting the other, in the extracts submitted to the Society of Antiquaries, from the accounts of the Churchwardens of St. Mary Hill, near Billingsgate, with the perusal of which Mr. Gough had been indulged by his friend Dr. Griffith, late rector of the said church; and of which it may be said, that they are unparalleled in their kind, and also, in point of time (1427), beyond any we have yet heard of; while those of St. Margaret's Westminster, which begin almost as early (in 1460), come down to a much later period (1692); and both contain much historical matter, local and general.

Those of St. Martin and St. Mary de Castro at Leicester, the one beginning in 1489, the other in 1493, abound in remarkable entries, and will soon appear in the History of that County.

The accounts from York, whilst they exhibit an interesting specimen of provincial phraseology, are enriched with illustrations by Mr. Pegge, which render them peculiarly valuable, and form an admirable supplement to the notes before suggested by his learned and venerable father.

Inventories of church-furniture<sup>1</sup> may be found in the present collection, pp. 136. 275; in Gunton's History of Peterborough, p. 58; Dart's Antiquities of Canterbury, Appendix; Somner's History of Canterbury, by Batteley, Appendix, p. 34; Ducarel's History of St. Catharine's Hospital by the Tower, Appendix, p. 40; and in the History of Leicestershire, vol. I. p. cxxxvii.

In the celebrated Fleta, supposed to be written in the reign of Edward II. amidst the most important heads of government and law, the author introduces a plan of household management, and gives the minutest directions for regulating the most petty domestic concerns. In the second book he describes very minutely every thing that pertains to the office of almost every kind of household servant, not only of the seneschal (or steward), bailiff, swineherd, baker, mower, carter or waggoner, cowkeeper, dairyman, &c.<sup>2</sup> Their wages were appointed to labourers<sup>3</sup>, by a statute 11 H. VII. c. 22. 1495.<sup>4</sup>

Bishop Percy observes, "that calculating the value of money by the price of wheat" is stating the account as much as possible in conformity to modern times; for, it appears pretty evidently, that wheat was not the most general bread consumed in that age as indeed it is hardly yet in the Northern counties<sup>5</sup>; but that rye, barley, or oats, were the common food of the lower or middle ranks of people, who at present (in the Southern parts of England at least) disdain any but what is nice wheaten bread: the great difference, therefore, in the value of money is farther to be increased by the disproportion of value between wheat and other inferior grain.

Mr. Benet, in the preface to his edition of Ascham's Schoolmaster, has an observation to account for the comparative lowness of prices in different ages, that "in the reign of Henry VIII. most of the elegance and expences of our present fashions were unknown; commerce had not yet distributed superfluity through

<sup>5</sup> We have it on very good authority, that 30 years ago the bread of the labouring people in the isle of Axholme was made of flour of horsebeans. Harrison, in his Description of England, (Preface to Holinshed's Chronicle, 1586,) says, "in time of dearth manie were forced to content themselves with bread made either of beans, peason, or otes, or of altogether, and some acorns among. I will not say that this extremitie is oft so well to be seene in time of plentie as of dearth, but if I should I could easily bring my triall."

the lower classes of people ;” and therefore the same revenue (though the different value of money were out of the case) would have gone a great way farther than it would at present. We cannot, however, help being of opinion, that the gorgeous and substantial finery of the reign of Henry VIII. and his daughter Elizabeth<sup>1</sup>, was in its way as expensive as the lighter and more flippant elegance of modern times, which has reduced dress to an airy thinness scarcely to be confined within the authority of decency.

The first instance of the regular expences of a family presented to the publick, was that of Thomas Earl of Lancaster; the particulars of whole housekeeping for one whole year, made out by his cofferer in 1313, are given in the History of Leicestershire, vol. I. p. 223, from a manuscript belonging to this great Earl, which Mr. Strype calls “The Record of Pontefract;” a copy of which was in the hands of the late John-Watson Reed, esq. F. S. A. who had intended to publish it, and had actually printed off sixteen pages in quarto (a copy of which is now before us), the completion of which was prevented by his death, Jan. 30, 1790. The accounts of one week shall be given at the end of this Preface<sup>2</sup> as a specimen.

Twenty years before this (in 1770) a complete Household Book, that of Henry Algernon, fifth Earl of Northumberland of the noble family of Percy, from about 1497 to 1527, in which year he died, was printed at their expence, for private use, 1770, and illustrated with a commentary by the present Bishop of Down, who observes of it, that “it contains a complete system of autient economies.”

Several such accounts of the Norfolk family were in the hands of the late Sir John Fenn, kt.

“The steward’s account of sir John Howard, knt. (afterwards first Duke of Norfolk) from the 2d to the 9th of Edward IV. 1462—1469, 4to. Sir John lived at Stoke by Neyland, when these accounts were written, which are very curious, as they contain the prices of almost every article at that time in use. This book was taken from Framlyngham castle in 1727, and in it are many articles in sir John’s almost illegible hand-writing. A specimen of them for 1523, and of Sir Edward Coke’s for 1599, from the same collection, may be seen in Sir Frederick Morton Eden’s State of the Poor, vol. III. App. p. cxvii—cxxxvi.

“The cater’s account of the household expences at Stoke by Neyland of Thomas Howard, Earl of Surrey, folio. Some leaves are wanting at the beginning and end of this MS. which contains an exact daily account of every meal, from April 17 to January 18 following; the provisions, number of persons, &c. and at the end of each week is a particular of all the provisions expended and remaining, with the prices of every article. It exhibits a true picture of the time, which was between the 15th and 16th of Henry VIII. 1513—1524; as in the former year Thomas Howard was created Earl of Surrey, and in the latter succeeded his father as Duke of Norfolk.”

<sup>3</sup> It is a little extraordinary that, among this earl’s accounts, no traces should be found of the tombs erected most probably at his expence, and under or by his direction, to his father and mother in Beverley minister, engraved in Sepulchral Monuments of Great Britain, vol. II. Plate CIX. CX. CXIV. particularly the second, which is highly finished, and well preserved; and, but for a brief hint of Leland, would still have remained unascertained.

The Wardrobe account of the 28th year, or establishment of Edward I. has been printed by the Society of Antiquaries, 1787; also, a collection of ordinances and regulations for the government of the royal household, made in divers reigns from King Edward III. to King William and Queen Mary, 1790. See also a Wardrobe charge of Henry VIII. in Archæologia, vol. IX. p. 243; and that of Richard the Third's coronation 1483, vol. I. p. 361.

By "A booke of Fees and Offices, primo die Augusti, anno primo Regine Mariæ," preserved in the Library of Dulwich College (which contains many treasures well worth investigation), epitomized in the "Bibliotheca Topographica Britannica," N<sup>o</sup> VII. p. 231—233; it appears that the total of all the public charges at that time amounted to 72,364*l.* 19*s.* 10¼*d.*

Mr. Gough has in MS. a later but smaller volume, somewhat of the same nature (which formerly was P. Le Neve's, and afterwards T. Martin's), intituled, "A generall Collection of all the Offices of England, with their Fees, in the Queene's Guifte;" not dated, except "Temp. Eliz. Reginæ."

The charges of the funeral of John Dudley, eq. 1580, are printed in the Additions to the History of Stoke Newington, in the XIVth number of the "Bibliotheca Topographica Britannica;" that of Archbishop Parker, in the Appendix to Batteley's Antiquities of Canterbury, p. 49.; the expence of wax at the funerals of King Richard II. and Queen Anne, in Sepulchral Monuments of Great Britain.

The expences of several public entertainments and ceremonious visits during the splendid reign of Queen Elizabeth will be found in the History of her Progresses. Among these may be particularly noticed, the Expences of the Queen's own table in 1576, and of her visit at Gorthambury in 1577; the numerous presents both given and taken by her Majesty as New Year's Gifts; and the various feasts, masques, and revels, at the Temple and other inns of court.

The household expences of Henry the seventh Earl of Kent, for seven weeks, ending April 6, 1593, are printed in the "Bibliotheca Topographica Britannica," N<sup>o</sup> XLIII. p. 276; and those of Christiana Countess of Devonshire, from 1635 to 1655, in the History of Leicestershire, vol. I. p. 290.

The observations on Parish-Registers, Archdeacons, Endowments of Vicarages, &c. may not seem strictly in connexion with the subject; but, by those who value the authors of them, will not be thought unworthy to be preserved.

Some articles of a miscellaneous nature are added, illustrative of the general object, the manners and the expences of antient times.

Disbursements for suits in law :
Summa	93	15	0

In the parish of St. Margaret's, Westminster.

The churchwardens are chosen according to the antient custome of the sayde parish (tyme out of mind) the Thursday immediately before Whitsunday, after this manner following :

There is a bell appointed to be tolled, by which the parishioners have notice, and thereupon do repair unto the church, to see the churchwardens which be going out of their office deliver up their accompts and ballance moneys; and also to understand who be chosen churchwardens for the yeare ensuing. Then they have a table sett in the chancell, at which the doctor or minister of the parish, and the rest of the vestry-men do sit, and thither the churchwardens in being bring their accompts fairly engrossed, and bound up in vellam, together with the ballance moneys; the antient vestry-menn at the upper end of the table receiving the same, and and inspecting at least the totall summes of what hath been received, what paid, and what remains to adjust the sayd churchwardens accountts. Then they order and appoint some that have already executed the same office of churchwardens to audit the sayd accountt, and within one moneth to make report thereof unto them. This being done, the vestrey men adjourne from thence into the vestrey roome, and there take out of the records of the names of former overseeres of the poore, the names of eight or tenne persons, and sett them downe after this manner :

A. B.

always setting down the younger of the present churchwardens first : then they debate the fittest man for that office ; and soe every one crossing those whom they judge the most meet, they that have the most crosses carry it. As soon as this is done, they give the paper into the hands of the minister, who immediately goeth therewith into the reading-pew, and there in the open church, and in the audience of the parishioners present, publisheth and declareth the names of the persons elected churchwardens, to the end they may have notice of the same. After this the churchwardens expired doe use to invite the doctor or minister, together with the vestrey men, and other antient inhabitants of the parish, to a supper at the charge of the said churchwardens.

N. B The churchwardens chosen after this form were adjudged to be the right churchwardens, by a decree of the commissary Dr. Exton, and afterwards by a court of delegates, against Baker and Edwards, who were chosen by some of the inhabitants in the church-porch.

<sup>a</sup> See a specimen of the hand-writing of these accompts. Gent. Mag. vol LIX. pl. III. p. 6.

<sup>b</sup> Or bequest; for which queythe word and witworde seemed to be used indifferently.

<sup>c</sup> The sea at that time came near Wigtoft; and this salt-pan seems part of the church revenue, at fourteen pence a year. It was probably situate on what is now called Wigtoft Marsh.

<sup>g</sup> It appears that the inhabitants sometimes contributed barley instead of money, which was malted, and sold for the use of the church.

Item, r. in latter yere in lyke forme, 6 strike barley, for the whiche the said chirche shall have 6 strike malt and a strike barley,	0	2	6

<sup>h</sup> I am not clear as to the meaning of this 2 ston. Perhaps 2 old stones sold among the materials, or 2 stone weight of lead.

<sup>i</sup> It seems the church had been repaired, and some old materials sold.

<sup>k</sup> I suppose Agnes Benet was an inn-keeper, and bought the church malt; or a brewer, and brewed the ale.

THESE bene the payments and expences that John Brigge the yonger, and John Barre, chirche-matters of the p'rshe<sup>a</sup> chirche of Wigtoft, have paid from the fest of Seynt Peter, called Cathedr sa Peter, in the yere of our Lorde God 1484, unto the same fest by 2<sup>b</sup> yeres next ensuwying yat afr.

<sup>1</sup> In theſe accounts it may be proper to obſerve, there is a conſiderable chaſm as to time ; that printed in p. 81—84, being dated 1487 ; the next date (ſee p. 195) is 1499, though there is the preſent intermediate account without a date. It does not appear that any leaves are torn out ; but the hand-writing is now a different one, the accounts are not ſo clearly ſtated, and are in ſome places an imperfect Latinſed Engliſh. Perhaps we ought not much to wonder at theſe irregularities, when we reflect on the ſtate of literature three centuries ago, in ſo ſmall a pariſh as Wigtoft, when the number muſt be very few who were capable of writing at all, and might be nearly confined to the prieſts. Notwithſtanding this, we meet with articles in this Account that are curious and worthy preſervation.

<sup>6</sup> Abbey of Swineshead, distant about 2 miles and a half, the place where king John is said by historians to have been poisoned. Not a vestige of the abbey is now remaining, except the stone effigy of a knight in armour, in a niche in the back wall of the house, on the left hand of the door into the garden, which is by time much impaired and defaced. The house is an excellent farm-house built of stone from the old abbey. Speed, in his "Catalogue of the Religious Houses, Colledges, and Hospitals, sometimes in England and Wales," says this abbey was dedicated to Saint Marie, was founded by Sir Robert Grifley, contained white monks, and its revenue was 175l. 19s. 10d. per annum.

Extracts from the Accountts of the Churchwardens of the Parish of ST. MARY HILL, London.

THESE Accountts are written in two large folio paper books, containing the Churchwardens' accountts, extracts from the wills of benefactors, and several other matters relating to the parish.

One of these books is of a smaller sized paper, but vastly thicker than the other, and made up of many little parcels, which, being on paper of unequal sizes, and written in different hands, were doubtless once separate, and afterwards bound up in a rude manner with a thick parchment cover, lapping over like a pocket-book after the manner of our antient register-books. This consists wholly of Churchwardens' accountts, the first of which has the following title :

" These ben the Parcellis of Paymentis made be William Gelam and John Gretyng, Wardeyns of the Chirche of Seint Marie at the Hille, begynnyng at the Feste of Ester, the Yer of the Regne of Kyng Henry the Sixte, after the Conquest, v<sup>o</sup>." [1427].

These payments are chiefly for repairs, &c. of the church ; and no receipts are mentioned, nor any balance of the accountts, as is done regularly afterwards.

Then follows an inventory of the church-plate, vestments, &c. to Hen. VI. the first article of which is " a cowpe of silver and golde to ber in Godde's body with cristall."

Item, " a cup of silver for Godde's body."

Then follows " the accountt of John Palmer and John Clerke, churchwardens, from Michaelmas, 17 Edw. IV. to Michaelmas, 19 Edw. IV. by two hoole yere ;" in which, having first given a rental of the lands and tenements belonging to the chantries founded by Weston, Cawston, Goffelyne, Bedeham, and Cambridge, they charge themselves with the said rents, and the increase and arrears of the same, bequests, casuell receipts, and burials. They then set forth various payments and expences upon the church and chantries, under the head of Quitrents*, Priests'

The account is followed by a similar one for two years, from Michaelmas 19, to 21 Edw. IV. of Mille and Merth; to which succeeds that of Vavafour and Baker, for two years also, from Michaelmas 1483 to 1485. After which succeed regular series of accounts for one year each, according to the present method observed in the parish, (by which the junior churchwarden of each year becomes senior churchwarden the next year), down to Michaelmas 1538. The book, being then turned, and beginning at the other end, there are accounts from Christmas 1556-7, and so on upwards to 1539 in no regular series. Then follows an inventory of household goods and furniture; apparel male and female; debts pro and con; chattels and funeral expences; signed JOHN PORT, layt the Kyng's servant. Here ends this book.

The other folio book, though not near so thick as the former, is made of a much larger paper, very strong and good, the edges cut, and evidently bound before it was written. "This booke was made, and the most part therein wryten, by the hands of John Halled, grocer and pishioner of the pysh of Seynte Mary at Hill, on whoes soule Allmyghttye God have m'cye. Amen for charyte, a<sup>o</sup> 1468. By me, Martin Stower." It contains large extracts from the wills of Rose Wryttel, and the other founders of chantries, with rentals of all, except Weston's and Bedeham's. The copy of a deed of release, 31 Hen. I. and of other deeds, proving Bedeham's right to dispose of the tenements bequeathed by him. Copy of a lease, dated March 13, 1507, from William Hatclyff, clerk, parson, and churchwardens of St. Mary Hill, to Andrew Evyngar, his wife Ellyn, and their natural daughter Elizabeth, of a house in Thames-street, for 50 years, if any of them live so long, at 5 marks per annum: the said Evyngar, &c. to rebuild it the first year, to keep it in proper repair, the king's highway well paved before it, and the sege or prevey duly voided, for the first twenty years; the landlords to do it the rest of the term: N. B. and if neither of them live to the end of the 50 years, the lessees are to enter on the premises immediately on the death of the survivor, the day of whose demise is to be solemnly kept, at the expence of the lessors, during the remainder of the said 50 years, for the souls of the said Andrew, Ellyn, and Elizabeth by name, and generally for all Christian souls; the said parson and churchwardens being entitled to the premises immediately on the demise of the three parties.

* The wages of the chantry priests were fixed by their respective founders, and were generally £6. 13s. 4d.; but about the reign of Edward VI. were raised to £8. each. Besides these there was a parish priest (as he is sometimes called) to whom was paid annually 2s. for rehearsing in the bede-roll the founders' names. We find no payments to the rector, except some tithes which he forgave towards the expences of the choir, which increased before their abolition under Edward VI. In the early accounts there are only two clerks at £2. 13s. 4d. each per annum; but in later years, when wages were increased and conducts hired to sing, the expence amounted to between £30. and £40. per annum; and in 1539 was £51. 19s. In 1547 the several organ-players employed had from £8. 10s. to £11.; the parish-clerk £6. 13s. 4d.; the sexton £4.

† The charge of the wax-chandler was at an average a little above 25s. per annum; sometimes 12s. sometimes 53s. according to the allowance for old wax.

§ Or money spent on receiving rents, &c. was annually about 5s. Writing and endorsing the Church-wardens' accompts was at first only 6s. 8d.; but afterwards, when the abstract was entered in the broad-book, it was doubled. The raker's or scavenger's pay was at first 8d. afterwards doubled.

Next comes an inventory of goods delivered to Marynn Conteryn *, Marchaunte of Venyse, and to Powle Priour, his attorney, by J. Bedham, when he entered into the place in Botolph-lane, where now one Peter Conteryn dwellith, anno 1485. Another inventory of the church goods.

Then a very full and particular account of Willym Prewne and John Halbed, churchwardens, from Michaelmas 1 Hen. VII. 1485, to Michaelmas 2 Hen. VII.; a rental of all the lyvelode, or income from rents of tenements †, belonging to the church in their time, regularly made out according to the situation of the tenements. An abstract of every succeeding churchwarden down to 1537.

A memorandum that, 27 March, 6 Edw. VI. it was agreed by the parson of St. Mary Hill ‡, that Francis Semper and his wife, for certain considerations, should have the house in the north church-yard for 20 years from next Lady-day, paying yearly for the same 30s.: the churchwardens to keep the house from Wynd-tide and Weibbertide during the said term.

Commission of Edward VI. to the Lord mayor and others, to make enquiry into the church goods, plate, ornaments, &c. dated Guildhall, July 13, 1552; ditto, April 15, 1553; ditto, about linnen, Jan. 6, 6 Edward VI.; and the Churchwardens' answer, inventory, &c. and an account of ornaments restored by Mary, and some others given by the parishioners.

Memorandum. Dec. 26, 1556. Sir Allyn Percy, parson, with the most part of the worshipful and awnsyent parishioners, granted unto John Fraute, bere-brewer, an annual rent of £4. for 40 years, from last Michaelmas, to be paid quarterly by the churchwardens.

Extracts from T. Clayton's will, 1554, bequeathing tenements for repairs of the church.—Memorandum of writings and leases 1577. The remaining half of the book is blank: but at the end reversed, the names of the parson and parishioners at the making of the book, Sept. 29, 1486.

The paper of this book is of a coarse texture and yellowish; the mark a crown,

The sand remains on some of the later writing.

* Contarini is a well known Venetian family name.

† Among the tenants are William Parys, reyner; J. Breuster, tornor; Robert Eryche, wool-monger; William Reynnesforth, poymt-maker; Maister Lewes, the king's feciffian; J. Mouce, capper; and other more common trades, &c. The situations are about the church and church-yard, St. Mary-Hill-lane, Temmystrete, Love lane, parishes of St. Andrew's Hubberd, St. Leonard Eastchepe, St. Christopher at Stocks, St. Botolph besyde the Menery, Fauster-lane, and at the Tower-Hill besyde the Pyllerye beyond the new Abbey. The income this year amounted to £78. 19s. 2d.

‡ Allyn Percy.

Stowe's account of this church is very superficial *, consisting of one page of epitaphs. He says indeed, that it was "a faire church, and hath been lately builded, as may appere by this that followeth." This is only Fabian's account of the finding Alice Hackney's body intire after 175 years inhumation, as they were "digging the foundation of a wall within the church." This digging or reparation comes within the time of our registers, which have preserved a receipt of 7s. 8d. from John Halhed, grocer, paid by Thomas Colyn, 1496, "for the obyt and fettyng upe of the tombe, and buryenge of Richard Hackney † and Alys his wyff, the xx day of Marche;" which in the second book is charged "for lyme, sande, and for mason's huyr and his laborer, makyng ageyne "of their tombe, and their dyrge and masse and masse-peny; and for drynkyng "to the priests and to the parishioners, and for al maner of charges."

The walls and tower of this church being all that escaped the fire in 1666, we are not to expect the least traces of the parts of the building that occur in these accounts; nor is there a single brass or antient mural monument now remaining here.

The church antiently appears to have had a cross aisle, and two aisles to the body: the north aisle was begun 1487; finished 1489; the south aisle about 1501, on the site of the abbot of Waltham's kitchen. In a grand repair, 1490, Mr. Alderman Remington ‡, John Smarte, and William Prewne, granted each a sum of money to "make a whole arch;" as did Harry Kello for a large one, and John Suckling, and sir John Plumer (chantry priest) united to make a whole arch, upon condition "that all the parishioners will be contributing to the same after their "power that may be." According 5 of them gave from 40s. to 20s. and 10s. apiece. "Thomas Hant will give as Mr. Alderman will set him; and Mr. W. "Wilde, parson, as his pleasur."

Robert Revett (one of the sheriffs 1490) gave liberally towards it §.

Different sums were collected for this work in 1496 to the amount of £13. 1s. 8d. including 8d. by "the bedyll's wyff at two times for two of her geests."

My lady the King's grandam †, gave to our church 20s.; Mr. Robert Ryvett, alderman and grocer of London, to the repairs of the church and steeple 200 marks.

Here were seven chantries founded by the following persons:

1. Rose Wrytell, sometime wife of William Fairstede, clerk. She died 1328, and by will, dated 1323, 16th of king Edward, son of king Edward, bequeathed a tenement of olde tyme callid the Swanne on the Hope ||, in Thames-street, in this † Margaret, countess of Richmond, grandmother to Henry VIII.

|| The Swan and Hoop, a corruption of Swan on or in Hoop. Q. has this sign any relation to the Swan-hopping, an annual ceremony observed by some of the livery companies of London; or, as hoppet is defined by Skinner a Lincolnshire word for a basket, is hope any inclosure of wicker in which the swans had their nests?—A Hopper is explained by Bailey to be a wild swan; a Hope as the side of a hill, or low ground among hills.

parish,

parish, to maintain a priest at the altar of St. Edmund King and Martyr, for her soul, and those of her husband, her father, and mother.

2. John Cauton, mercer, died 1353, buried in the church of St. Pancras, Soper-lane, left the rents of certain tenements here, and in other parishes, for one priest and 5 tapers before the image of Our Lady at the high-altar of the Salutation, St. Thomas the Martyr, and St. Nicholas, who had altars on the south side of the high-altar. Also another priest to sing for the soul of Henry Barnard, and all Christian souls in this church.

3. John Nafyng, brewer, by will, dated 1356, 35 Edward III. requiring his body to be buried in this church, gave the rents of several tenements and shops in this parish, to the amount of £9. 3s. 4d. per annum, for one priest. The abbot of Waltham had a quit-rent of 22s. out of these rents from 1493 to the dissolution.

4. John Weston, merchant of London, sheriff in 1420, by will, dated 1407, 3 Henry IV. orders his body to be buried here, and appoints a priest to sing for his soul. If the parson and parishioners neglect to perform his will, the money to go to the mayor or wardeyn and commonalty of the city of London, to the use and sustentacion of the brige of London, and to find a priest, &c. to syng in the chapel of London brige.

5. William Cambridge, grocer, mayor 1420, by will, dated 1431, 10 Henry VI. orders his body to be buried in St. Stephen's chapel of his own making, on the north side of this church, and bequeaths lands to the amount of £10. per annum to the rectors of this church; and the Grocers' company to find one priest; and 6s. 8d. for an anniverfary; and 6s. 8d. for the poor on the same. In case of failure of his executors, the money to go to the use of London brige, as Weston's.

6. Richard Gollyng, ironmonger, sheriff 1420, by will, dated 1428, 6 Henry VI. bequeaths his body to be buried here*, and five marks for a priest; a taper on St. Catherine's altar; and 6d. a week for two poor men or women of this parish each, &c.; and on failure of application by the parson and churchwardens here, to those of St. Botolph, Bishopsgate; and on their neglect, to the mayor and aldermen, to find a priest in the chapel of London brige, as the preceding ones.

7. John Bredham, fishmonger, by will dated 1472, 12 Edward VI. appoints a priest in St. Catharine's chapel, and leaves 4d. a week to three poor men of the parish: in case of neglect, the whole to go to St. Botolph, Bishopsgate.

Thomas Ryvett, grocer, by will dated 1496, left half the reversion of his daughters' fortunes, in case of their decease under age and single, to maintain a priest here: but this seems not to have taken place.

* He leaves to St. Clement's church, Rochester, where he was born, 6s. 8d.; to his wife Alice his messuage at Mepam, and lands at Luddisdon, Kent. The expence of his obit to be divided between the parson (then William Hatclyff, D. D.), if present, 8d. his curate 8d. eight priests and two clerks 3s. 6d. wax 8d. clark for ryngyng 20d. a dozen of bread price 12d. a kilderkyn of ale 2s. for the priests, clerks, and parishioners assisting, to be paid by his wife, and after her death by the Fishmongers' company; the remaining 20s. to go to the common box of the fellowship, to assist at the obit, and pay the said sum, viz. 10s. to the quere, and 10s. to the wardens of the company; and in failure of this, the whole to go to the repairs of the church. If necessary, his wife to sell the messuage and garden at Rochester, called the Bell.

John Yongeham, of Rochester, fishmonger, buried here, founded an obit.

Here was another for John Bradmer; and the parish priest had two-pence to remember in the pulpit the soule of Richard Bliet **, of Thurroc, Essex, who gave 6s. 8d. to the church works.

In this church were seven altars. The high altar or St. Mary's, or Our Lady's; St. Thomas's on the south side of the church; St. Edmund's; St. Catharine's; St. John Baptist's; St. Stephen's in his chapel on the north side of the church; the south altar between the images of St. Thomas the Martyr and St. Nicholas. This, if not the same with St. Thomas' abovementioned, might be dedicated to Becket and St. Nicholas jointly. The chapels of St. Christopher and St. Anne had their altars.

Here were three brotherhoods of St. Catharine, St. Anne, and St. Christopher.

The window of the Trinity is mentioned in the south side of the church, and that of St. John on the north. Here was a charnell-house, and no less than six church-yards, unless some of them went by two names; viz. the Great and Little, north and south; the Pardon church-yard*; and the Procession church-yard, with its gravelled causey. Persons buried here, besides Cambridge, Goslin, Ryvett, and Remington, who occur in the register, may be seen in Stowe.

From these registers we are enabled to correct Newcourt's List of the Rectors: After H. Webb, 1400, we are to insert Thomas Atherston, who was rector † here 1407; William Sparke was rector 1428 ‡, undated in Newcourt; John Horne (Newcourt, alias Daventre) was rector † 1431; William Hatclyffe, undated in Newcourt, was rector 1507.

It was agreed by Mr. Parfon †, Mr. Alderman ‡, and divers others of the parishioners, that the clark and churchwardens from that time should take for any knyell of the grete bell 6s. 8d. i. e. to either of them 40d.; for the knyell of the second bell rynging only an hour the clark to take 12d.; and for  $\frac{1}{2}$  a day 40d. only to himself; and for the lyttle or first bell, for a man 8d. for a child 4d.; for a pytt in the chirche 2s.; and for a pytt in the Pardon § church-yard, for a man 8d. for a child \* Piece. All this apparatus was to close the sepulcre on Easter-eve; during which one or more men were hired to watch it, in allusion to the soldiers. From this and other accounts of the sepulchre in these registers, it appears to have been here at least a temporary erection, perhaps a chest of wood, and not fixt against the north wall of the choir as part of the building, as in the churches of Northwold, Norfolk, and Hackington, Lincolnshire. At Abyngdon something of this temporary kind was made of stone 1559, and cost 17s. 6d.; whereas in this church it did not exceed 5s.

§ We have two more such places in London mentioned by Stowe: one the area of the great cloyster on the north side of St. Paul's (355); the other the cemetery inclosed by Bishop Stratford near the Charter-houfe, for the persons who died of the plague 1348. Both these places had chapels in them. Perhaps this register first discovers a third of the name distinct from the other or Great church-yard. The burial-fees too seem to be different and less.

* Stowe [p. 217.] says, the Lombards or Florentine merchants met in a house abutting south on Lombard street, and north on Cornhill, confirmed to them by Edward II. May not this Lumbard's place have been destined to the like use in the reign of Edward IV. in another part of the town.

Toward the end of the account of the same churchwardens is the following article:

“Item, paid to John Carpenter for his good wyll, to be shewed in the byldyng of the Lumbar dis place, in St. Botolph's Lane, 6s. 8d.

1483—5. Gabriel de Urs, merchaunte de Venes, held the great Lombard's Place here at £13. 6s. 8d. per annum.

The last article in their account is the following:

“Delyvyd to Gabriel Lombarde, clerk, tenaunte in Botolf-lane, inn olde lede c. weyghte.”

This same tenement was occupied by Lewis Lumbarde, in the accompts of the preceding churchwardens.

In 1496, received of Benet Tople, Lombarde, for the great place of Botolph-lane, £13. 6s. 8d.

** Dr. Ward observes that rood is applied to the image of saints, as of Mary and John, and even of St. Helen in the Abingdon accmpts; and Dr. Morell appeals to Junius in confirmation thereof. But the words of the register are by no means capable of the sense assigned them by the first of these able critics. "The roode, Mary and John, with the patron of the church," evidently mean distinct images of the Crucifix, Mary, John, and Helen. With deference to such authority as Junius, the Saxon use of the word rood confines it to the cross or crucifix. But in this place of our accmpts rood can mean only the rood-loft. In the Waltham accounts we have "Mary and John that stand in the Rood-loft." Fuller's Hist. of Waltham Abbey, p. 17.

From 1516 to 1530 the charges and discharges consist of little more than rents, and quitrents, and expences of chantries. Under 1552 is inserted the King's commission, directed by the lord mayor and other commissioners to Edmond Caddise and Robert Young, churchwardens, for the trewe certificate of all the church-goods and ornaments; also what, to whom, and when sold. The commissioners order, signed George Barne †, knight, lord-mayor, Nicolas, boufshe of London, fir Roger Chomle ||, knight, lord chief justice, and others. Dated Guildhall, April 15, 1553.

The effect of the King's Majesty's letters to them, that all the linen of the churches in London and suburbs, except what is necessary for present use, be given to the use of the poor in Christ Church hospital. A letter to the churchwardens hereon, dated 24 Jan. 6 Edward VI. signed Nicolas London, Rowland Hill, Richard Dobo.

The churchwardens return of vestments, linen, and plate: among the former were three suits of cloth of gold, with three copes of the same to each suit; four ditto ditto of velvet**, two ditto ditto of bodkin; several others of damask, &c.; eight childrens' copes; three crosse clothes; a camise cloth of red bodkyn with eight streamers; a stayned cloth which went about the sepulchre; 15 banner cloths; an old vestment of sattyn and brydgis; a vestment of whitbustyne with a red crosse; another of whit busime for the high aulter whole harnys [hangings] of clothe of goulde, courtins of red and white sarsnet; another of russet clothe of golde with courtins of russet fylke; two others of white fylke and grene bodkin; another of grene bodkyn for St. Christopher's altar; one of white for St. Catharine's; one of blewe for St. Anne's; and one of white for our Lady's. These harnyses are distinguished into those "above and beneath with curtains."

The plate consisted of . . . gilt chalice and pattyns of silver, and one silver crismatory, two shippis with two spoons, two cruets, two candlesticks, and a pyx; two paire of orgayns, the one paire gretter than the other; a silver crofs with a cristoll in it bound with latice wire.

The churchwardens had sold, 2 Edward VI. a chalice and pix of silver unaccounted for (at 5s. 5d. per oz.), and a deske with other lattyn; also to Jefres the basket-maker 7 lb.  $\frac{1}{2}$  of alliblafter, at 2s. 4d. per lb. total 17s. 6d. To others the gilt of three images at 12s.; and 14 lb. of pewter at 4s. 8d.; to — Red, goldsmith, 12 oz. of silver, being claspes of bokes, and the plate of a rinter \*, and other plate.

The parselles of ornaments lately appertaying to this church are now restorede agayne by the Quene's Majestie's goodnes, 20 December, 1<sup>o</sup> of her reign, by the handes of Arthur Sturton, at the Quene's wardrop at Westminster; viz. three copes of red clothe of gold, for the priest, deacon, and subdeacon; three ditto of white ditto for ditto; three ditto of blue ditto; one whole hangens of cloth of gold rised with ruffet velvet for the high altar; and one of ditto with white and grene velvet for St. Christopher's. A list of the church-plate, &c. 1553, 1 Mary, precedes this.

The parishioners gave a crofs of copper gilt, a vestment of grene bodkin, and two curtains of white filke and sarfnet.

Then follows the churchwardens' accompt, 1554-5, 1 and 2 Philip and Mary, and their grant of an annual rent of £.4. to John Frank, bere-brewer, for 40 years, from 1556 to 1596; and extract from the will of Thomas Clayton, late citizen and white-baker, of London, giving a tenement for repairs of the church; and 46 oz. of silver plate, 20 downewaigt * to be made into two chalices. Allyn Percy, parson. Other leases, the last of which is dated 13 Jan. 1557, 20 Elizabeth, Thomas Fallerd, parson.

The remaining half of this book is blank. The paper of a coarse texture, and yellowish; the mark a crown.

The sand remains on some of the late writing.

|| Can this be the same person who is mentioned in the next page, l. 19, as dying 5 Edward VI. ?

The money given the players, I guess, was paid the wardens of the crafts or trades, who, every year, acted the play of Corpus Christi * upon Corpus Christi day, in the north-chancel of this church, called Corpus Christi chapel; or elsewhere in the town.

The canopy mentioned in the above account was a common state, set up, in these times, in all churches over the high altar; under which in a pix †, or little box of gold, silver, ivory, or chrystal, hung the consecrated host, reserved there to be carried to the sick upon any emergency; when it was taken down, and with the canopy over it, born by the clergy in procession to the houses of such inhabitants as were dying, as they thought, and called for that sacred viaticum. By the above account it should seem that many of the common sort of people had, as yet, no surnames, but were rather known by the names of their several trades, as Richard the Carver, Thomas the Glasier, John the Roper, &c.

Brother Rowseby abovementioned was not a frier, but a secular priest. He attended the carver, as it should seem, to oversee and direct him whilst he was designing some new image or piece of sculpture for the farther ornament of the church; and therefore the churchwarden spent 5*d.* upon them; money enough, in these days, to entertain any two men either at dinner or supper. This William Rowseby made a strange will, and died 5 Edward VI. being then parson of St. Clement's ‡.

The rood-loft, inspected, as above, by the carver, was a gallery, in popish times, situate in every church between the nave and chancel. It was called the rood-loft, from a great rood, or image of the crucifixion set up in the midst of it; besides which, there were two other images, a Mary and a John (as the common people then called them) standing by it, that of the blessed Virgin on the right, that of the beloved disciple on the left, hand side of the rood. In the same place was likewise a figure of the particular saint to whom the church was dedicated. All these had generally a veil, or curtain, let down before them when service was done; but in service-time were lighted up with lamps and wax tapers.

In those days men were fond of such pageantries; but I now mention them, that my readers may better understand what I treat of §.

* For further particulars of this play, see Peck's Annals of Stamford, B. xiv. §. 4. p. 4, 5.

† The pix contained the consecrated hosts for communion, and for the use of the sick, called the viaticum. The will of William Bruges, Garter King at arms, 1449.

In the name of the Fader, Son, and Holy Gost, iii persous in Trinite, and on sole God, Y William Bruges, otherwise cleped Garter Kyng of Armes, in my right and in my fresh mynde through the enspiracion of the Holy Gost, the Thursday the xxvi day of Feverer, the yere of our Lord God mcccc<sup>xliix</sup> and the yere of the Kyng Henry the Sexte the xxvi, make this my present testament and last will. As for the first and foremost, Y bequethe my soule to the gret mercy of oure Lord God Jhu, that suffred payne and passion of his gret mercy, to bring my wretched soule from the carnal payne and dampnation to the eternal blyffe and redempcion, and to that gret mercy Y to be brought, Y beseech our blessed Lady, mayden and wyf, that, she, of her gret grace and goodnesse, like and please to be mean and immediatrice. And also Y beseeche al the glorious seyntes and seyntesses in heaven, that they, for thaire glorious martirdoms and goodnesse, . . . . . to Almighty God, that so Y may finde, and have also, yf it be possible, my body to be brought and buryed in the church of Saynt George within Staunford, there to be buried, in the myddes of the quere of the said chirch. To the whych said chirch Y bequeth a gret holy-water scoppe* of silver, with a staff benature †, the said benature, and staff weyng xx. nobles in plate and more. Item, to the said chirch I bequethe a peyre of censours of sylver, with a ship of sylver for frankincense, and I spones in the same ship, of sylver ‡. Item, I bequethe to the said chirch a little handbell of sylver, of the gretnesse of a sacryng-bell §. Item, I bequethe to the same chirche, a little round cofyn of sylver, closed in syngyng bred, and not the hoste. Item, Y bequethe to the said chirch, for ther solempne feste dayes, to stande upon the high awter, ii grete basyne of sylver, and ii high candlesticks of sylver. Item, I bequethe to the said chirch, i coupe of sylver, in the whych is one litel box of yvory, to put in the blessed sacrament; and to hang over the high awter. . . . . Item, Y bequethe to the said chirch, one gret chalice, overgilt; of the wight of Cs. to serve for theyre solempne festes. Item, I bequethe to the said chirch, ane hole sute of vestmytes of russet velvet. One coope, cheffible diacones ||, for decones; with the awbes and parures. And two case corporasses** of the same sute of vestmyntes. Item, I bequethe to the said chirch ane other hole sute of black velvet, i cheffible diacones, for decones, or frees of white clothe of gold powdred with garters, and two casse corporasses. Item, Y bequethe and ordeyne that the gret fraim . . . . . that Y have lying in the gret berne in my place at Kentishton [by London] to be sold to the most value, and the mony rising thereof to be bestowed upon the compleshyng and endyng of the feyd chirch of Staunford; that is to be understand, in coveryng with lede, glasyng, and makyng of pleyn desques, and of a pleyn rodelofte, and in puyng of the feyd chirch, nourt curiously, but pleynly; and in paving of the hole chirch, body and quere, with broad Holand tyle. Item, I bequethe to the feyd chirch of Seynt George, a solempnitie of array for the fest of Corpus Christi, oon partie wrought in the plate, of sylver, and over-gilt; and that other in ymbre to be born between the decon and subdeacon: the ymbre is peynted, and over-gilt with syne gold. And, for every sign of the passion, an aungel berynge the sign of the croisse, and of the crowne of thorne; another aungel beryng the pillar and the scourges: another aungel beyring the spere and the sponges; another aungel beyring the remnant of the signs of the passion; and, in the middlle of the feretorye, a gret round blak corver; and one peynted with gold and asure, and peynted with flerres of gold, in the middel of that round blok, for a gret coupe of sylver, and overgilt, to stande on, upon a pynne of tre*. And, in the feyd couple, a litel box of silver, and over-gilt; to put in the sacrament. This gret coupe, and the litle together, first to be set upon the gret blok of tre*, with a gret croun of and over gilt, garnished with stones clepyd dublets, redde, blue, grene, and yellowe, garnished wyth counterfeyt perles made of silver; the croun of the wight of Cs. This croun fyrst to be set upon the gret round blok of tre, and thanne upon the pynne standyng in the feyd blok. The said coupe to be crowned withoute wyth a small croune, ordeyned redy therefore. Item, I bequethe to the feyd feretorye, a tabernacle wele ywrought of sylver and over-gilt, of the wight of one marc, or thereabouts, goyng wyth a byll to be set high upon the coupe. And above, upon the poynt of the feyd tabernacle, a litel croisse of silver and over-gilt, goyng also by a vyce †. All this plate that longeth to the feste (that is to say of Corpus Christi) yf myn executors samyn that yt should be in more sure garde of the parisshors of the chirch of oure Lady of Staunford; Y would yt shuld rest and abyde in the garde of hem; and wythyn theire tresour. And atte daye of the fest of Corpus Christi, hit to follow the sacrement of the feyd chirch of our Lady, yf it plesse the parysshors of the feyd chirch of our Lady; onlesse that they wol have yt serve for both. Item, Y ordeyn and bequethe that the ii chapelles of our Lady and Seynt George ‡, wythyn the feyd chirch of Seynt George be clofid wyth ostrich boarde §, and clere storied ||, after such quantite as the clofure of pleyn borde there now containeth. And to the feyd chappel of our Lady, Y bequethe ii images of our Lady and Seynt George, beyng in paynted stone, and in my chapel at Kentishton. And to the same chappel of our Lady of Staunford, Y bequethe my grete candlestykes of laton, that standen in my chapel at Kentishton. Item, Y bequethe to the feyd chappel of Seynt George of Staunford, the ymage of the Trinite of stoon, standyng in my chapel at Ken-

‡ This church having neither north or south chancels, these two chapels were therefore made of the upper parts of the north and south isles. The north chapel was parted from the rest of the church by a screen, which went from the north side of the chancel to the first pillar on the north side of the nave, and from that pillar by another screen which ran across to the wall of the said north isle. So that it took in a handsome square corner, and two windows at the upper end of the said north isle. The south chapel was exactly of the same compais and proportion. These screens were taken down in 1719, when the church was repaired.

Item; I bequethe the feyd small candlestykkes standyng in my chapel at Kenttitlton, to the new chapel of our Lady now in makyng in the same town. And as for the feyd three ymages of ftoon (that is to say, the ymages of the Trinite, our Lady, and Seynt George) Y woyl have made, for eiche of theym, a gret cofyn of elmy n borde; the feyd ymages to be nayled in fast, stuffed with hey, and so carryed, at my coste, unto Staunford, and set up in the feyd chirch of Seynt George. Item, the II lefs candlestyks to be set upon the awter of our Lady, in the feyd town of Staunford; and there to serve brennyng from the begynnyng of the Gospel, unto the tyme that the prest have used, upon my cost, as my goods will suffice to contynue yt . . . every taper of halfe a pound wight; and every day a masse to be feyd of our Lady. Item, I ordeyn and wol that the II greter candelstyks, beyng in my feyd chappel at Staunford, serve in the chapel of our lady of Staunford; and that on stand upon the ground, afore the ymage of Seynt George in the same chapel. And for eiche of these candelstykkes to be ordeyned a taper of waxe of I pound wight, and, so served, to be lighted atte dyvyne servyce at pryncipal fest-days, and al other solempne festes, as, at matyns, pryme, masse, and the yeven songs. Item, I bequethe and ordeyne to the feyd chirch of St. George of Staunford, a litle coffre, standyng bounden wyth plate of yren, ful of vestments; except on vestment, yf yt be therein, and that ys of blak satyn ground, figured wyth rede velvet; the orfreyes wrought wyth the nedel with ymages, the which said vestment Y wol yt serve for our Lady-chapel in Staunford only. Item, I ordeyne and bequethe to the chapel of our Lady in Seynt Mary chirch at Sandewich, an half long gown of purple velvett furred wyth martrons *, of that to be made a chesible wyth the parures †, and wyth the furre to be bouzt and ordeyned the orfreyes, lyke to the orfreyes of the singel vestyment of blak satyn, lyned with red velvet. And yf the feyd furre of matrones wol not suffice to ordeyne the feyd orfreyes, myn executors to put to such mony as they may have of myne, to the percomplishyng of the feyd orfreyes; and so endid to be delyvered to the feyd chirch. Item, I bequethe to the feyd chappel of our Lady in Seynt Mary chirch of Sandewich, the chalice of sylver and over-gilt, that my wyf hath; and myne executors to make for the same chalice II small nets of sylver and over-gilt, of the price of xxs. and than my wyfe to send yt to the feyd chirch. The residue of all my gooddes, after my dettes payd, Y geve and bequethe to Anneys my wyf principal executrice, Thomas Haddon, hir broder, co-executor to her, and Master Clement Denston, clerk, overseer of the same my testament; and that they ordeyne and dyspose for my soule, as they shall seem best, to the plesire of God, and to the proffite of my soule. Geven at London, the day and yere abovementioned ‡.

The churchwardens accompts of a particular parish may in themselves be justly thought a matter of no great consequence, and not worthy of much regard. But these seem to deserve some consideration, as they relate to a very remarkable period in our history, and prove, by facts, the great alterations that were made in religious affairs under the successive reigns of Queene Mary and Queen Elizabeth, together with the time and manner of putting them in execution; and may therefore serve both to confirm and illustrate several things related by our ecclesiastical historians.

1. We find mention made, in the extracts, of the roode and rood-loft. By the former of which was meant either a crucifix, or the image of some saint, erected in popish churches [a]. And here that name is given to the images of Mary and John; as [a] The word rood is derived from the A. S. rode, crux. Skinn. In its primary signification, as Junius observes, it formerly denoted any sort of image, but was afterwards peculiarly adapted to our Saviour, as fixed on the cross, or to the cross itself. Hence rood-beam, rood-tree, in Chaucer.

“ I lokynge up unto that rufull roode.” Magd. 204.

“ He lyethe in the grave under the roode beme.” W. B. 496.

“ That for us dyede on the roode tree.” Cl. Ox. 558.

So Piers Plowman, p. 8.—“ Mercie for Mary's love of heven,

“ That bare the blisful barne, that bought us on the rood.”

as also to that of St. Helen, the patroness of the church. These images were set in shrines, or tabernacles, and the place where they stood was called the rood-loft; which was commonly over, or near the passage out of the body of the church into the chancel [b]. In the year 1543, the first of King Edward VI. such images and their shrines were ordered to be taken down, as we are told by bishop Burnet (Hist. of the Reformation, Vol. II. B. 1. p. 61.); but they were restored again upon the accession of Queen Mary, as we find here by the first article.

2. The ship for frankincense, mentioned in the year 1556, was a small vessel, in form of a ship or boat, in which the Roman Catholics burn frankincense; and used at the altar on greater solemnities.

3. The book of articles purchased in 1556, seems to be that which was printed, and sent over the kingdom, by order of Queen Mary, at the end of the year 1554 [c], containing instructions to the bishops for visiting the clergy. See Burnet, Vol. III. B. ii. p. 254.

4. We find frequent mention made of lights and other expences at the funeral, "the monethes mind, the year's mind, the two years mind," and the obit of deceased persons; which were masses performed at those seasons for the rest of their souls; the word mind there signifying the same as memorial or remembrance. And so it is used in a sermon yet extant by bishop Fisher, intitled, "A mornynge remembrance had at the monethes mynde of the noble princeſs Margarete, countesse of Richmonde and Darbye, &c." As to the term obits, services of that kind seem to have been so called, when annually performed [d]. The office of the mass for each of these solemnities may be seen in the Roman-Missal, under the

Scot. rude. The good and learned bishop Douglas, in the prologue to the tenth book of his translation of Virgil, says,

"Thou large firemys sched upon the rude."

And in his prologue to the eleventh book,

"Think how the Lord for the on rude was rent."

[b] And, wot you what spiritual mystery was conched in this position thereof? The church (forsooth) typified the church militant; the chancel represents the church triumphant, and all who will pass out of the former into the latter must go under the Rood-loft, i. e. carry the cross, and be acquainted with affliction. Fuller, (Hist. of Waltham Abbey, p. 16.) who says, he adds this the rather, because Harpsfield (Fox, Aet. and Mar. p. 1690), confesseth himself ignorant of the Rood-situation. Anno 1554, or 1 of Mary, in the churchwardens account of Waltham abby, "payde for Mary and John that stand in the rood-loft 26s. 8d." Christ on the cross saw his "mother and the disciple whom he loved standing by." (John xix. 26.) "In apish imitation "whereof the Rood (when perfectly made, with all the appurtenances thereof) was attended "with these two images." (Fuller's Hist. p. 17.)

[c] Anno 1554, or 1 of Mary, "payde to the apparitor for the bishop's boke of articles, at "the visitation, 6s." This bishop was Bonner. His articles were in number thirty-seven. And John Bayle wrote a book against them. The bishop's chief care herein was the setting up of compleat Roods, commonly called Bonner's Block-almightie. (Fuller's Hist. p. 18.)

[d] The common expence of an Obit (anno 1542, 34 of Henry VIII.) was 2s. and 2d. And, if any be curious to have the particulars thereof, it was thus expended. To the parish-priest 4d. to the chancel-priest 3d. to the two clerks 4d. to the children (choristers) 3d. to the sexton and bellman 2d. each; for two tapers 2d. for oblation 2d. (Fuller's Hist. of Waltham Abbey, p. 14.)

title of "Missæ pro Defunctis." And it appears, by the different fums here charged on that account, that the expences were suited to persons of all ranks, that none might be deprived of the benefit which was supposed to accrue from them.

5. It has been customary in popish countries, upon Good Friday, to erect a small building, to represent the sepulchre of our Saviour. In this they put the host, and set a person to watch it, both that night and the next. And the morning following, very early, the host being taken out, Christ is said to be risen [e]. This we find was done here in 1557, and the two following years, the last of which was in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. Du Fresne has given us a particular account of this ceremony, as performed at Rouen in France, where three persons, in female habits, used to go to the sepulchre, where two others were placed representing angels, who told them Christ was risen. (Latin Glossary, under the words SEPULCHRI OFFICIUM.) The building mentioned in these extracts must be but very slight, since the whole expence amounted to no more than seventeen shillings and six pence.

6. In the article of "wax to thense the church," under the year 1558, the word Thense is, I presume, a mistake for Cense; as they might use wax with the frankincense in perfuming the church.

7. In 1559, the Altar was taken down, and the year following the Communion Table was put in its place, agreeably to the injunctions then given by Queen Elizabeth. See Burnet, Vol. III. B. iii. p. 368.

8. We find masses for the dead continued to this time, though here, instead of Month's Mind, the expression is a Month's Monument [f]. But as that office was performed at the altar, this being taken down that year, the other could no longer be continued. And yet we have the word Mass applied to the service performed upon Christmas-day the year following. So difficult it is to drop the use of words to which one has been accustomed.

9. The morrice bells, mentioned under the year 1560, as purchased by the parish, were used in their morrice-dances, a diversion then practised at their festivals;

[e] There is the like article in the churchwardens account of Waltham Abbey, anno 1542, or 34 of Henry VIII. "payde for watching the sepulchre 4d." This, says Fuller, constantly returns in every yearly account, though what is meant thereby, I know not. I could suspect some ceremony on Easter Eve (in imitation of the soldiers watching Christ's grave), but am loth to charge that age with more superstition than it was clearly guilty of. (Hist. p. 14.)

Anno 1554, or 1 of Mary, "payde for watching the sepulchre 8d." But we find none of the former Obits anniverfarly performed: The lands for whose maintenance were alienated in the reign of K. Edward VI. and the vicar not so charitably disposed as to celebrate these Obits gratis. (Ibid. p. 17.)

[f] In the Injunctions of K. Edward VI. they are called Memories. "At even-song the responds, with all the memories, shall be omitted." Injunct. 21. By Memories (says Fuller) we understand the Obsequia for the dead, which some say succeeded in the place of the Heathen Parentalia. (Church Hist. p. 375.) See Middleton's Letter from Rome.

in which the populace might be indulged, from a political view, to keep them in good humour [g].

10. In 1561, the Rood-loft was taken down; and the better to obliterate the remembrance of it (as had been doue before in the reign of King Edward VI.) some passages out of the Bible were painted in the place where it stood, which could then give little offence, since the images had been removed the preceding year by the Queen's injunction, upon a representation of the bishops. (See Burnet, Vol. II. B. III. p. 368, and Strype's Annals.)

11. In 1562, a Bible is said to have been bought for the church, which cost ten shillings. This, I suppose, was the Geneva Bible in quarto, both on account of the small price, and that edition, having the division of verses, was best suited to public use. It was an English translation, which had been revised and corrected by the English exiles at Geneva in Queen Mary's reign, and printed there in 1560, with a dedication to Queen Elizabeth. In the year 1576, we find another Bible was bought, which in the article is termed the New Bible, and said to have cost forty shillings; which must doubtless have been the folio, usually called Archbishop Parker's Bible, printed at London 1568, by Richard Jugge the Queen's printer. They had prayer books, psalters, and song-books, for the churches at the beginning of this reign, but the whole Bible was not then easily procured.

12. In 1565, there is a charge of six-pence for two common-prayer books "against invading of the Turke." It was thought the common cause of the Christian state in Europe to oppose the progress of the Turkish arms by all methods, both civil and religious. And this year the Turks had made a descent upon the isle of Malta, where they besieged the town and castle of St. Michael; when, the approach of the Christian fleet, they broke up the siege, and suffered a considerable loss in the flight, as may be seen in Thuanus, lib. xxxviii. And as the war was carried on between them and the Emperor Maximilian in Hungary, the like prayer books were annually purchased for the parish, till the year 1565 inclusive.

13. The year following there is an article of "eighteen pence for setting up Robin Hood's bower [b]. This, I imagine, might be an arbor, or booth, erected by the parish at some festival season, though for what reason it received that name I know not.

14. In 1573, mention is made of "paper for four bookes of Geneva Psalmes." It is well known that the vocal music in parochial churches received a great altera-

[g] Upon my asking the late Mr. Handel, what he took to be the genuine and peculiar taste in music of the several nations in Europe; to the French, he gave the Minuet; to the Spaniard, the Saraband; to the Italian, the Arietta; and to the English, the Hornpipe, or Morris-dance. Belg. Mcristen dans, i. e. Tripudium Mauritanicum. (Skin.) "Nam faciem plerunque infirmam fuliginem, et peregrinum vestium cultum assumunt, qui ludicris talibus indulgent, ut Mauri esse videantur, aut e longius remotâ patriâ credantur advolâsse, atque insolens recreationis genus advexisse." (Jun. Etymol.) T. M. [Thomas Morell.]

[b] The story of Robin Hood was in high vogue among the common people; as Sloth sayth of himself in Piers Ploughman:

"I cannot Parfitly mi Pater noster as the Priest it syngeth;

"But I can Rymes of Robenhode, and Randof earl of Chester."

tion in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, being changed from antiphonies into metrical psalmody, which is here called the Geneva Psalms.

15. In the year 1578, ten-pence were paid for a book of the Articles. Those Articles were agreed to and subscribed by both houses of Convocation in 1562, and printed the year following. But in 1571, being again revived, and ratified by act of parliament, they seem to have been placed in churches.

16. The last article in these extracts is "four-pence for an hour-glass for the pulpit." How early the custom was of using hour-glasses in the pulpit, I cannot say; but this is the first instance of it which I remember to have met with.

It is not to be thought that the like regulations were all made within the same time in all other places. That depended in a good measure upon the care and vigilance of the bishops in their several dioceses. And according to their affection and zeal for the Reformation, these things were managed with greater or less expedition. Abington lies in the diocese of Salisbury; and as bishop Jewel, who was first nominated to that see by Queen Elizabeth, continued in it till the year 1571, it is not to be doubted but every thing was there carried on with as much expedition as was judged consistent with prudence [i].

Some further remarks might be made upon these accounts; but they seem so obvious, as to render it unnecessary; and I fear, lest those already offered should be thought too tedious [k].

T. M.

[i] It is wittily observed by Fuller, that as careful mothers and nurses, on condition they can get their children to part with Knives, are contented to let them play with Rattles: so they permitted ignorant people still to retain some of their fond and foolish customs, that they might remove from them the most dangerous and destructive superstitions. (Ch. Hist. p. 375.)

[k] It may not be improper however (as mention is here made of "a common prayer book new set forth," anno 1573, and a bible anno 1562) to remind, or inform some readers, that, in the reign of King Henry VIII. the liturgy was said or sung in Latin, save only "the creed, the Lord's prayer, and the ten commandments," anno 1536. But anno 1548, or 2 of K. Edward VI. the first edition of the liturgy, or common prayer, was set forth in print by authority. The 2d edition as reviewed, &c. by a Statute in Parliament, anno 1552. And the 3d edition anno 1559, or 1 of Q. Elizabeth, the prayer-book here mentioned.—And as to the Bible, the first translation was made anno 1541, in the reign of K. Henry VIII. The second translation in the reign of K. Edward VI. anno 1549 and 1551. The third in 1559, or 2 of Q. Elizabeth, commonly called the Queen's Bible.

The title of this article put me in mind of a sort of prophecy in that ancient poem, called, Fiers Ploughman.

"And than shall the Abbot of Abyngton, and all his issue for ever,

"Have a knock of a king, and incurable the wound." T. M.

* Strange as it may appear to the present generation, on June 20, 1631, in the dead of night, two Algerine rovers landed and plundered this place just before settled and incorporated with an English colony, and carried off a number of the inhabitants and 100 English to Algiers. Among others, William Gunter, a person of some credit, had his wife and 7 children carried away. Two ships of war at Kinfale received timely notice, but did not stir to prevent this descent. A second was intended next year, but timely precautions were taken against it. Baltimore, however, never recovered itself since that accident, and is now a poor decayed fishing-town. Smith's Hist. of Cork, I. p. 278—280.

Some of the Church-Wardens Disbursements in different Years on the old church which stood South of the town near the marshes, the site still known by the name of the Church Land, and was taken down 1473: the windows of St. Christopher and St. Wolfane seem to have been removed from it, with the tables of St. George and King Harry, to the present church. This was built 1493 on an eminence three furlongs to the North. A North aile was added 1507, "whose adjoining is very obvious by both ends of the old standing wall. By the alteration thereof for the conveniency of the additional aile, shews the likelyhood that the ascent to the candlebeam was demolished; for a hole was cut through the South wall, and a pair of stairs, still remaining, made and cased with free-stone erected therein. The North aile fell first into decay," and wanted screwing up 1678.

<sup>3</sup> The plough light; Q. on Plough Monday. These different lights were lighted on certain festivals. The Romish church dealt much in waxen tapers, and it seems they took much supporting. The names of these different lights are obscure.—“The severall altars in churches had lights burning before them, which, with other expences attending, were provided for by the legacies of 4d. or 8d. in general by each parishioner to each light in their parish church, and by bequests of land to them. Thus to St. Margaret’s light at Boughton under Blean was given one or two acres of land, called St. Margaret gafel, and to this day the Margaret acre. For the lights of the other altars was given a stock of cows and ewes bought with the above legacies of money. These cows and ewes were let out by the churchwardens, who were trustees of them for the parishioners, at 1s. and 1s. 8d. year each cow, whose value was computed at 10s. and every person who had one was obliged to find sureties for the forth coming of it. The yearly rent of an ewe was 3d. and its whole value 2s. The rent of these cows and ewes is styled in the churchwardens’ accounts the mole or moll of the kyne or ewes. It appears by the churchwardens’ accounts, who were then four in number, there were no fewer than 20 cows and 120 ewes, producing a yearly rent of 2l. 10s. which would purchase at least as much as 20l. would now. Besides the lights before the altar of particular saints, there was in every church a rood light, or that which was burnt before the crucifix in the rood loft; and the hearse light, which burnt before the bier or hearse of those which were carried to be buried. For the finding of these lights here there was the interest of a stock of 5l. in money, which was then at least 10s. By the injunctions of Edward VI. 1547, it was ordered that the profit of cattle or money given to the finding of lights, lamps, &c. should be put into the poor chest, and distributed to the poor and needy of the parish.” Lewis’s Hist. of Faversham, p. 86; Haisted’s Kent, III. 8. (s). In Whitstaple church there was the Strods light, and the Tankerton light, so called from lords or manors there. Haisted, lb. 559. (f).

<sup>1</sup> This Marteyn, the gilder, we might take for a Dutchman by his surname; or he may have been of Scrofsbyrrig or Shrewsbury. He appears to have been a capital workman.

<sup>2</sup> Q. if a painting of the general doom or judgement? Such a painting made the altar-piece of Enfield church before the Reformation; and on the late repair, 1789, was found fastened up over the West face of the arch dividing the nave from the chancel concealed by the altar-piece of 1665, which had been hoisted up like its predecessor out of the way, when the liberality of Galscoigne Nightingale, Esq; the impropiator, smothered a handsome East window with a heavy Grecian pediment and pillars, which the present parishioners with difficulty submitted to have lightened by inserting the Decalogue and its accompaniments into the blank panuels.

EXPENCES of the BARRIERS in WEST-SMITHFIELD, 1524.

THE following record in the Eschequer ascertains the curious combat alluded to by Shakespear, and mentioned by our Chroniclers, between an armourer and his servant, 25 Henry VI. in which the armourer was overcome and killed, as related by several of our Chroniclers.

Fabian does not mention it under this year, though he gives the same sheriffs as in the record; nor is it in Hall: but Grafton says, "This yere an armourer's servaunte of London appeled his master of treason, which offered to be tried by bataille. At the day assigned the friends of the master brought him malmesye and aquavite to comfort him withall, but it was the cause of his and their discomfort: for he poured in so much, that when he came into the place in Smithfelde where he should fight, both his witte and strength fayled him; and so he being a tall and hardie personage, overladed with hotte drinkes, was vanquished of his servaunt, being but a cowarde and wretch, whose body was drawn to Tyborne, and there hanged and behedded." P. 594.

"In the same yeare also a certeine armourer was appeached of treason by a servaunte of his owne. For profe whereof a daie was given them to fight in Smithfield, infomuch that in conflict the said armourer was overcome and flaine, but yet by misgoverning of himself; for on the morow, when he should come to the field fresh and fasting, his neighbours came to him, and gave him wine and strong drinke in such excessive sort, that he was therewith distempered and reeled as he went, and so was slain without guilt. As for his false servant, he lived not long unpunished, for being convict of felonie in court of assise, he was judged to be hanged, and so was at Tiburne." Holinshed, II. 626.

"John David appeached his master, William Catur, an armourer, dwelling in St. Dunston's parish, in Fletestrete, of treason; and a day being assigned them to fight in Smithfield, the master being well beloved, was so cherished by his friends, and plied so in wine, that, being therewith overcome, was also unluckily flaine by his servant; but that false servant (for he falsely accused his master) lived not long unpunished; for he was after hanged at Tyborne for felony. Let such false accusers note this example, and looke for no better end, without speedie repentance. Myselfe have had the like servant, that likewise accused me of many articles: he liveth yet; but hath hardly escaped hanging since. God make him penitent." Stowe's Annals, p. 383.

Shakespeare does not adhere to historical verity: (Second Part of K. Henry VI. Act I. Sc. III. p. 320. Ed. Johnson and Steevens, 1786.)

Peter. Against my master, Thomas Horner, for saying, That the duke of York was rightful heir to the crown.

Q. Mar. What say'st thou? Did the duke of York say, he was rightful heir to the crown?

Peter. That my mistress was? No, forsooth: my master said, That he was; and that the king was an usurper.

Suf. Who is there?—Take this fellow in, and send for his master with a pur-suivant presently:—we'll hear more of your matter before the king.

[Exit Peter, guarded.]

Enter Horner the armourer, and his man Peter, guarded.

Suf. Because here is a man accus'd of treason:
Pray God, the duke of York excuse himself!

York. Doth any one accuse York for a traitor?

K. Henry. What mean'st thou, Suffolk? tell me: What are these?

Suf. Please it your majesty, this is the man
That doth accuse his master of high treason:

His words were these:—"That Richard, duke of York,

"Was rightful heir unto the English crown;

"And that your majesty was an usurper."

K. Henry. Say, man, were these thy words?

Arm. An't shall please your majesty, I never said nor thought any such matter:
God is my witness, I am falsely accus'd by the villain.

Peter. By these ten bones, my lords, [holding up his hands] he did speak them to me in the garret one night, as we were scouring my lord of York's armour.

York. Base dunghill villain, and mechanical,
I'll have thy head for this thy traitor's speech:—

I do beseech your royal majesty,

Let him have all the rigour of the law.

Arm. Alas, my lord, hang me, if ever I spake the words. My accuser is my prentice; and when I did correct him for his fault the other day, he did vow upon his knees he would be even with me: I have good witness of this; therefore, I beseech your majesty, do not cast away an honest man for a villain's accusation.

K. Henry. Uncle, what shall we say to this in law?

Glo. This doom, my lord, if I may judge.

Let Somerset be regent o'er the French,

Because in York this breeds suspicion:

And let these have a day appointed them

For single combat, in convenient place;

For he hath witness of his servant's malice:

This is the law, and this duke Humphrey's doom.

K. Henry. Then be it so. My lord of Somerset,

We make your grace lord regent o'er the French.

Som. I humbly thank your royal majesty.

Arm. And I accept the combat willingly.

Peter. Alas, my lord, I cannot fight; for God's sake, pity my case! the spite of a man prevaileth against me. O, Lord have mercy upon me! I shall never be able to fight a blow: O Lord, my heart!—

Glo. Sirrah, or you must fight, or else be hanged.

K. Henry.

K. Henry. Away with them to prison : and the day
Of combat shall be the last of the next month.—
Come, Somerset, we'll see thee sent away.

[Flourish. Exeunt.]

ACT II. Scene III. p. 347.

York. Lords, let him go.—Please it your majesty,
This is the day appointed for the combat ;
And ready are the appellant and defendant,
The armourer and his man, to enter the lists,
So please your highness to behold the fight.

M. Margaret. Ay, good my lord ; for purposely therefore Left I the court, to see this quarrel try'd.

K. Henry. O'God's name, see the lists and all things fit ;
Here let them end it, and God defend the right !

York. I never saw a fellow worse bested,
Or more afraid to fight, than is the appellant,
The servant of this armourer, my lords.

Enter at one door the armourer and his neighbours, drinking to him so much that he is drunk ; and he enters with a drum before him, and his staff with a sand-bag fastened to it ; and at the other door enters his man, with a drum and a sand-bag, and prentices drinking to him.

1 Neigh. Here, neighbour Horner, I drink to you in a cup of sack ; And fear not, neighbour, you shall do well enough.

2 Neigh. And here, neighbour, here's a cup of charneco*.

3 Neigh. And here's a pot of good double beer, neighbour : drink and fear not your man.

Arm. Let it come, i'faith, and I'll pledge you all ; and a fig for Peter !

1 Pren. Here, Peter, I drink to thee ; and be not afraid.

2 Pren. Be merry, Peter, and fear not thy master : fight for credit of the prentices.

Peter. I thank you all : drink, and pray for me, I pray you ; for, I think, I have taken my last draught in this world.—Here, Robin, an if I die, I give thee my apron ;—and, Will, thou shalt have my hammer :—and here, Tom, take all the money that I have.—O Lord, blefs me, I pray God ! for I am never able to deal with my master, he hath learnt so much fence already.

Sal. Come, leave your drinking, and fall to blows.—Sirrah, what's thy name ?

Peter. Peter, forsooth.

Sal. Peter ! what more ?

Peter. Thump.

Sal. Thump ! then see thou thump thy master well.

* A Spanish sweet wine.

Arm. Masters, I am come hither, as it were, upon my man's instigation, to prove him a knave, and myself an honest man: and touching the duke of York,—I will take my death, I never meant him any ill, nor the king, nor the queen; And therefore, Peter, have at thee with a downright blow, as Bevis of Southampton fell upon Afcapart.

York. Dispatch:—this knave's tongue begins to double.
Sound trumpets, alarum to the combatants.

[They fight, and Peter strikes him down.]

Arm. Hold, Peter, hold! I confess, I confess treason.

[Dies.]

York. Take away his weapon:—Fellow, thank God, and the good wine in thy master's way.

Peter. O God! have I overcome mine enemy in this presence?
O Peter, thou hast prevailed in right!

K. Henry. Go, take hence that traitor from our fight;
For, by his death we do perceive his guilt:
And God, in justice, hath revealed to us
The truth and innocence of this poor fellow,
Which he had thought to have murder'd wrongfully.—
Come fellow, follow us for thy reward.

[Exeunt.]

* Our dictionary-makers call these Andirons, probably of a form somewhat different from the things commonly known by that name, in the form of the hand, and probably are what we now call firecats. Gent. Mag. LVIII. 672. Dr. Johnson describes them as "an iron used to slide in kitchens;" and so another correspondent of Gent. Mag. ubi sup. 848, defines them the moveable iron sides of kitchen or range grates, the convenience of which are to contract or enlarge the fire occasionally, and not improperly called Creepers.

ANNOTATIONS ON THE PRECEDING COLLECTION OF ACCOMPTS,
BY THE LATE REV. SAMUEL PEGGE, LL. D. 1791.

ST. MARGARET'S, WESTMINSTER.

- P. 1. l. 2. Anno . . . . anno] dele the first anno; and for mensō r. mens'.
Sti.] This seems to shew that the first, and some of the following articles, were copied into the present book from loose papers (see p. 85); since Henry VI. would not have had the title of Sanctus in the second of Edward IV.
5. Braddines.] See p. 5. l. 18.
6. iiij Tor.] Little was done in these ages of gross Popery without lights. These torches cost 1s. 8d. apiece; but we find them of various prices, according, as we may suppose, to their size. The churchwardens appear to have provided them; and consequently they were an article of profit to the church*.
7. Ancrese.] The anchorefs. See p. 2. l. 26; p. 5. l. 32; p. 10. l. penult.
8. deliv'at.] i. e. deliberat' (whence our word to deliver), used in that sense in the base Latinity.
prediēt,] not mentioned before in this accompt.
pro guerris,] not long before the battle of Towton field.
 1464. personar,] mis-written, or mis-read, for prisonar'; for which last see Du Fresne, & infra, l. 33.
12. Charyng,] Charing (whence we have Charing-cross) was then a hamlet.
13. ejusdem,] f. cujusdam, for she has not been mentioned before.
16. Charyng.] We are not to suppose the hermit was interred there, but that he was of that place, and lived there.
19. Abbate.] Edmund Kirton was then Abbot of Westminster. Willis, Mitred Abbeyes, vol. I. p. 206. In l. 31. r. Edmundi.
21. Reginaldi.] Q. whether this daughter of Reginald Lord Grey (here written Graa) of Wilton occurs any where else; or if the time of his death be elsewhere mentioned? Compare Dugdale, Bar. vol. I. p. 714.
22. Germyne.] This anchorite was no nobleman, but an ecclesiastic.
25. Stapulae.] staple (Spelman's Glossary), there being a wool-staple here.
 See p. 5. l. 11.
30. Capella,] potius capella', i. e. capellam.
31. Edwardi.] Q. Edmundi; for see on lin. 19.
33. Cust'] Custode.
2. 1. Imprimis.] Here begin the expences.
infra,] f. inter.

* These torches, it is conceived, were made of wax, which in ordinary cases were let out by the church, and charged to the party according to the consumption at the moment. This appears in the York Churchwardens' Accompts, where wax is charged. EDIT.

- P. 2. l. 2 Comptaōis,] computationis, which occurs not in Spelman or Du Fresne.
3. Mut,] mutton.
7. Randolf's,] Q. Randal's alley ?
12. Chales,] a chalice; so p. 9. l. 28.
St R<sup>d</sup> Wydevile,] probably youngest son of Richard Earl Rivers. Dugdale, Bar. vol. II. p. 231—233.
14. Antiphoners,] books used in the Romish service, containing the Antiphonæ (i. e. chanting, or responsive singing). Spelman. See Antiphonarius.
20. Sistern,] members of some female gild, or sisterhood, in the management of these churchwardens; see p. 3. l. 20; perhaps St. Mary; see p. 4. l. 41; p. 5. l. 20; p. 6. l. 23. 36; many gilds here; p. 7. l. 26. 28. 32. 34; p. 8. l. 5.
21. A priory of Black monks in Berkshire.
28. John Fogge, knight,] of Repton, parish of Ashford, Kent. Hasted's History of Kent, vol. III. p. 260. Philpot, p. 56.
30. Caxton,] our famous old printer. See p. 3. l. 24. 43; p. 5. l. 15.
33. Pik,] Pitt, grave*. Pytte in next line, & alibi. So in the English Psalms. 6s. 8d. was the customary fee.
34. W<sup>m</sup> Alyne,] See p. 3. l. 12.
35. Church-yard,] Preaching in church-yards was common now; witness St. Paul's crosses.
37. St Erasmus,] bishop and martyr; a saint in great request here. See p. 3. l. 42. There is (or was) St. Erasmus's chapel in the abbey. See Crull's History of the Abbey. The altar seems to have been without the church.
41. Conviete house,] for such perhaps as had been in arms against the King. See p. 7. l. 18.
3. 4. St Marg' and St Kat',] images in the church. St. Margaret was the patron saint; the image of whom was to be in every church. Lyndwood, p. 253, ed. Oxon. See p. 10. l. 9. So on restoration of Popery, in the reign of Queen Mary, it was put up again; p. 14. l. ult.
7. Stoncr,] See p. 5. l. 13.
12. Alyn,] Newcourt, vol. I. p. 608. There seems to be some mistake in calling him Daniel; perhaps Dane, as p. 6. l. 15. See before, p. 2. l. 34.
17. Feretre isle,] Q. can it mean where the bier or biers were kept? or where the shrine stood † ?
21. Harry Sharp,] He occurs not in Newcourt, vol. I. p. 747.
24. Caxton,] See p. 2. l. 30.
St Gregory,] Gregory the Great, whose image, we may suppose, was in the church; see line 30, where it is written Pety. A Piety was a bank, or box, for the poor.

* Pits and knells continue to this day customary articles in the churchwardens accounts of St. Bride's. EDIT. † Most probably the shrine, which, presumably, was inclosed by iron rails, commonly called ferretes. EDIT.

 43. Caxton.] See p. 2. l. 30.
 ult. S<sup>t</sup> Cornelius.] There was a fraternity of St. Cornelius in St. Margaret's church at Westminster. See a pardon granted to them, Brit. Top. vol. I. p. 772, 773. The word licence, p. 4. l. 10, 11, alibi, may mean permission or leave to lend them.
4. 1. Grey of Wilton.] If this were Lady Grey, she occurs not in Dugdale.
 2. Lady Billing.] For this great benefactress to the church of St. Margaret, see Newcourt, p. 721.
 3. De Word,] relatives of Wynken, the printer. Ames, Typographical Antiquities, p. 79.
 5. Mr. Lacy.] Lady Billing married a Mr. Lacy to her third husband; and if you will suppose she erected that monument for her three husbands (Weever, p. 493. Newcourt, p. 721.) in Lacy's life-time, no improbable supposition, this may be the person.
Lord of Dudley.] John Sutton. Dugdale, Bar. vol. II. p. 216; and see below, p. 5. l. 23.
 12. Edmund.] The child dying at a year old, this probably was some distribution of money at his birth or death.
 19. Owen Tudor,] third son of Owen Tudor and Queen Katharine, a monk of Westminster. Sandford, p. 285. 293. This is a very curious article. He was buried probably in the abbey.
 21. Faulks Hall,] now Vaux Hall.
 23. Mendyne,] the pronunciation of mending.
 24. Flour,] floor.
Rents,] f. Abyngdon rents.
 25. for four] torches.
 26. Anner,] almoner. This perhaps was some distribution of money, on occasion of Prince Arthur's wedding.
 28. College money.] The sum being so large, it should mean collected money.
 29. Dragons,] ensigns of the family of Tudor, then on the throne.
 30. Kelby,] a priest probably.
 40. Pynson.] Ames's Typographical Antiquities, p. 111.
5. 1. Simon.] Q. whether he occurs elsewhere?
 4. Clifton.] Ob. 28 H. VII. 1506. Thoroton, p. 55.
 6. Selerer,] celarer.

* Northumberland-house stands on the site of a cell of St. Mary de Ronceval, dissolved by Henry VIII. EDIT.

 27. W<sup>m</sup> Balard,] See p. 8. l. 19.
 32. Ancre,] See p. 1. l. 7.
 42. Said church,] It is difficult to say by what title our churchwardens received this money.
6. 4. Curate,] nominated by the abbey of Westminster.
 6. Vampage,] See below, l. 20; and p. 10. l. 33.
 15. Buckfast,] the Cistercian abbey of Buckfastre, Devon. Tanner, Not. p. 91. infra, p. 7. l. 13.
 20. A pax,] called by Archbishop Winchelsea ofculaterium (Lyndwood, p. 252. ed. Oxon.), a crucifix substituted to be kissed at mass, in lieu of the antient ofculum pacis.
 21. S<sup>t</sup> Margaret finger,] This must be a valuable acquisition to this church. St. Margaret was Queen of Scotland, died 1093, and her festival was 10 June.
 24. Brethren,] See p. 2. l. 20.
 25. Festfull,] festival.
 28. Aynsworth,] Dr. Henry, who died 1537. Newcourt, vol. I. p. 502. infra p. 7. l. 7. 20.
 29. Rys ap Thomas,] knight of the Garter. Fuller's Worthies, in Carmarthen, p. 27.
 31. Juxson,] probably grandfather of the Archbishop William Juxon. Wood, Athen. vol. II. col. 1144.
 33. L<sup>d</sup> Cardinal] Wolfey.
 34. Lord's place,] York-house, or Whitehall.
 36. Lady lands,] See p. 2. l. 20. ad infra, l. 38.
 40. Rushes,] used in summer for coolness*, both in churches and great houses. See p. 12. l. 10.
ult. Boyling alley,] Q. Bowling alley, by Dean's yard? Survey of London and Westminster by Parish Clerks, p. 271.
7. 2. Box money,] Q. if of the gilds? See l. 16. & p. 8. l. 5.
 7. Aynsworth,] See p. 6. l. 28.
 13. Morley,] infra, p. 33. & supra, p. 6. l. 8. She appears to have died in 1524, p. 9. l. 17.
 19. Legh,] infra, l. 42.
 20. Aynsworth,] See p. 6. l. 28.
 21. Bishop,] See p. 8. l. 3.
 24. Rouncycwall,] See p. 3. l. 33.
 30. St. Cornelius,] See p. 3. l. ult. and p. 9. l. 21.
 33. Morley,] See line 13.

* Rather used both for warmth and ornament in winter, both in churches, and in halls of entertainment in palaces, and great houses. EDIT.

- P. 7. l. 34. Watir,] the pronunciation of Walter.
35. Rode loft.] This, I think, was commonly placed between the choir and chancel; perhaps there might be two here.
43. Legb,] supra, l. 19. Mr. here is rather a tautology.
2. 3. Bisshop.] See p. 7. l. 21.
7. Barneston,] for the steeple. See l. 10.
11. Pylage,] perhaps piling or stowing the stones in the barge.
13. S<sup>t</sup> Katryn port,] probably St. Catharine's wharf.
14. Crispanyan day,] Crispinus & Crispinianus day, 25 October.
15. Scala celi,] in imitation of the scala celi at St. Peter's, Rome.
17. May game] The sports ended, the children, we may suppose, collected money from the spectators, and made this offering to the church out of it.
18. Borough.] Thomas Lord Borough, knight of the Garter, married Margaret, daughter of Thomas Lord Roos of Kendal, and died before 29 May, 1495. Dugdale, Baronage, vol. II. p. 288.
19. Balard.] See p. 5. l. 27.
20. Pitt.] The charging 17*s.* 4*d.* is very high. See p. 3. l. 33.
26. Lord Rede,] perhaps Sir Robert Read, chief justice of the Common Pleas. Kimber, Baronage, vol. II. p. 179.
28. Monstre,] a show-glass. Cotgrave, French Dictionary.
29. Pondre,] weight.
42. Rys ap Thomas,] See p. 6. l. 29.
9. 4. Man,] servant.
7. Herst clothe,] hearse cloth.
10. Hallowd.] Q the occasion of this new consecration; perhaps in the repairs mentioned in line 15?
13. Morley.] See p. 7. l. 13.
19. Judacis,] i. e. Judases, for some pageant or interlude.
21. Cornellis-houfe,] belonging probably to the gild of St. Cornelius. See p. 7. l. 30.
22. Condett,] conduit.
23. Pales-gate,] palace at Westminster.
28. Cbales.] See p. 2. l. 12.
36. Skelton.] John Skelton the poet. See the editor's preface to his works, edit. 1736. He was then in sanctuary at the abbey.
- ult. Wykers for the quere,] wiekers, or rushes, for the choir, or quire.
10. 3. Parden,] i. e. pardoner.
6. Hay Crose.] Q where this place was? V. infra, p. 11. .. 23. Q. High Cross.
7. Hencheman,] an attendant, or rather a page.
8. Mette,] meat. Thef,] thief. Stalle,] stole. Pyx,] in this the host was placed when carried to a distance.
10. S<sup>t</sup> Margarett's tabernacle.] See p. 3. l. 4.
16. Almsboufe,] founded by Margaret, mother of Henry VII. Newcourt, vol. I. p. 721. Stowe, by Strype, vol. II. p. 634. 641. 642.
18. Ishype.] John Iship. See Newcourt, vol. I. p. 717.
19. Wynkefeld,] wife perhaps of Sir Anthony Wingfield.

- P. 10. l. 22. Surplices for parish clerks (so I understand it), and the sexton is extraordinary*.

37. Dawbneis,] of the Scotch family of Stewart †. Crawford, p. 257.
38. Cbalis.] As chalices were often presents to churches, in great churches they had many of them, and could let them out to hire.
39. To registre.] This was the first register ordered by Cromwell, Vicar General.
43. Lady Ancrefs.] See p. 1. l. 7. As the corporas cloths for the covering of the hofts were faced linen, it was very proper to put them to be washed into the hands of an anchorefs, or religious woman, who was paid for it.
11. 2. Injunclion.] Burnet, Reform. p. 249. They paid for it, it seems, at twice. So below, p. 13. l. 16.
4. King's arms.] This was the first time they were put up in churches. The King's arms, which are generally placed over the entrance of the chancel from the body of the church (or choir) are supposed to have superceded the rood.
Privy seals] of Thomas Cromwell, Earl of Essex.
6. Chapelle] within the parish of St. Margaret's, as line 12.
7. Vifitors.] Q. of this visitation?
10. Old place,] or palace, perhaps Westminster, the King being removed to Whitehall.
18. Mr. Chidley,] made serjeant at law 32 H. VIII. Dugdale, Chron. Ser. p. 85.

34. Note.] article, or covenant.

* The Pascal, a term which occurs independently in p. 96, and p. 259, and elsewhere, seems to mean the large TAPER, or consecrated CANDLE, placed on or before the high altar at Easter. Pascal TAPERS are expressly mentioned, p. 140. l. 8. and l. 15. In Batteley's edition of Sonner's Antiquities of Canterbury, the Pascal TAPER is described to have weighed 300 lbs.; and at Westminster abbey, A. D. 1557, its weight was the same. [See Stryp's Memorials, vol. III. p. 445.] When, therefore, the Pascal is mentioned in these accounts, the word taper or candle was an implication well known. To support this candle, one may easily believe that timber, &c. as in p. 96, were necessary. EDIT.

† See p. 190. l. pen. where we read of distes whereon the candlesticks stood before the altars. EDIT.

‡ Or may not this mean what is now called pointing? EDIT.

§ Perhaps the corporax which covered the host. The altar-cloth was not, however, the same as the corporax. EDIT.

 13. Solare,] gallery.
 17. Bileigh,] Premonstratensian abbey in Essex.
 157. 11. Battilments,] payments. There is some doubt of the origin of a batteler at Oxford. Perhaps he is one, who, not being upon the foundation, and consequently having no account kept regularly for him, pays daily, and instantly, for what he eats and drinks.
 21. Graunte,] Q. what the nature of this grant?
 158. 20. Bafen of our Lady,] Q. see l. 21. 29. This seems to relate to the rood-loft.

 14. Stoke,] perhaps value of it.

W I G T O F T.

195. 1. Positores,] i. e. prepositores, written, or should be written, ppositores.
Prepositours, 22 Edw. IV. at North Wingfield, co. Derby, and 29 H. VI.
 8. Sern.] This is interpreted in the note senior; and he was probably the elder; but, as the scribe was aware of the distinctive expression of elder, see line 12, I should think it rather means fermier, agricultural.
 11. Master Bale.] Could this be the famous John Bale? The title master denotes pre-eminence; and the date 1449 accords very well.
 18. Eyb,] i. e. eth, which may be bath, or perhaps oweth.
 20. Said.] He is not mentioned before.
 196. 3. Ay on gode ffryday,] perhaps as on Good Friday.
 7. Countt,] account. Chaunte, l. 38.
 16. A rusb,] rushes, a part for the whole. See the price.
 21. Moone,] money.
 30. Yomen leyght,] given by the yeomen; or perhaps young men, batchelors. Again, p. 197.
 197. 7. Byng,] buying.
 37. Lyncon,] Lincoln.
 199. 21. May lyght.] Again, l. 24. perhaps for May-day.
 200. 2. Whefyng,] perhaps washing, as p. 203.
 201. 31. Zayd, : saïd.
 202. 22. Choynt,] joint. See p. 197.
 24. Stage,] f. a young thing of the colt kind.
 203. 14. Sholar,] f. shotar, i. e. belfounder; to shote is to cast.
 20. Sauyier,] seems to mean folder.
 204. 11. Awolm.] This is a surname in the parish. See p. 210.

* See p. 181, where the basterer is immediately mentioned after the person who turned the spit. EDIT.

- F. 205. l. 12. Kyrton,] in Holland, Lincolnshire.
 32. Cayke wark,] f. kirk or church work. See l. 10.
 206. 11. Co' per xpi even,] Corpus Christi is Thursday after Trinity-Sunday; so that, if Midsummer-day fell upon Friday, the even or feast would be on Corpus Christi day, a great festival; so the fast of Midsummer-day was kept on Wednesday, and not on Corpus Christi day.
 207. 21. Harygus,] perhaps a proper name, Hary Gus.
 24. Ad vincula S<sup>i</sup> Petri,] 1 August.
 208. 12. Kye,] The plural of cow, often used in Derbyshire.
 28. Helpyng,] mending, as l. 35. and p. 209. l. 6. 18. & alibi sæpè.
antepen. Bowstryng,] bolstering. Q. what is bolstering a bell? q. if the same as trussing?
 209. 2. Bettyng,] same as scholyng, p. 106. l. 1. 1. but, q. what that means?
 210. 2. Pooley,] perhaps pulley.
 211. 23. Gemals,] hinges, called jimmers in Yorkshire.
 212. 12. Wryght,] a carpenter.
 215. 1. Coneng,] f. cov'eng, covering; probably in Lent-
 216. 4. Pexuter,] probably sodder, as below.
 217. 21. Barner,] f. banner.
 32. Byll,] perhaps assessment.

STATIONERS COMPANY.

221. 4. Boke,] charter of incorporation. See p. 228. l. 19.
 11. Lymnyng,] f. illuminating initial and other letters.
 222. Stone Cruffy's,] See p. 227. l. 33. perhaps crewets. See cruse of water, 1 Sam. xxvi. 11, 12. Φακος, LXX; scyphus, Vulg.; honey, 1 Kings, xiv. 3. Σταμνος, LXX; vas, Vulg.; oil, 1 Kings, xvii. 12. 14. Καψακη, LXX; lecythus, Vulg.; water, 1 Kings, xix. 6. Καψακη, LXX; vas, Vulg.; water for salt, 2 Kings, ii. 20. Υδρισκη, LXX; vas, Vulg.
 223. 7. Epycrise,] Hippocras.
 15. A Ryse,] i. e. Arise. The first words of the ballad, now probably lost. William Pickering was a member of the Stationers company, who printed only ballads himself, and was fined 16*d.* for printing one without licence 1567. See Herbert's Ames, p. 1315.
 16. They dined in the hall once in a quarter.
 224. 13. Spynts,] Q. see p. 227. l. 16.
 18. Carfaye,] Kerfey.
To garde,] to bind, ornamentally.
 21. Crosses,] badges, to distinguish the several companies.
antepen. Blacke bylles,] Strype, Life of Parker, p. 275.
 226. 14. Crestes,] So again, p. 227. l. 1.
 16. Hall payffe,] So again, l. 29. Q. the baut pas, where the upper table stood, or the canopy over the upper table?
 227. l. 5. Courte cubberte,] So again, p. 227. l. 1. Q. a low, or short cupboard?

- P. 227. l. 16. Spents.] Q. spynts. See p. 224. l. 13.
 28. Leppe,] perhaps a lip, as it was for drinking.
 36. A geste.] So p. 228. l. 13. seems to mean a thrall, or frame of wood, a joist, or stand.

INVENTORY OF A TAVERN, A. D. 1612.

229. 7. Graves wine.] Q. also, l. 16. and 18. Perhaps vin de Grave, a French wine.
 18. Alligante,] Alicant, a city in Spain.
 28. Court cubbord,] a cupboard, answering to what was since called a beaufet. The court-cupboard is mentioned in Romeo and Juliet, act I. scene 4. See the note in the edition by Johnson and Steevens. It was a moveable piece of furniture. See p. 227. l. 5.
 230. 18. Drinking towels.] Q. mufflers?
 231. 1. Creepers.] These were of this form  to lay the fuel or wood on. See Gent. Mag. vol. LVIII. p. 687. 791. 848. vol. LIX. p. 108. When these creepers had ornamental fronts they were called dogs, from resembling those animals in a standing posture; and it is believed are still termed in Kent, and elsewhere, when wood is used for fuel in gentlemen's houses.
 32. Pottengers,] porringers, I suppose. Surely, pottengers is best, a corruption of pottagers.
 37. Coffen,] any thing to receive meat, &c. to be baked. Glossary to Forme of Cury, p. 131.
 232. 12. Candlesticke plate,] a plate whereon the candlestick stood. See before, p. 260. This interpretation agrees also with l. penult. It was usually made of pewter.
ult. Shovinge-tables.] They had formerly at inns a very long table, called a shovel-board, on which the players were to slide brass weights of two or three ounces (the parties having each three of them); and no bad exercise it was in rainy weather. (See Walton's Angler.) They had the shovel-board also in the great halls of private houses; and I have played on them often; but these being in the barre could not be of that kind, unless we may suppose them to have been of smaller dimensions. S. P.

* * Dr. Pegge observes, that "the receipts and disbursements in these parish-accounts (and he believes in most others) shew that it must be difficult at the passing them to strike a balance. We discover in them many clergy and other persons of note not to be found elsewhere; and more particulars of some that are already known. In the first of these accompts (those of St. Margaret's, Westminster), e perpetually occurs in the Latin page, where we may be sure, it was always e. The language and orthography of the following pages also are by no means those of the reign of Henry IV. but have been modernized, if not translated, by the transcriber. The sums of money too are all in Arabic figures, which were but little then in use; whereas the numerals in the body of the respective articles are all Roman."

** Against the North wall of St. Martin Outwich new church, under a triple stone canopy with nich-work over the arches, and a cornice of oak-leaves, is an altar-tomb, with three shields in quatrefoils in front.: on the front and end edge whereof, when in the old church, was,

“ ——— Aldermannus ejusdem civitatis et Katerina uxor ejus qui quidem Hugo obiit vij<sup>o</sup> die mensis Septembris anno d<sup>ni</sup> mill<sup>mo</sup> ve<sup>o</sup> quorum a<sup>l</sup>'abus propicietur Deus. Amen.”

This was erected to the memory of Hugh Pemberton.

In re-building the church, that part of the inscription on the end edge, from ve<sup>o</sup> to the end, has been lost. What remains of the former part will, when the church is finished, be re-placed. The whole tomb, when cleansed from the different coats of paint with which it has been covered, appears to be of beautiful shell marble.

The foundation and statutes, and the names of the masters and wardens, from 1442 to 1548, are in the Cott. Lib. Vitell. F. xvi. 2. 3. Tanner, p. 325. The church of St. Augustine "de Papey infra Bishopsgate" stood in Camomile-street, and was destroyed in the great fire. The burial-ground purchas'd of this fraternity still remains in use in Camomile-street. "In some languages priest are called Papes." Stowe, p. 156. Papa is the appellation of patriarchs and bishops in the Eastern church (Du Fresne); and in Russia the term is still applied to priests.

RECEIPTS AND DISBURSEMENTS OF THE CANONS OF THE PRIORY OF ST. MARY IN HUNTINGDON, FROM MICHAELMAS 1517 TO MIDSUMMER 1518.

(Transcribed from the Original at BUCKDEN, by the Rev. Mr. MANNING, vicar of Godelming. Communicated by Mr. GOUGH.)

[EUSTACE DE LOVETOT, about the year 1140, as in Tanner's Notitia Monastica, built here a priory of Black Canons, to the honour of St. Mary; it was endowed at the Suppression with revenues of 187*l.* 13*s.* 8*d.* as in Dugdale; and 232*l.* 7*s.* as in Speed; though in another valuation, according to Dugdale, with 241*l.* 11*s.* 4*d.*; and, according to Speed, with 256*l.* 1*s.* 3*d.* It consisted of a prior, eleven canons, and thirty-four servants. Henry VIII. in 1592, granted the site to Sir Richard Cromwell, alias Williams, as he did also the small convent of Hinchingsbrook, which Sir Richard converted into a seat for his family, who dwelt there till they sold Hinchingsbrook to Montague, the first Earl of Sandwich, in the reign of Charles II. I suppose before 1660.

Thomas Forte, Bishop of St. Chad in Ireland, held this priorship in commendam with his bishoprick, 1492; and voided it by death, 1503, when Gregory Norwich, prior of Rishemead, or Ruffshmede, co. Bedford, was chosen prior 1503. His successor, about the year 1528, was

William Gidding, on whose resignation, on April 13, 1532,

Hugh Whitwick, the last prior, was admitted.

In a manuscript in the Cotton Library is the following account of the names of the religious, and inventory of the goods of this convent:

Hugh Whitwick, prior, to whom was allotted, on the surrender, July 17, 1539, a pension for life of 26*l.* 16*s.* 4*d.* which he received anno 1553, being then living, and unprovided for. William Gidding, late prior, on his resignation had an allowance of 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* per annum, and meat and drink, and fuel for his chamber. He was living at the surrender anno 1639, and aged 60. The other monks then were, Michael Broughton, aged 70; John Willingham, aged 59; Thomas Southowe, aged 54; Nicholas Allington, aged 43; Robert Huntingdon; John Rushington; William Wardboys; John Streetham, aged 33; James Huntingdon, aged 29; William Ramfey, aged 30; who were returned to be all of them priests of good consideration and report, desirous to continue in their religion.

The inventory of the goods was then returned as follows:

Besides the four present parishes in Huntingdon, viz. St. Mary, All Saints, St. John Baptist, and St. Benedict's, of which the churches of the two first are only standing, there were these other churches, St. Martin, St. Edmund, St. Andrew, St. Peter, St. Botolph, St. George. St. Botolph, St. Martin, St. Edmund, and St. Andrew, occur in Henry the Third's time. St. Peter's was pulled down about the beginning of Queen Elizabeth's reign. * This house, originally built as a palace for Peter Earl of Savoy on his coming into England to visit his niece the Queen of Henry III, became afterwards part of the possessions of the dukes of Lancaster. In the rebellion of 1381, under Jack Straw, the tumultuous populace, from hatred to John of Gaunt, burnt the palace, then esteemed to be the fairest structure in the nation, with much rich furniture, and other things of value, particularly charters, evidences, and MSS. After which, the whole of this magnificent building lay long in ashes and rubbish, till the time of King Henry VII; who, by his last will, directed it to be re-built, not now for an house to be inhabited by nobility as it was before, but for a charitable foundation, to harbour 100 poor people, sick or lame, or travellers, to be furnished with lodging, food, firing, and attendance, for a certain time, dedicating it to St. John Baptist, and endowing it royally. All this was duly performed by King Henry VIII. who caused this inscription to be placed over the gate:

“ Hospitium hoc inopi turbe Savoia vocatum, Sepimus Henricus fundavit ab imo solo!”

The letters patent for the foundation were dated 5 July, 4 Henry VIII; and the statutes for its regulation June 20, 15 Henry VIII. The first master was William Holgyll, priest, who had superintended the building of the house; the four first chaplains, John Sutton, doctor in decretis, who was appointed vice-master; Thomas Thornegh, who was sacrist; Alexander Palmer, LL. B. was confessor; and John Hoode, M. A. hospitaller. Under these, were four assistant chaplains, called altarista; and, among other lay officers, an ortulanus, or keeper of the garden, who was to be a single man, of discreet life, and at least thirty years old.

† This was the hospital of St. David's, at Kingsthorp, near Northampton, founded in 1200, for the reception of pilgrims, and poor and indigent sick persons. The site and lands of this hospital were granted, 4 and 5 Philip and Mary, to the Hospital of the Savoy. See Tanner; and Bridges, History of Northamptonshire, vol. I. p. 416.

‡ The surgeon was to be sufficienter auditus; and of good practice within the city of London.

The state of this house, as it was reported to the king and his council, 5 Edw. VI.

“The value and issues of the lordships, manors, lands, &c. the last year, amounted to 54*l.* 5*s.* 5*d.* ob.—Reprizals, fees, payments, expences, reparations, &c. 746*l.* 7*s.* 7*d.* ob. q.—So that the expences exceeded the revenue by 205*l.* 4*s.* 2*d.*

“Numerus Pauperum Ægrotantium.”

“The numbers of the poor refreshed within the said hospital, from Michaelmas, anno 4 Edward VI. to the 24th of September, anno 5 Edward VI. of sick and impotent people, besides others nightly lodged there, 8339.

“The yearly fees and salaries briefly stood thus: to the master of the hospital, 30*l.*; to the four chaplains, 16*l.*; two conductors, 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; thirteen sisters, 52*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; ten servants, 22*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; other officers, as physician, surgeon, auditor, and steward, 28*l.*; expences upon poor people, 133*l.* 6*s.* 4*d.* ob.

“Besides the damage this house received by the first master of all, the Savoy was become ruinous, and in a very declining condition; which inclined the King, upon a motion made to him by the city of London, to dissolve it; as he did; and granted the beds and furniture to the city, for the use and benefit of the poor, to be harboured at Bridewell; and settled much of the revenues of the said hospital upon it; so that the charity did not cease hereby, but was removed*.”

* The revenues of this hospital were seized on by Edward VI. in 1547, as directed to superstitious uses; but it was founded anew in 1557 by Queen Mary, who incorporated and endowed it; all the court ladies and maids of honour, in imitation of the Queen's charity, contributing their parts and shares towards it, by sending sufficient stores of beds and bedding, and other things necessary, for furniture of the rooms where the poor were to be harboured. In Queen Elizabeth's time, a great many rogues and idle beggars sheltered themselves here, upon pretence of being needy, or lame, or sick, and to want relief, according to the order of the foundation; which was to receive Claudicantes, Ægrotantes, & Peregrinantes. In the reign of King Charles II. it was made use of in good part as a garrison; and soldiers were here lodged; their beds being placed as they usually are in hospitals. In 1702 it was finally dissolved. See Bibl. Top. Brit. p. 238; Cotton MSS. Cleopatra, C. V. 1.; and Strype's Stowe, vol. I. p. 211.

A note

A note of the charges Sir Edward Stafford demaunded, every 3 monethes, for intelligence monie; and the words of his warrant were these, as followeth, subscribed under his owne hand, to Mr. Secretarie Walsingham:

For so muche monies by me disborsed, for three monethes, as namely, Aprill, May, and June, for necessarrie and especiall causes, for her Matie's service in Fraunce, subscribed by me for iij monethes before receited, untill the . . . of this instant moneth _____ cxxxviii.

This rate he demaunded at his goinge out of service.

And he demaunded at his first enterance to the service but  $\frac{xx}{iii}$  l.

Wares were the causes for thre moneths: by the same reason you may set down more then he did for his iij monethes.

* He was dean of Salisbury in June 1620; and subscribes his last account, with his trusty servant Johnson, 15 Jan. 1629, John Bowle, Dec. S. v. m., Rossini. E. & E. He was consecrated Bishop of Rochester Feb. 7 following. What particular services he did to Ralph Winterton, fellow of King's college, do not appear: but his dedication to him of his translation of Gerard's Meditations, printed at Cambridge in 1631, seems to have arisen from the overflowings of gratitude. In this, among other matters, he says, "What Vespasian professed in word to Apollonius, the late Reverend Dean of Salisbury hath performed in deed to me; the gates of his liberality and hospitality have never been barred against scholars and strangers." He died Oct. 9, 1657; and was buried, as appears from the entry in the College of Arms, in St. Paul's cathedral,

(1) On Good Friday an interdiction ensued in the Romish church, and all the fires were totally extinguished. The charcoal here mentioned was therefore provided on Easter-eve, for renewing the fires on Easter day; when, however, they were kindled again, it was done by pure elemental fire produced by a flint and steel, and not from unhallowed embers. From this fire the Pascal-taper was also lighted.

Thus Hospinian de Festis Christianorum, p. 88, edit. 1674: "Ignem veterem omnem in templis extingunt, & novum ex chalybe eliciunt ac consecrant. Deinde candellam ceream magnam, quam cereum Paschalem nominant, in templis hoc die ferunt, eumque benedicunt, & de igne illo novo accendant."

(2) St. Royk, St. Roche (Aug. 16). Q. why commemorated in particular? There is Roche abbey in the West riding of the county of York, which does not take its name from the saint, but from its situation on a rock, and is dedicated to the Virgin Mary. Tanner.—The writing probably means making a new copy of the music appropriated to the day.

(3) Tonykills, tunics. The tunica was a garment worn by the sub-deacon assisting the priest at a mass. Staveley on Churches, 187.—The price here mentioned extends no farther than the workmanship in making them up, and adding the fringes.

(4) Tapitts, tapers; for every candle, be its size what it would, was then called a taper: even the ALTAR-candle at Canterbury, though its weight was 300 lb. was termed the Paschal-taper. See before, p. 260, in note *.—N. B. that this charge of 4 pence is for making the tapers when the church provided the wax, whereas the price of a single new taper (as in art. 19) was 5 pence.

(5) The church was then under some repair, as farther appears below in article 16. The pyner seems to mean the bricklayer, or mason, who was employed in this work. Pyning has been mentioned before, p. 98. Here, however, it most probably means what we now call pointing walls.

(6) This and the preceding article shew the price of labour at the time. The difference between the proportionate pay of the pyner and the joyner (in conjunction with the articles 9, 10, and 11), seems to arise from the circumstance of the nails (in the latter case) having been provided by the parish, and which bore a much higher price than plaster, as appears from art. 34.

	(17)	P <sup>d</sup> for 2 Strynkyls	—	0	0	1

(7) Walle Teylle; that is wall-tile. Tile was the generical term, and prevails in Yorkshire to this day, meaning bricks, in contra-distinction to our specific word tile for the roofs of houses, which is there also still called tback-tile. In the Anglo Saxon, theac-tigil is a roof tile. Somner.

(8) Jontters, joints, i. e. hinges.

Ambre, ambry; a cup-board in general, as well for keeping vessels as provisions. Bailey.

(9) (10) (11) These seem all to be terms used for nails of different sorts. Sharplings one would suppose to mean brads or sprigs. The stotfeyme, art. 52, are there expressly called nails; and skafyme appears again in article 49.

(12) For the term whitted, we refer to article (53).

(13) Sir is well known to have then been the title usually given to a priest. The receipt of 4s. paid by Sir Robert, for strewing the church, we can hardly suppose to have been his own personal expence; but rather, that the money (which was then a considerable sum) passed, through his hands to the churchwardens, from the patron, which at that time (1520) was the rich abbey of St. Mary at York.

(14) Kyrchoys, kerchiefs, to be fold, and the value applied to the repair of the church. The kerchiefs were then very large (perhaps as long and wide as a woman's hood now worn at funerals), and possibly often embroidered, or highly ornamented. We meet with a similar article below (35), but more decidedly expressed, relating to a girdle given by a woman, which either was fold for, or redeemed at, the price of 6s.

(15) The 4s. here paid for hallowing (or consecrating) the chalices, &c. might partly consist of incidental travelling charges, and of fees given to the officers of the bishop's chapel. Expences, in general terms, are charged on a like occasion in the accompts of Walberwick, p. 185.—In the accompts of the churchwardens of St. Mary's at Cambridge, is a charge of 8d. ob. "for the new hallowing or reconcyling of our church, being interdicted at the buryall of Mr. Bucer, and the charge therunto belonging, frankincens, and sweet perfumes for the sacrament, and herbes, &c. Baker, in Harl. MSS. 7044. p. 184.—The corporax (corporal or corporas, and in Latin called corporale five dominicale) was a cloth of the finest linen, in which the host was laid upon the altar, in remembrance that Christ's body was wrapped in fine linen. Staveley on Churches, p. 194.

(16) Hemeches, images. Helping is a common term for mending or repairing any thing, at this day, in several counties of the Northern parts of England.

(17) Strynkills; little whisks used to sprinkle the holy water. To strinkil means to sprinkle in the Scottish language. Glossary to Gawen Douglas's Virgil.—"Strinkling light." Milton.—In the parish accompts of Lambeth (1523) is a payment for "a holy-water sprynkill." Lysons.

(18) Baldrege, baldrick (or bawdrick), signifies a belt or strap, in general; but here it means the thong by which, fastened by a buckle, the clapper of a bell is suspended. See Bailey's Dictionary, and Phillips's World of Words; in both which this particular use of the term is pointed at. See also before, p. 259.

(19) See article (4).

(20) The bead-rolls seem to have been let out for hire to the parish by the priest at two shillings per annum each; for, we find below, in the year 1533, that Sir Harry received four shillings for the use of one for two years. See a similar payment before, in p. 105. l. 9. The difficulty in this item seems to rest on the abbreviation D', which, from the proportion, appears to mean half the usual payment, viz. for one year (as was practised afterwards in article (26) and (36)); though, in article (58), it was again paid only at the end of two years, according to the common practice.

(21) This payment to the parish (for so the abbreviation Pyshe seems to mean) for Lady-mefs, or the mafs on the 25th of March, one would suppose, means alms given to the poor parishioners on that high festival.

(22) Ferme, for fern; called also bracken in Yorkshire, and in the South brakes. The use of it seems to have been for strewing the church in lieu of rushes, which probably bore a greater price.

(23) Such a specific fee for a burial is rather singular: but the church was in a state of reparation; and perhaps the deceased was a plasterer, and otherwise insolvent. It was an actual church due, and not a bequest.

(24) Sthyme. Q.

(25) Pyke, the pix. The vessel in which the host was carried when the priest visited the sick to administer the Sacrament to them.

(26) See article (20).

(27) Kilting belts. The same words occur again in article (38), and seem to mean no more than some ordinary coarse bandages, used for the purpose of tying things together. We meet with the term also in the Wigtoft accompts, p. 205, under the name of a tucking girdle, there written to king, as if it were two words; and in p. 94. l. ult. it is more explicitly written tukkin girdles.

The verb kilter in the Danish language signifies to bind; and the substantive kilting means a girding or tucking up. See Wolff's Danish Dictionary.—Douglas's Virgil has kiltit for tucked up. See the Glossary.—The large wrapping plaid of the Scots is called the kilting plaid.

(28) Mosfits, perhaps a corrupt spelling of mosfick; though we are left very open to conjecture. A mosfick, according to our lexicographers, means a stick, about a yard long, on which a painter leans his arm to steady it when at work. Hence it may be applied to any stick of similar dimensions, and the use be carried to other purposes.

In the instance before us it is expressly said to have been used in washing the corporas, a linen cloth. The mode of washing at that time was by bucking, in which process sticks (and poles) were employed to stir about the linen in the bucking-tub. The corporas was an hallowed appendage to the altar, all of which were prohibited from being touched by any but the officiating ministers; and particularly by the hands of women. Platina, in the Life of Pope Sixtus I.—As these sticks were provided by the church, we may conclude that the washing, under the above restriction, was confined to some subordinate officer of the church, and most probably to the sacristan, who had the care of all the utensils belonging to the church.

The corporas was so sacred that it was kept in a case appropriated to itself. See before, p. 242; in the Inventory of the Goods, &c. of Serjeant Keble. We may also refer to the Royal Wills, &c. published by Mr. Nichols; and to the Will of King Henry VII. printed 1775. Anonymous.

It is true, that in the accompts of St. Margaret's, Westminster, p. 10, the corporas, &c. appear to have been washed by a lady anchoress (as she is called) 1538; but she must be looked upon as a consecrated person, perhaps an ejected abbess from some dissolved monastery, who might be glad to undertake the office for a small sum, in aid of her other pittance.

(29) See article (4).

(30) See article (18). By the price, this baldrick must have been used for one of the larger bells.

(31) Gresse (written, by various authors, greece, grieze, grise, and grice,) means sometimes a flight of steps, or a stair-case; and at others simply a step. Compare with article (62).

(32) (33) See article (18).

(34) From the small price of the plaster (1½d.) one is led to suppose that a wanyon, the diminution of wain, might mean a wheel-barrow, or some such vehicle.

(35) See article (14).

(36) See article (20) (26).

(37) Dighting sometimes implies ornamenting, and at other times cleaning, to which latter we here incline; and by the stawyll (the stall), that the reading-desk is meant; for, at this time (1526) there was not much preaching.

(38) See article (27).

(39) Gyrs is suspected to mean grate; for, in Yorkshire, the letter r and its vowel are very frequently transposed, as they use girn for grin, brid for bird, brun for burn, &c. A grid-iron, in the Inventory of Sir Peter Frecheville's Chattels, is called, p. 234, a girde-iron. Say, it is apprehended, implies a saw, which occurs again in article (56). This is the pronunciation in Derbyshire; where also the common people use the word dray for draw. See the Wigtoft accompts, p. 198, where straw is written stray. Or the meaning may be geers to a saw, in general terms, such as are specified in article (56); and the price accords with it.

(40) To replace some supposed jewel that had been set in the breast of an image. We may reasonably conjecture that the image was that of St. Michael, the patron saint; and that, though the value of the piece of glass was no more than 1d. it was intended to supply the place of some original characteristic device, perhaps St. Michael and the devil, as usually represented.

(41) Frerer, a frater. Sequens, a sequence, which was an antiphonal service sung chant-wise between the priest and the people alternately. Sir John Hawkins, in his History of Music, vol. II, p. 248, says that the sequens was sung after the epistle had been read. In the Glossary to X Scriptores, it is confined to certain high festivals, viz. Easter, Whitsuntide, and Corpus Christi day. Hence, from the price here mentioned (4s.), one is induced to suppose that the charge is for a set of sequens for the whole year, which Staveley on Churches, p. 185, calls Liber Sequentiarum.

(42) Levys, leçons. A table of the lessons to be read in the Morning Service. Staveley, p. 184.—Trentylls, trentals, from the French trente; a service of thirty masses said or sung for the dead, or a service performed thirty days after their death. Staveley's Romish Horse-leech, p. 201. But Protestant writers do not perfectly decide whether they were all said together on the thirtieth day after the death of the party, or one on each day for thirty days in succession. This, however, possibly was governed by the direction of the person who left the stipend for the performance of them. See Burn's Ecclesiastical Law; and Sir John Cullum's History of Hawsted, p. 16.

(43) Fawt, the vat, or vessel which contained the holy water. It is called a stoup in p. 98; and in the Churchwardens' Accompts at Wigtoft it is again termed a fat (i. e. vat), and expressly said to have been made of stone, through which no part of the water could exude. Many of these receptacles for holy water are yet to be seen, projecting from the walls, at the entrance, and in other parts, of several old country churches.

(44) The best comment that we can make upon the first part of this obscure article is, that it seems to imply two original (or new) accompt-books, in which might be entered sums of money, or other donations, bequeathed or contributed toward furnishing the lights which were used on solemn occasions in the rood-loft, and before the image of the patron saint, &c. That there were such funds appears from articles (69), (70), (75), and (76), whence the collective body of the church sometimes drew money for particular public purposes.

What follows is so very unintelligible, that one has hardly courage enough to hazard a conjecture. Nevertheless, in these accompts, p. 190, among the utensils, &c. in the vestry of the church of Walberwick, among other towels of a finer sort (viz. diaper), we meet with hempyling towels. If then we may be at liberty to suppose that by these are meant towels of a coarser sort, wherein various things were promiscuously collected together occasionally, a hympyllment, or hemplement, may, without much force, be interpreted an inventory. This idea will lead us to another bold conjecture, and to imagine that the word howfit (which, in such case, must be considered as a plural, of which the common people in the North generally leave out the sign) may be a very corrupt spelling of the word effets, comprehending the vessels, vestments, linen, &c. appertaining to the church of St. Michael.

(45) Mavefey, Malmsey. This spelling comes nearer to orthography than our name of Malmsey; sey; for, Phillips (in his World of Words) tells us, that Malmsey "is a luscious wine, brought from Arwifum, in the island of Chio, now called Malvasia." It is written Malvesey in the Receipts, &c. of the Priory of Huntingdon, p. 295. By mayne brede (without going into the more antient distinctions of manchet, &c.) we may understand mean or middle bread, between the brown and the white, which is now known in the North by the name of whity-brown, called in Kent ravel-bread. There are the same terms for paper respectively, viz. whity-brown paper, and ravel paper.

N. B. Somnyng the vestments occurs twice in these accompts; but, as no charge is made, it may be supposed that some very trifling gratuity was given; and that by somnyng is meant airing those vestments not in constant use, when they were occasionally brought forward on the high festivals.

(46) See article (17).

(47) The candle for this solemnity seems to have been something larger than those before mentioned in article (19), as it exceeds each of them by the price of 1d. We here see the value of wax at the time.

(48) Loyfer; probably a lever, as the church was repairing.

(49) See article (9), (10), (11).

(50) A God's penny is an earnest paid to confirm an agreement or bargain, still known in Yorkshire, on ordinary occasions, though the term might be originally derived from concerns of the kind which were purely ecclesiastical. See before, p. 106, and the note. In Yorkshire it is also called, in common cases, the festing-penny, i. e. the fastening-penny, by which a bargain is struck, and the parties mutually bound. The word festing, as a corruption of fasteniug, occurs in the preceding Wigtoft accompts, p. 200, l. 29.

(51) It is not easy to guess at the meaning of "2 styks of 7 nyks," unless they may be supposed to imply two very narrow boards of seven inches in length or breadth, for the purpose of repairing some small matter. The charge is but  $1\frac{1}{2}d.$

(52) See article (9), (10), (11).

(53) A wit-word, and a queytbe-word, both which occur more than once in p. 77, and elsewhere, in the preceding accompts, seem to have the same meaning, and to imply a dictum, or verbal requisition of the dying party, that something should be given to the church after death*. The terms themselves import that the gift was of a nuncupative kind, and that it differed from a testamentary bequest. This distinction is very clear by what we meet with in p. 77, and p. 213, among the Wigtoft accompts, where the entry of the witword of one man is immediately followed by the legacy of another, in express terms of discrimination; the latter being given decidedly under the formality of a will. The purport of these viva voce donations was, to atone for tithes and oblations omitted, and were generally directed to be given to the high altar; but sometimes for particular purposes, as in article (12).

* These terms are both of Saxon derivation; the former from the old defective verb weest, wit, or wet, to know, or to make known; and the latter from qeyth, since written quotb, another old defective verb. Whence we have preserved to wit, and quotb be. See Gill's Logonomia Anglica, 2d edit. 4to, 1621, p. 64; and Bishop Lowth's Introduction to English Grammar, p. 105.

(54) (55) Something like this has appeared before, in the Wigtoft accompts, p. 213, but not so distinctly; for, here the month's mind is expressly divided into two celebrations, with a payment of five pounds of candles about the half-month day, and five more at the whole-month day. These instalments there is reason to believe were not uncommon, and have given rise to an expression still used in the Northern parts of England, where they not only say, "I have a month's mind to do so or so;" but also, "I have half a mind to do such a thing."

(56) A seye we have presumed, in article (59), to mean a saw. We therefore imagine that the girtt expresses the handle, fastened to the blade of the saw by a screw with a nut, or some such security here called a neyre. A knur is a knot of hard substance often found in timber. The word is teutonic. See Kilian in voce knorre. It may not, therefore, be improperly applied to the nut by which a screw is secured.

(57) By the rowyll is most probably meant the bead-roll or rosary, which consisted of a certain number of beads strung upon a rope, in common cases, every tenth of which beads was larger than the rest, and called a gaude. By these they could reckon the number of their invocations. The common beads were for Ave-Marias, and the gaudes for Pater-Nosters. Sir John Cullum's History of Hawtisd, pp. 16 and 17.

(58) See article (20), (26), (36), referring to this article.

(59) The word beling has been accounted for in article (16). The albe (as its name imports) was a long white garment, not unlike our surplice; but closed at the wrists. It was not only worn by the priests, but by the children belonging to the choir, as appears hereafter in article (83). As a remnant of this, our choristers wear surplices; as do the school-boys, on most of the royal foundations, upon Sundays, and other particular days.

(60) It is probable that this priest was famous for his skill in singing, and that he was retained for some particular occasion, though he might belong to another establishment; or rather, perhaps, for a certain season, as his pay was so considerable.

(61) This present of a pair of gloves could not be a personal compliment to Sir John Baitman from the churchwarden who inserted it, because it is charged to the parish; and of me should seem to mean by me, who made the payment, and presented the gloves officially. A similar case occurs in the same words, article (77).

(62) See article (51). Here greffe evidently means a stair-case; or at least a flight of a few steps.

(63) Fire-earth must mean either turf or peat, both which are still used as a cheap fuel in various parts of the North of England.

(64) Ledyng, leading, a general term for fetching, or carrying away, in Yorkshire. Ramell possibly means rubbish.

(65) The pax was a figure of Christ, most probably a crucifix, painted or carved, and fixed to a piece of wood or metal, which, after the mass, was tendered to all the people present to kiss. It was a substitute for the osculum pacis (which used to be personally given in token of peace), and called in Latin osculatorium. The custom, no doubt, was founded on the words of St. Paul, "Greet one another with an holy kiss."

By the lattron we suppose is meant a lantborn, which was furnished with lights at vespers.

[We here take the liberty of remarking, that the term boxvet, which has occurred in p. 211, l. 26, is used in some parts of Yorkshire to signify a lantborn, as it is likewise in Cumberland.]

(66) This confirms what has been said on article (15), that the sum there paid for halowing several parts of the furniture of the church was compounded of some incidental charges.

(67) See article (50). The God's penny we collect from a note on p. 106 (on the authority of Du Cange, in voc. Denarius Dei) was the property of the church, and probably distributed according to the custom of each particular establishment.

(68) (69) (70) These three items ought to be taken together, being receipts for money drawn from two funds for one purpose, and should be read thus: received "from the roid-light 4*l.*; and "from Seynt Seyth-light 4*l.*; to help to pay for the organs." The price of the organs tallies with the sum received, viz. 8*l.* The extra charge of carriage, &c. might be paid from the ordinary fund belonging to the church.

The roid doubtless means the rood. As to St. Seyth, or Syth, it has been supposed that St. Osyth, the patroness of the monastery of Chich (afterwards called by her name), was intended; but we do not, at present, discover the least connection between that religious house and the monastery of St. Mary at York, or any of its members. There was a St. Setbrid, who appears in some calendars, though she was still more remote, having been abbess of a small foundation in France. We leave it therefore undecided; though this saint, whoever it was, must have been held in much reverence, to have had an image lighted from a fund of its own.

(71) A pair of organs was the term at that time, when there were two kinds of organs, the one fixed, and the other portable, adapted perhaps to the size of the church, or to its revenues. See Sir John Hawkins's History of Music, vol. II. p. 447.—The last were probably divisible into two parts, and thence obtained the name of a pair. This continued to be the term in the reign of King James I. at the least, and had not increased in price, as appears from the Diary of Edward Allen, founder of Dulwich-college; which may be seen, under his article, in the "Biographia Britannica."

(72) By splents (or splints) we are inclined to suppose are meant spars, or, in general terms, bars of wood. Hence our word splinter, a fraction of a splint. To distinguish spars, or splints, from bars, it is probable, that, when they were used as uprights they were termed splints, and when they were placed horizontally they were called bars.

(73) Ponts, perhaps points, or large nails, what are now called holdfasts, to fix the splints; as the price id. per dozen differs so very much from any nails before mentioned.

(74) See article (72).

(75) By the keepers of this light we are inclined to understand the persons who had the charge of the money, &c. given to this particular light; for each light seems to have had its separate fund.

This sum was borrowed to assist the chamber of York, most probably in common with other churches, and was only a contribution of its quota; for, it is stated to have been given in aid, viz. to help it out of debt. The number of illuminations in the Romish church which were annually made, was very great, and occasioned a vast consumption of wax; while the contributions to support them were equally considerable, according to the value of money in those times. See the Wigtoft accounts of the year 1532, p. 219, 220, 226.

(76) This seems to have been a similar affair, and happened in the following year, 1538, at a time when the money had been previously destined to complete the usual and appropriated number of wax candles for a certain season.

N. B. The abbey and its dependencies had not fallen into the hands of the crown; for, it was not dissolved till 1540.

(77) Having now purchased an organ, the services were probably performed in a more solemn and striking manner, and those for the dead became particularly attended to. The gratuity to the person who played the organ was (as before, in the case of a celebrated singer) a pair of gloves. The wording of this article is to be understood in the same manner as article (61), being likewise charged as a parish-payment.

(78) See article (65). The revenues of this church must have been very small, or the sacred appendages very mean, when a pax for the high altar cost but 2d. One is charitably inclined to believe there is an error in the entry, and that the charge should have been for repairing the pax.

(79) We refer this to article (85), (86), and (87).

(80) Baldreges (or baldricks) first appear in article (18); to which this, and other intervening mention of them, is referred.

(81) The amis (amiculus, which see in the Latin Glossaries) was one of the vestments worn by the officiating priests, which was fastened about the neck in front by small cords, or in some other manner. If we understand this article right, it looks as if they were (in the case before us) fastened by a button, and a short strap called a tab, which contained a button-hole.

(84) The abbey of St. Mary had been diſſolved in the year 1540, and this article occurs two years after that, and about ſix years after the commencement of the Reformation, when proceſſions, as ſuperſtitious parades of the Romiſh church, except a very few, were aboliſhed. What remained ſhould ſcem to have been regiſtered, as ceremonials, in the books here ſpecified; though they might rather have been termed new books of proceſſions, than books of new proceſſions. Such books were called proceſſioners. See St. Martin Outwich, p. 272.

The kyreleſons mean thoſe ſhort ejaculatory verſicles, “Lord have mercy upon us;”—“Chriſt have mercy upon us;”—which were called by the antients a ſhort Litany, and in ſome liturgical books ſtill retain the Greek terms of Kyrie Eleeſon, and Chriſte Eleeſon. See Sparrow’s Rationale, p. 45, edit. 1722.—It is poſſible that in this little church, where they uſed only to be ſaid, they might now be accompanied by the organ, and that this charge was for copying the muſic into their books; for, in the old rubricks, they are directed to be ſaid or ſung. Wheatly, 273.

(85) (86) (87) To render theſe articles more compact, it may be obſerved, that by hamerryſ, in the laſt line, are meant ambries, cupboards, as in article (8), or cloſets, in which various things belonging to the church were depoſited.

The principal object is the “pulcure houſe” (which has been mentioned before in various places in this Collection), and ſeems to have been intended as a representation of the holy ſepulchre at Jeruſalem. This pageant was an annual exhibition in the Romiſh churches between Good Friday and Eaſter-day; and ſeems, in this caſe, to have been a temporary frame of wood (covered moſt probably with black), and furniſhed on the outſide with tapers, ſometimes called in theſe accompts ſepulchral-lights, and at other times hearſe-lights. This ſepulchre was watched, in imitation of the ſoldiers, for two nights. See the Abingdon accompts, p. 141, and the note. And it appears from article (87), now before us, that there was the figure of an angel, which, we may preſume, was ſuppoſed to announce the reſurrection on Eaſter-day.

It is in the memory of many now living, that, after the death of perſons of high rank, a hearſe, adorned with armorial enſigns, bannerols, penons, &c. was often placed over or near the grave, for a certain ſeaſon. In the concluding article of the preſent volume “the tymber hearſe for an Earle” is delineated.

That this hearſe was intended to represent the holy ſepulchre, we may refer to Dugdale’s Baronage, vol. II. p. 244, for a claule in the will of Thomas (Fienes) Lord Dacre, dated 1531. He directs that a tomb ſhould be erected in the pariſh church of Hurſt-Monceaux, on the North ſide of the high altar, wherenpon ſhould be placed the ſepulchre of our Lord; and alſo, that, to furniſh lights for the ſame ſepulchre, an hundred pounds ſhould be employed in tapers of ten pounds weight apiece, to burn about it, when an honeſt prieſt ſhould ſing there for his ſoul, by the ſpace of ſeven years.

A COLLECTION, to explain divers old WORDS, TERMS, and CUSTOMS, necessary to be understood by all those who desire knowledge, and the true grounds of sundry USAGES and ANTIQUITIES, chiefly relating to the ENGLISH CHURCH and NATION. Gathered, and observed in reading, by F. PECK, M. A. (From the original MS.)

was an image of our Saviour crucified, carved in wood, and generally as big as life, set up in churches over the screen which parted the nave, or middle aisle, from the choir or chancel; and, in many places, are yet to be seen the stairs which went up to the rood-loft, or gallery, over the said screen. In the said gallery stood, also, two other images, as big as the life, the one representing the Blessed Virgin Mary, the other the beloved disciple St. John. Before all these, in service-time, and in some places constantly night and day, were burned divers lamps; and, in many places, the images had divers suits of vestments, which were put on them, and varied pro tempore, as the day was ferial, or a high day. "On the 17th of Nov. 1547, was begun to be pulled down the roode in Paul's church, with Mary and John; and the like was afterwards done in other churches*." These images at St. Paul's stood in the old church, partly where the organ now stands in the new: for they were every where placed full over against the west door, so as to be immediately seen as soon as you entered the church. When service was done, there was generally a veil, or curtain, let down before them. "Doctor Storie, and other, were appointed by cardinal Pole, 2 Mary, to visit every parish church in Middlesex, to see their rood-lofts repaired, and the images of the crucifix, with Mary and John, thereon to be fixed †." Images were first removed out of churches in 1538, by command of Henry VIII; and about 1559, queen Elizabeth took them away ‡.

TEXTS OF SCRIPTURE ON CHURCH-WALLS.

Texts of Scripture were first written upon church-walls, in English, the same day that roods were taken down, Nov. 17, 1547; and those texts were at first chiefly such as condemned images. "Nov. 17, was begun to be pulled down the rood, &c. and textes of Scriptures were written upon the walls of churches, against images ||."

A L T A R.

When stone altars and raised altar-pieces were taken down, veils were bestowed on some great churches. Thus, "June 11, 1551, the altar in Paule's church was pulled down, and a table sett where the altar stood, with a vayle-drawne beneath, and steps. And, on the Sunday next, a communion was sung at the same table. And, shortly after, all the altars in London were taken downe, and tables placed in their roomes §."

"In all the churches which ever I saw, belonging to the church of Rome, in France, Spain, Italy, and the Low Countries, and also in Rome itself, the high altar, where the sacrament is kept and delivered, is encompassed with rails; which rails are commonly placed above the steps by which they ascend to the high altar; within which rails, the priest only and he that serveth at mass do abide, except in the singing of high-masses, when he is accompanied with the deacon, sub-deacon, master of ceremonies, and two acolythi *."

FONT S.

Baptism being a sacrament, it is very unseemly to thrust the font into a corner, as is generally done: it is mostly placed near the church door, and sometimes behind it. In cathedrals it is not received into the choir, but usually stands in the nave.

CROSSES AND COPE S.

The Protestant bishops had their crosses borne before them, and wore copes, till the 1st of Nov. 1552, 6 Edw. VI. Then came out the new service-book, called the 2d book of king Edward VI. whereby they were forbidden. They were forbidden because the hungry courtiers had an eye upon them. "Nov. 1, the new service-book beganne in Paule's, the bishop of London, Ridley, executing the service in the forenoon, in his rochet onely, [&c] without coape or vestment, preached in the quire. At afternoone he preached at Paul's-Crosse, to the setting forth the said late-made booke. By this booke, all coapes and vestments were forbidden through England, and [the] prebends of Paul's left off their hoods, the bishoppes left their crosses, &c. as by act of parliament more at large is set out †. In April and May following, commissioners were directed through England, for all the church-goods remaining in cathedral and parish-churches, that is to say, jewells of golde and silver, crosses, candlesticks, censors, chalices ‡, and all other such like, with their ready mony, to be delivered to the master of the king's jewels in the Tower; as also all copes and vestments of cloth of gold, tiffue, and silver, to the master of the king's wardrobe; the other coapes and ornaments to be sold, and the money delivered to the king's treasurer, Sir Edm. Peacham; reserving to every church one chalice, with table-clothes for the communion, at the commissioner's discretion §."

THE LITANY

was antiently sung alternately, as the Psalms are now chaunted in cathedral churches, one part by them who kneeled on one side of the quire, and the other part by them who kneeled on the other. Thus, "Sept. 8, 1547, the letanie was sung in English, in Paules church, London, in the place between the quire and the high altar; the singers kneeling, halfe on the one side, and halfe on the other side ||."

CANDLEMAS-DAY

is so called, from the people's bearing candles and lighted tapers in their hands upon that day, as they walked in procession; or at high mass. "On the 2d of Feb. 1547-8, the bearing of candles in the church was left off throughout the whole citie of London **."

ASH-WEDNESDAY, Dies Cinerum, was so called, from the priest's giving ashes to the people as they went into the church, for which end he stood ready in the church-porch to present them to the parishioners as they went in to hear service; thereby insinuating, that, Lent being now begun, they should, like good penitents, humble themselves with fasting and prayer; and with putting sackcloth on their bodies, and ashes on their heads, as was antiently the custom of the Jews, in times of any great calamity, or devotion. "On Feb. 14, 1547-8, the use of giving ashes in the church was left [off] *."

is so called, from the people's antient custom in bearing palms (which they received of the priest, after he had first blessed the same), and walking in procession with them in their hands, in imitation of the Jews, who strewed them in the way when our Blessed Lord made his public entrance into Jerusalem. Passion-Sunday, or the Sunday next before Easter, is the true Palm-Sunday; though some, by reason of the Gospel, and the picture of our Saviour's riding into Jerusalem there placed over against it, in their Common-prayer books, are apt to mistake the First Sunday in Advent for it. "Anno 1547-8, the ceremonie of bearing of palmes on Palme-Sunday was left off †." Dr. Hickes, in his Devotions, has two collects, &c. the one for Palm-Sunday, the other for Passion-Sunday. The first, I presume, is intended for the First Sunday in Advent. It is yet the custom at King's Cliffe, in Northamptonshire, to stick the church with palms on Passion-Sunday.

LIBRARIES

"were first heard of in Egypt; and the titles they bore on the front inspired the reader with a longing to penetrate the mysteries reserved in them. They were called the offices for the diseases of the soul, ψυχῆς ἰατρῆων; and with great justice, because the soul was there cured of ignorance, the most dangerous, and the parent of all her maladies ‡."

EMBALMING.

"Many hands were employed in this ceremony. Some, with instruments purposely made, began with emptying the body of every thing which was susceptible of corruption, the brain, the entrails, and the intestines. As this evacuation (necessarily attended with some dissections) seemed to have something in it inhuman and cruel, the persons employed fled as soon as the operation was over, and were pursued with stones by the standers-by. Those who embalmed the body were honourably treated. They filled it with myrrhe, cinnamon, and all sorts of spices. After a certain time, the body was wrapped in folds of the finest linen, which they pasted on with the thinnest gum, and then chafed over with the most exquisite perfumes.

By this means, it is said, that the entire figure of the body, the very lines of the face, and the hairs on the lids and eye-brows, were preserved in their natural perfection *."

POLYGAMY

" was allowed in Egypt, excepting to priests, who could marry but one woman †."

CHARON.

" It is a comfort to a dying man to leave a good name behind him ; and this is the single human blessing which death cannot ravish from us. But it was by no means suffered by the Egyptians, that praise should be bestowed indifferently on all the dead : this honor was to be had from the public voice. The assembly of the judges met on the other side of a lake, which they crossed in a boat. He who sat at the helm was called Charon, in the Egyptian language ; and this gave the hint to Orpheus, who had been in Egypt, and through him to the other Greeks, to invent their fable of Charon's boat. As soon as a man was dead, he was brought to his trial. The public accuser was heard. If he proved, that the life of the deceased person had been scandalous, his memory was condemned, and he was deprived of sepulture. Thus the people were struck with laws which extended even beyond death ; and every one, touched with the disgrace inflicted on the dead person, was afraid to leave dishonour on his memory and family. But, if the dead was convicted of no crime, he was honourably buried ‡."

APIS, THE OX.

" The Egyptians worshipped the Ox, whom they called Apis. And it is easy to see the golden calf set up near Mount Sinai, by Aaron, was the effect of their abode in Egypt, as well as those which were afterwards set up by Jeroboam §. Our author should have added here, Jeroboam fled into Egypt ||."

SWINES-FLESH.

" Hog-herds had a general ill-name throughout Egypt, as they had the care of so impure an animal. Herodotus, lib. ii. cap. 47. tells us, that they were not permitted to enter the Egyptian temples, nor would any man give them his daughter in marriage **."

DE REGISTRIS PAROCHIALIBUS; an unfinished Sketch.
 In a Letter, from the Rev. GEORGE NORTH, of Codicote, Herts, to Mr. Professor WARD, of Gresham College.

WORTHY SIR,

Dec. 7, 1748.

IN a late accidental conversation concerning Parish Registers, you expressed your opinion, that it was a subject very well worth the pains and enquiry of some member of our Society, and was pleased to recommend it particularly to my consideration. I could not be wanting in any thing which could speak my regard to you or your opinion, and therefore with pleasure set about the task; presuming to promise myself this satisfaction and advantage, that you would, with your usual candour, excuse, correct, and supply, whatever errors and deficiencies you shall meet with in this attempt.

The original of Parish Registers (as far as I can gather) is so very recent, that it naturally excited my reflections how the want of them was supplied in preceding ages, as something similar seems to have been always necessary; having never met with any attempt (though such there may be) to clear up this question, nor any thing like a clue to lead one through the mazes of more remote time.

A consideration of what uses are principally intended and served by our present Registers is most likely to lead us to a discovery by what methods the want of them was formerly supplied. The chief, if not only, uses intended were, I should apprehend, the ascertaining descents and kindreds, and these purely for the sake of property: titles to honours have indeed been concerned in them; but, as honours were always in some proportion to property, or, at least, never so much severed from it as to subsist alone, the proof of a title to property always ascertained the same of its appendages. Few men need be told that times have been when property in general was very small, and that too very unequally divided. In the time of our ancestors the Saxons, the number of thanes in each shire was but small, and these alone seem to have had any independent property or considerable possessions. In the laws of King Athelstan, no other titles or distinction of honour are enumerated than Earl, Earldoram, Heregerassa, and Thane. None of these were hereditary, or successively appendant to any quantity of possession, but the last; all the rest being offices and appointments merely personal. As to land, indeed, the possession of it was almost all strictly hereditary, and not devisable to any one else than the next heir in blood, as is enacted by the 37th law of Alfred, and by some more antient law likewise, as is plain from his own will or testament; and as no alienation could be made even of what was allowed to be aliened, nor possession upon a devise by will taken, but at a county court, there was little possibility of a right of inheritance being defeated. In the times when commerce was little or none, and every man lived, as we may say, within his own hedge, when no man could leave the lordship he belonged to without leave of his lord [Lex X Ed<sup>i</sup> sen<sup>i</sup>], nor out of his shire without leave of the ealderman of it [Lex 33 Alfredi], and by the 2d of Athelstan every man was to belong to some lord, on penalty of being considered as a fugitive, or thief; under these circumstances every man's birth and lineage must be known. The arts of fraud, in these ages of poverty and simplicity, were hardly known; and, if we farther consider how frequent and public their courts of justice were, it was next to impossible that any man's descent and claim could be forgotten, or admit of much dispute. These methods rendered Registers almost needless: accordingly we do not find any remains of such among the Saxons. They were needless in respect of the common people, who were nailed, as it were, by the foot to one place, whose families were insignificant, and whose small dependent properties were protected by their lords; and the inheritors of the thanes were registered, and transmitted in the memories of the whole shire, so often meeting in the county courts; and, when any dispute happened, and was determined there, to give it a more lasting remembrance and security it was entered in a concise manner in some sacred books of an adjacent monastery, of which sort of entries are divers instances in Dr. Hickes's Dissertatio Epistolaris. Besides, as very few among the Saxons had any more than one name (or, if they had, it was no more than barely a patronymic, as Putting for Puttoc suna or Puttoc filius), no nomina gentilitia, or family name from thence; it was impossible to form a register to serve such purposes as our present ones do, i. e. to transmit and ascertain a lineage and kindred.

I must beg leave here to observe, though I may seem to wander from my main point, that Sir Henry Spelman, as quoted by Dr. Hickes, p. 28, in his letters to Ptolemon Roscantz, says, "Nullus quod sciam occurrit Saxo vel Danus gentili fretus cognomine, nec ejusmodi quempiam repperi inter Gallos veteres apud Gregorium Turonensem, nec sub mediis seculis apud Aimonum, nec inter Longobardos apud Paulum Warnefridum seu Diaconum." This will not hold true of all the Northern nations of Gothic originals; for, in Cassiodorus, is mention of Stirps Amalorum, of which family were Amal Afrida, Thedoricus Germana, and Amalafuintha, and Amala Freda, his two daughters; and I well remember, though I cannot at present find it, mention in Ammianus Marcellinus of a Goth, with two names, one of them a nomen Gentile.

Upon the whole, I apprehend, the Saxons had nothing like our present Registers; and, what little scraps of pedigrees of any particular great men among them have come down to us, they were preserved in the annals of some neighbouring monastery, to which they had in some manner been protectors or benefactors.

Servius Tullius, to ascertain the number of births and burials, ordered, when a child was born, that its kindred should bring a piece of money into the Ærarium of Juno Lucina; and when any died, into that of Venus Libitina.

This custom being afterwards abolished, was revived by Augustus Cæsar at the birth of children. See Lipsius in Tacitum.

In the Code Louis, published at Paris 1667, are ordinances for the registering of christenings, marriages, and burials, in each parish. See title XX. art. 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, from p. 107 to 112.

Though there are some few Parochial Registers as old as the first original of them, by injunction from Lord T. Cromwell*, in Sept. 1538, 30 H. VIII. (renewed and inferred by the Injunctions of Edward VI. in 1547); likewise by Cardinal Pole, by his articles of visitation, dated Lambeth, 4 Feb. 1556; yet the register of this parish [Codicote] going no farther back than the beginning of Queen Elizabeth's reign, must be supposed to have been begun to be kept in obedience to the Injunctions relating thereto, in her first year. But, as in those times they were usually written on paper, it was, for the better preservation of them, strictly enjoined by the last of the Constitutions made in the synod of the clergy of the province of Canterbury, begun 25 Oct. 1597;

“ Ut libri ad hunc usum distincti quo tutius reservari & ad posteritatis memoriam propagari possint, ex pergameno sumptibus parochianorum in posterumificentur, iisque non modo ex veteribus libris chartaceis transumpta, nomina earum qui, regnante Dominâ nostrâ Elizabethâ, aut baptismatis aqua allui, aut matrimonio copulati, aut ecclesiasticæ sepulturæ beneficio affecti sint, suo ordine inscribantur, sed eorum etiam qui in posterum baptizati vel matrimonio conjuncti, aut sepulti fuerint.”

With regard to the copying of the old register, it was ordered in the same Constitution,

“ Postquam autem paginam aliquam integram nomina inscripta compleverint ex veteribus libris cartaceis tum ministri tum gardianorum ipsius parochiæ subscriptionibus volumus eam communiri, sed diligente ac fideli prius adhibitâ collatione.”

By this last particular is explained why the names of the same minister and churchwardens so generally occur at the bottom of the page, from the beginning to the year 1598; viz. as witnesses only of the faithful copying of the register till that time; the same reason is to be given for their being generally written in one and the same hand to the same year.

* “ This most wise and beneficial regulation is said to have been first introduced in the year 1538; by the direction of Cromwell, then vicar-general; before which time, probably, the parochial clergy were not often sufficient penmen to keep such registers, nor were there at this period excise-officers who could be employed as amanuenses. The great convenience arising from this ordinance of Cromwell's, occasioned its being enjoined during the reigns of Edward VI. Queen Elizabeth, and James I. I take this from Bishop Gibson's Codex, though in Sparrow's Collection of Injunctions, printed in 1684, in 4to, I do not find any mention of this regulation during the reign of Queen Elizabeth. The keeping, however, a register was enjoined by Edward VI. A. D. 1547; and for neglect in so doing, the minister is mulcted 3s. 4d. to the poor's box; whilst in the same year it makes one of Cranmer's articles of visitation to the province of Canterbury.” Mr. Barrington, in the Preface to “ a proposed Form of Registers for Baptisms and Burials, 1781.”

B. 2

Moreover,

Moreover, because they had been before very negligently and irregularly kept, it was by the same constitution ordered,

“ Ut exemplar quotannis cujusque anni auctæ nominum inscriptionis ad episcopi diocesani registram per gardianos infra mensem post festum Paschatis transmittatur, & sine feodo ullo recipiatur, atque in archivis episcopi fideliter custodiatur.”

This has since been regularly observed at the archdeacon's visitations*; and to this we owe the preservation and excellent order of parochial registers throughout the kingdom.—In Thoresby's Leeds, p. 162, there is a good model for a Parish Register.

* One of Mr. Urban's correspondents (vol. LXIII. p. 703.) observes, “ that this injunction has not been regularly complied with, as well because churchwardens are not always willing to defray the charge of making the transcripts, as that they are to be received at the office without a fee. Such a restriction does not seem to have been calculated to induce registers and their deputies to press for a return of these certificates; nor, considering the little chance there is of any emolument likely to accrue from the custody of the papers, was it to be expected that they would be duly arranged, and carefully preserved.”

A Bill to autorise every Archbifhop and Bifhop to erect one office of registership of all the church books, in due order, to be kept in every diocefe, 15 Eliz. Written by Thomas Bowefey, and prefented to Archbifhop Parker for his approbation †.

Whereas a laudable, good, and univerfal ordre was taken throughout this realme, in the 30th yere of the reign of the late K. of famous memory, Henry theight, that the parsons, vicars, curates, and chaplain, of every parish church and chappell, for the time being, should keepe a booke of remembrance of the times of the birth, christening, buriall, and marriage, of every person or persons fortuning to be born, christened, buried, or married, in the same town or parish, for that oftentimes there happened much controversy, fuit, and contention, as well upon the privitie of birthes, and in triall of the titles of some of the persons so borne, divers times of the former marriage of any person happening to be twyes married, or happening to marry two wives both living at one time, otherwhiles upon the full age of any person or persons meaning to avoid his or their owne deeds or bonds, being of full age, upon pretence of minoritie, or be to sue their liverie, or to be out of ward, or having nede for any other causes to know his or their owne ages, as also upon an infinite nombre of other occasions (fithence partly well cut off and decifed), by the more spedy, due, and true triall thereof, in some places where the same bookes be duely kept and mainteyned by force of the same good ordre, to the relief and redres of many injuries or oppreffion that otherwise that would have been offered and done, if fuch testimony had not been apparent and verified by the same church book, and to the staying of a great nombre of contentions, fuits, and strifes, which otherwise would have unconcionably been stirred up and rayfed by the occasions aforefaid. Yet the same of late time hath been much and greatly abused in most places, partly by reason of the multitude of curates and ministers that have of late been changed in divers of the said churches, and thereby the more negligently keepe the same bookes, notes, and titles, and remembrance, and partly through the little regard taken to the same, for want of one overseer, whereby the same once made be not only safe kept, but also omitted, and not entred at all into the said booke, writinge, titeling, and remembrance; and that, forasmuch as no pain hath been appointed by the magistrate before time, for the not entring, or evilkeping, or entring of the same, but most chiefly, and the rather, insomuch that it oftentimes fortinith, that the same persons, vicars, curates, ministers, or other the keepers thereof been not able to answer the harmes of disenherrifon, damages, and other troubles, that might chance, and dayly doo and may ensue, by the evil usage and corrupt keping of the same booke, the lack whereof hath already not only been much felt and perceived in the same places of defect, to the great hindrance in trialls of verities, and to the

Be it therefore enacted, by the Queen's most excellent Majesty, our sovereign lady, the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons of this present parliament assembled, and by the auctoritie of the same, that at all times for henceforth it shall and may be lawfull, as well to the most reverend fathers in God the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, and either of them, as to all other bishops and ordinaries in this our realm of England, and to their successors, and to every one of them, to erect, establish, and make, within his or their severall diocese and jurisdiction, by his or their severall graunt under his or their authentick and usual seal, one office of registership and register, to survey, safe kepe, and streightly looke to the said church book, and the same truly from henceforth to register in some decent book of parchment, for a perpetual memory and testimony of the premisses, as well for thavoyding of thenormite aforesaid, as also to the entent that, from time to time, upon any serch to be made by any hir grace's subjects for the veritie, true triall, and perfect knowledge of the certente of the premisses, there may be written and made out of the said register book, so to be kept in every one of the said offices, a true record, or certificate, of the certainty of the premisses, to any person or persons hereafter serching or requesting the same, under the usual seal of the said office, to have, hold, exercise, and enjoy the said office or offices of registership, to every such person and persons, or their sufficient deputies, from the day of the date of every his and their said grant and graunts to him or them as aforesaid, to be made for and during the natural life or lives of the same register or registers. And moreover be it enacted, by the auctoritie aforesaid, that all and every the said persons, vicars, curates, ministers, and every of them, for the time being, from time to time, yerely hereafter, not only truly, distinctly, perfectly, and plainly enter, wright, note, and entitle, into their severall church book, all and every the births, christenings, marriages, and burials, of all and every person and persons happening to be born, christened, married, or buried, in the whole weeke precedent, with the just days and yeares of the same, in such manner and form as by the same registers and officers, or their sufficient deputies, or any of them, shall be prescribed or appointed, but also shall shew forthe the same so entred and written every Sunday after the evening prayer, in the presence of the churchwardens, or two honest men of the same parish. And still further, at thende of every yere hereafter successively ensuing, immediately upon commaundement to them, or any of them, given by or from the bishop or ordinaries, or their successors, or any of them, safely deliver, or cause to be delivered, to the said register or registers, their assistants or deputies, all and every the same their church booke, notes, and remembraunce, as well heretofore taken, entred, and written, by virtue of the saide good laudable ordre, or otherwise, as hereafter to be taken, entred, and written, by virtue of this present acte, by them, or any of them, in forme aforesaid, of the yeare precedent, to be registred, recorded, laid up, and safe kept, for a perpetuall memorye, record, and testimony, as aforesaid, at such time and place as by the said archbishops, bishops, ordinaries, or their successors, or any of them, shall be, from time to time, limited and appointed, upon pain that every such person, vicar, curat, minister, or any of them, so offending, shall, for every one offence and default in the premises, or any of them so to be made, upon due proof thereof had, forfeit the sum of 10s. to be levied or taken of the revenues and profits of his and their spiritual promotions, personages, vicarages, stipends, or otherwise, by seizure of his goods, or distress to be taken of the same, by the said churchwardens or registers for the time being, or any of them, thome moietie thereof to be to the use of the poore people's common boxe within the same parish, and thother moytie to thuse of the register or registers, or their sufficient deputy or deputies, for the time being. And be it also further enacted, by the authority aforesaid, that, from and after the prorogation or dissolution of this present parliament, the parent or parents of every child christened in any parish church or chappell within this realme of England, having lands, tenements, or hereditaments, to him or his heires in fee simple, or fee taylor, to the yearly value of 40 s. or having goods and cattals to the value of 5 l. shall from henceforth pay at the christening of every child 1 d. ; and every person or persons hereafter espousing or marrying any wife, to pay at their marriage 1 d. ; and every man having landes or goods of the value aforesaid, at the buriall of his wife, to pay 2 d. ; and every woman having lands or goods of the said value, at the buriall of hir husband, to pay 1 d. ; and every such man or woman to pay, at the buriall of his or their sone and daughter, and his or their household servant, 1 d. to the churchwardens of the said parish or chapell for the time being, or, in their absence, to the person, vicar, curat, or minister, christening, marrying, or burying, any of the said person or persons, in forme aforesaid, to the use of the said churchwardens being absent ; and by them so receiving the same several summes of money at the end of every yeare successively ensuing, to be repaid to the said register or registers, or his or their sufficient deputy or deputies, in that behalf, in consideration that every one of the same registers, or their sufficient deputies, shall, at their great cost or charge, within the space of six years next ensuing the dates of his or their graunt or graunts, to be made and graunted as aforesaid, well and truly register, or cause to be registred, as well all and every the said former church books, titles, notes, and remembrance, of 24 yeeres continuance alreedy passed, or therabouts, as also all and every the said church bookes, title, notes, and remembrance, yerely hereafter to be registred, as well of all and every person and persons not having any lands or goods of the value aforesaid, or of every person or persons so having into great deacent books of parchement in forme before declared, and towards their yearely travell and chardges in gathering up the same church books into every one of his or their said office or office. And furthermore be it enacted, by the authority aforesaid, that if it shall happen any the aforementioned several somes of money at any time hereafter to be behynd and unpayed by any person or persons who by force of this acte ought or been charged to pay the same, in manner and forme before declared, that then, and at all times after, it shall and may be lawfull to and for all and every such person or persons, register or registers, or their assigns and deputies, and the executors of any of them, to whom any the aforesaid several sunes of money, from time to time hereafter, be due and payable, in forme aforesaid, to distrain the goods and cattalls of all and every such person or persons, or executors of any of them, so refusing or denying to pay any the said several sunes of money before specified, and due, to be paid, by force of this present acte, as is before declared; and the same distres or distresses, so taken, to leade, drive, and carry away, and deteyne untill the same be fully satisfied and payed. And further, be it also enacted, that all officials and commissaries of any such diocese or jurisdiction, and all mayors, sheriffs, bayliffs of towns corporat, and justice of peace of the shires, wherein the said persons, vicars, curats, ministers, and servitors, bene at all time and times requisite, shall aide, assist, help, mayntein, and defend, the said register or registers, their assigns and deputies, and every of them, in and about the due exercise of their office or offices aforesaid, and in every point, according to the tenor, effect, and true meaning of this acte; and further, by their discretions, condignely to punish thoffenders and hinderers of the execution of the same in any point. And furthermore, for the due ordre and assignment of reasonable fees hereafter to be taken by the said register, for the perpetuall maintenance and continuance of the same several offices in forme aforesaid, be it enacted, by the authority aforesaid, that every person or persons hereafter requesting any serche to be made in any of the said register bookes and offices, shall pay to the register or registers, or their deputies, for every such serch so to be had the some of 4 d.; for every certificate, made and written on parchment out of the said record, to any person requesting the same under the seal of the office, 12 d.; and for every seale of office put to any such certificate or record 4 d.

In Strype's Annals, vol. IV. p. 45. is the following outline of a Project, addressed in 1590 to the Lord Treasurer Burghley, for an Office for a general Register* of all the Christenings, Marriages, and Burials, &c. [A patent for this was sent from the Lord Treasurer to the Archbishop of Canterbury for his judgement.]

“ The benefit that will grow to her Majesty and her successors thereby: 1. An annual rent of 100*l.* by year. to her Majesty and her successors for ever. 2. That it

* By another article in the same volume it appears that in or about the year 1590 some one had endeavoured to obtain an office to appoint all Parish Clerks; the inconveniences of which are thus stated to the Lord Treasurer by Archbishop Whitgift's secretary: “ 1. Law and custom hath in all parishes established the appointing of the parish-clerk and sexton, in the minister and parishioners. 2. Their service is to the minister in church matters, for the use of all the parishioners; therefore fittest to be chosen by them; as it is observed every where. 3. They receive their fees and accustomed wages of the parishioners; therefore a stranger cannot be obruded well upon them; for, if any of another's appointment be their clerk, they will think it hard measure that they should be forced to maintain him. 4. He that is no way beholden either to the minister or parishioners, nor in any awe of them for his office, will neither perform duty nor diligence. 5. If the grantee shall do the office in his own person, then can he have but the employment of one parish; for he must be attendant thereon upon all occasions, early and late. If by a deputy, such one will hardly leave his wages, when their common servant is appointed by another: besides, the grantee will for his own commodity reserve some part for himself; and so the service will be

it will be much profit to her Majesty, for explaining of the ages of her wards, being now greatly abused by escheators and feodaries, in the benefits and commodities which may thereby grow to her subjects. 3. That it shall tend to the great good of many which shall have occasion for certificates, either for lawful copplement in matrimony, or in case of bastardy. 4. That it shall clearly avoid all cofinages made by those under age, either in levying of fines, suffering recoveries, acknowledging statutes or recognizances, or doing any other matter of record. 5. That the entrance of the baptisms, as it shall be provided for, will be a clear deciphering of all half-bloods, or controversies daily happening under colour of half or whole blood. 6. That it will be a curb for those who pretend to be sundry times married. 7. That it shall much tend to the deciding of many controversies, which daily grow by reason of the life or death of persons. 8. There shall be also yearly delivered unto your honour, and unto every Lord-Treasurer, from the time being, a summary of the whole. Whereby it shall appear unto you and them how many christnings, weddings, and burials, be every year within England and Wales, and every county particularly by itself, and how many men, children, and women, children in either of them severally set down by themselves."

Mr. Barrington informs us*, that a canon of 1603 directs registers to be made up from the law's first taking place, i. e. A. D 1538, and more particularly so from the first year of Queen Elizabeth †; which last injunction seems to shew that before that period they were either neglected, or slovenly kept.

The Civil Wars during the next reign often prevented the parish ministers from executing regularly this part of their duty, which seems also to have been greatly neglected during the Commonwealth; though in the year 1653 an ordinance passed, directing, that the parishioners, contributing to the relief of the poor, should provide a book of vellum or parchment, which was to be kept by a person chosen by the said parishioners ‡ every three years, and who was to make the proper entries of marriages, births, and burials.

either performed by an insufficient man, or at least be very greatly neglected. 6. The office of surveying all parish-clerks is but a shift to pick out money from the poor men, and in no respect requisite or needful; for, the reformation of them being negligent or faulty, is by law already settled in the ordinaries. 7. These and such like grants, as they are very extraordinary, so are they burthenfome to the Queen's subjects, and unprofitable for the commonwealth, and serve only for the private gain of private persons; which nevertheless prosper not when they have them. By the copy of the patent which your Lordship sent unto me, there is granted the buying of books, clappers of bells, and other necessaries for the use of the church, at the parishioners cost and charges. A matter most unreasonable. For so he may still poll them, and make what accounts he list, and they have no remedy. 9. Besides, the laws and her Majesty's injunctions lay the trust upon the churchwardens of the parish, being of the substantiallest men, whom the rest think good to trust; and therefore do make choice of, to disburse their money in that behalf."

* In the Preface already quoted.

† Every minister, at visitations, was, amongst other things, to subscribe to this protestation: "I shall keep the Register-booke according to the Queene's Majestic's injunction."

‡ Extract from the register of burials in Maidstone:

"The 29th of September, 1653. Henry Pierce, of the town of Maidstone, in the countie of Kent, being chosen by the parishioners to bee register for the said towne and parish, was thi day sworne before me John Sanders, maior of the same towne and parish, and justice of the peace there. And I doe approve of him to be register accordinge to an act of ths present parliament, intituled, An Act touching Marriages and registring thereof; and also touching Births and Burials."

Upon the Restoration, registers seem to have been again attended to, and possibly by the injunctions of the bishops at their visitations.

During the reign of King William, the first parliamentary notice is taken of them; though the object of the legislature is not to encourage this most useful evidence, but to raise supplies for carrying on the war with France.

By 6 and 7 William III. c. 6. s. xxiv. every clergyman is to keep a register of births, burials, and baptisms, under a penalty of 100*l.* *

By 7 and 8 William III. c. 35. s. v. every parent is to give notice of the birth of their child within five days, under a penalty of 40*s.*; and the penalty is extended to the minister, not making an entry of the child thus born and not christened.

By 4 Anne, c. 12. s. x. the clergyman is indemnified from the penalty of 100*l.* imposed by 6 and 7 William III. in case the duties upon christenings, births, and burials, shall have been really paid.

At Lady-day 1754, by 27 Geo. II. a new regulation took place respecting the entries of banns and marriages.

Lastly, in 1784, by 24 Geo. III. a farther regulation was attempted, by laying a tax of 3*d.* on every entry either of christening, marriage, or burial. But this tax, having been found both inconvenient † and inefficient ‡, was repealed in 1793.

Farther Remarks on Registers. By the Rev. S. DENNE, M. A. F. S. A.

WHILST the memorial courts, leet and baron, were regularly kept every year, and oftener, as, it is believed, in some places, the ages of the residents must have been pretty well known. In the courts leet the jurors would not have been ignorant what young men were from their years liable to be called upon to perform offices and services; and those who could certainly would plead to be discharged from them when they had attained to an advanced period of life.

The homage of the court-baron must always have presented the deaths of tenants of every degree, and have specified whether the heirs were of a competent age to be admitted, and to take the oath of fealty to the lord.

In a series of years, when, by the increase of money, the reduced comparative value of the quit-rents, reliefs, and other emoluments, were not sufficient to pay the expence of holding courts, they would be discontinued, and this mode of evidence would cease. Very many men are there now known only by name, and many, many, more would probably have been relinquished, had not the lordly Nimrods been anxious to ascertain the boundaries, that they might have for their sport plenty of game.

At the courts leet the women were not bound to attend; nor at the courts baron, if they had brothers to inherit their father's property; and one consequence was, that the jurors were not in duty bound to ask how old they were; and perhaps the females might not in those days be sorry that there was not any recorded minute touching their ages, at least not till after they had dropped their maiden names.

Registers and ledgers of monasteries perpetuated only the obits of benefactors. It was truly observed, by Mr. Carte*, that they did not seem to have been interested in baptisms; and though, in the opinion of the monks, marriage was a sacrament, they from principle encouraged celibacy; for which reason these lines of Chaucer must be considered as almost solely applicable to parochial churches:

“ She was a worthy woman all her live,

Husbands at the church door she had five †.”

Such a publicity was expedient, indeed requisite, when it was not the practice to record a wedding by a specific entry: it should seem that it had its origin from this consideration. A wedding, so celebrated, must have had for witnesses every person that might be passing by at the time; and he or she must have been an incurious or inattentive spectator, who did not enquire and remember the names of the bridegroom and of the bride, who received her dowry at the church-door—Dos ad ostium ecclesiæ. At the Reformation, that part of the ceremony (and it was the greatest part), which used to be performed at the church-door, was directed to be performed in the body of the church, and at the time of divine service, that the congregation might be witnesses. The body of the church occurs in the rubric of our present form; and when I was a stripling I recollect this rule being strictly followed in Lambeth church. Hassocks were placed in the middle aisle below the reading-desk; the service to the conclusion of the first blessing being there read, there was a remove to the communion-rails to finish the rest of the office.

† Wife of Bath.

Cromwell (Earl of Effex) has the best title to the merit of introducing Parochial Registers. That they had not a more early commencement, strong evidence of the negative kind may be deduced from there not being before 1538 any injunctions to the clergy to attend to registers, either in episcopal registers, or in acts consistorial or visitatorial of bishops and archdeacons.

From the great change in the religious tenets and habits of the people of England, and many of them before the 16th century, the advantages of registers, with respect to the public and to individuals, were not so great as Cromwell probably imagined might have ensued from his politic plan. But it may reasonably be presumed, that in 1538 he had not a notion that there would ere long be many persons to whose baptisms the clergyman of the parish must be an absolute stranger, and many detached cemeteries for the interment of dissenters from the Established Church; and he must have been gifted with a wonderful degree of second-sight to have foreseen, that in the middle of the 18th century there would be a set of Christians, who, as to the mode of recording the marriages of the members of their community, would be allowed the like indulgence that was reserved for the royal family. In justice, however, to the Quakers, it may be observed, that their weddings are publicly celebrated; and that they deem it a compliment if the spectators, whoever they may be, will be subscribing witnesses to the nuptial union of the young friends.

There have been attempts, from time to time, to render the plan of Cromwell more extensive, more correct, and more beneficial; and the failure of them is to be regretted. Of these attempts one was the bill written by Bowesey*; not noticed, I suspect, by either Burnet or Collier in their General Histories, nor by Strype, either in his Annals, or in Life of Parker; but in which there were capabilities that might have been perfected by the wisdom of parliament.

In the original directions in the reign of King Henry VIII. birth, as well as baptism, was to be registered; in the directions in the reigns of Edward VI. and Elizabeth, and by the canon of 1603, the baptisms only are mentioned; but it is observable, that, in the bill compiled by Bowesey, the time of birth was to be kept in the Book of Remembrance, and for this substantial reasons are assigned, to which more might be added. There is not a day-labourer to whom such a memorial may not be of use; as, after the death of parents, and of persons present at a birth, very difficult is it to meet with satisfactory evidence of the fact. And yet it will frequently happen that there is so great an interval between the days of birth and baptism, that, could the former be ascertained, a man might be proved to be past the age in which he is liable to be balloted for a militia-man. From a conviction of the expediency of recording births, I have for several years past been in the habit of acquiring the needful information; and, though for a time I perceived, with some surprize, that it was a matter of indifference to the parents, I now find that they have altered their minds. It is, however, my wish to have my intelligence from mothers and nurses rather than from fathers, because I have often occasion to observe, that days of the month are not apt to make an impression on the memories of the latter; e. g. I am not unfrequently told by a father that Jack or * See p. 5.

Dick was born a day or two before, or a day or two after, or Christmas, or Lady-tide, or Midsummer, or Milemas; or he takes his date from the fair of W. (St. George's day), or the fair of D. (May-day); or when the increase of family was at a distance from such noted æra, the answer is perhaps to this purport, that the child was born on last Thursday fortnight, or last Friday three weeks; however, with this datum, and the aid of an almanack, the point can be easily adjusted; and I beg leave to repeat, that, as the poorest man may be interested by having his birth minuted, it ought not to be omitted.

A lawyer has more than once hinted to me, that, as it is founded upon hearsay evidence, it may not be deemed admissible in Westminster-hall; however, valent quantum, when better evidence is wanting; and I am sure that this consideration ought to have its weight, that neither parent nor pastor can have any sinister motive for making an incorrect entry.

On the registering of burials I shall only observe, that it may be advisable, when an opportunity offers, to specify the place of birth of the deceased, and of the maiden name of the woman, in case of her being married; and why not notice her age, as that particular may be the means of identifying the person!

Formerly, as it should seem, the keepers of registers were exposed to actions of damages for neglect of duty*; it being declared in Bowdsey's bill, p. 5, "that it oftentimes

* Of the careless keeping of registers, see Gent. Mag. vol. LXIV. p. 1166.

Dr. Burnaby, the present Archdeacon of Leicester, in a late excellent Charge to his Clergy, very forcibly recommends the strictest attention and regard to the keeping of parish registers, and to the making out and preserving of full and faithful accounts of parochial charities. "The former, he says, is of great consequence to the civil and temporal interests of mankind, that perhaps no one regulation is pregnant with more various or more weighty consequences; for, upon accurate accounts of the births, the marriages, and the deaths, of individuals, the order of succession, of inheritance, and, in short, the entire property and fortune of families frequently depends.—It is well known in our courts of judicature how much confusion and what insuperable difficulties have arisen from the want or neglect of them. Indeed, too much care and attention cannot be paid to this article: and where, by process or length of time, registers are in danger of perishing or becoming illegible, it would be highly commendable, I think, were the ministers and churchwardens of parishes, while the measure is yet practicable, to have accurate and faithful copies made of them; to have them properly witnessed and authenticated; and afterwards deposited, together with their originals, in the usual places of custody. Such copies, I apprehend, would be admitted and received in our courts of law as evidence or authority: but be this as it may, they certainly would be very useful; and might in many instances facilitate the discovery of facts, highly necessary to be known, in the ascertainment and adjudication of property. I am sorry to observe, that many of the old registers, which I have examined, are in a very mutilated and imperfect state. Some indeed have been irrecoverably lost: others have no binding; have had several leaves torn out; and in every respect appear to have been most shamefully neglected. At one place, where I enquired if they had no register prior to the present century, I received the following curious answer: They had at this time no other register, they said, except the one produced. They had had another some time ago; but it was very old; was quite out of date; of no manner of use, for none of the neighbours could read it; and it had been tossed about in the church, till either some workmen or some children had carried it away, or else torn it in pieces. In short, it was irrecoverably lost."

The late Mr. Bigland also, in his useful "Observations on Marriages, Baptisms, and Burials, as preserved in Parochial Registers," published in 1764, notices some striking instances of neglect; and oftentimes fortinith, that the same persons, vicars, curates, &c. had not been able to answer the harmes of disenherifon," &c.

Mr. North's observation, p. 4. l. 6. is not well founded; copies of registers not being regularly delivered at visitations, and, instead of being preserved and kept in excellent order throughout the kingdom, they are in divers offices indigesta moles*, covered with dust, decaying by mould, and food for worms. The cause is plain; they were to be received sine ullo feodo, without hardly a chance of receiving a fee for a search. It was doubtless in order effectually to obviate this objection, that, by the bill to authorize the erecting one office of registership of all the church-books to be kept in every diocese, a provision was made, that the churchwardens should collect money, from persons in circumstances to pay it, for every entry in a register, which was to be transmitted to the register-general, though it may puzzle a man of a moderate capacity to assign a plausible reason, why a widow on the burial of her husband was to contribute 1*d.* only, and a man at the interment of his wife is to pay 2*d.*

In Gent. Mag. vol. LXVI. pp. 985, 986, are noticed the advantages that would arise from an Index to Parish-registers. This meritorious service has actually been done by the Rev. John Pridden, M. A. F. A. S. to a considerable part of the extensive register of St. Bride's parish, where he was several years curate; and to a great portion of the register of Maidstone parish an index has in like manner been made by the present minister of that parish.

"Mr. John Antram (vicar of Helton, Dorsetshire) has entered a memorandum in the register 1660, that, in the time of the Civil Wars, he was by the power of the sword violently kept out of his living, from Michaelmas 1646 till Michaelmas 1660, when he was by law restored; so that, in that compass of time, the register has been kept very imperfect." Rurchins's History, vol. II. p. 420.

"Bishopwremouth register begins—"Si quis registrum hoc mutilare in ulla parte, vel nomen aliquod delere, addere, aut in falsum immutare, vel quovis alio modo violare audeat, pro sacrilego habeatur à Domino. Tho. Broughton, curatus."

"The above Mr. Broughton has kept all the registers in a most exact manner; and they are continued to the present time in the best form of any Parochial registers in the county: the births are inserted as well as the baptisms." Mr. Allan's Notes, in Hutchinon's History and Antiquities of Durham, vol. II. p. 512.

and one case where the clerk, being a tailor, had applied sixteen leaves, and part of another, out of a Register which consisted originally only of eighteen, to the use of slips for measuring his customers.—Two parishes in Leicestershire, it may be added, owe the preservation of their Registers to the writer of this note; who rescued one of them from the shop of a bookseller; the other from (a much worse situation) the corner-cupboard of a working blacksmith, where it had lain perishing and unheard-of for more than 30 years.

* Mr. Bigland informs us, that under the stair-case of a certain Cathedral, in a place on the North side of the North aisle, on the damp ground, without the security of a door, free for any one to go to, he found a promiscuous heap of extracts of registers, some very fairly transcribed, from the different parishes of the diocese. These, by reason of the damps, were exposed to depredations equally destructive as those said to be committed by the tailor; and probably are, if not since removed to some securer place, either lost or become illegible.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR MY LORD PRIVEY SEALL (CROMWELL), CONCERNING THE BISHOP OF LINCOLNE, AND HIS ARCHD', TOUCHING THE BISHOP HIS DEMAND OF PRESTATIONS.

(From a MS. in Bibl. Cotton Cleopatra F. I. 4.)

WHAT apperteyneth to th'office of an archdeacon, and whereupon his revenewfe, and what heretofore hath thereunto appertayned :

Procurations.	Fines of testaments.
Synodals.	Vacations of benefices.
Peter-Pens.	Installations of abbots.
Pensions or indemnities.

Procurations be dewe for visitation. Th'archdeacon is bownde yerely to visite all his archdeaconry thoroweoute ; then to enquire of all crimes and misgovernance of the people, as well the clergie as the laitee, by churchwardens and other ; and to reforme whatsoever they finde otherwise than well, other committede haynously against the lawes of God, or th' ordinance of the prince for a quiet commonwele, dissonant to God's lawes, to man's lawes, and politique order of the worlde ; to reforme the same, other by godly perswasion and good advice, by commination, or by paynes and penaltyes, according to the humility and umble subjection of the offender, and repentans of the offenses. For this his visitation he hath procurations.

Synodalls be dewe for the sene *, kept at Ester by th'archdeacon, or his officers ; calling together the parsons, the vicars, and parish priests, diligently enquiring if every of the same doe and have done their dewties according to the lawes of God, lawes of the prince established, and th'ordinance of the churche accustomed ; and have godely and diligently ministerede all sacraments and sacramentals to their parishioners at Ester then past, and soe the yere before. For this kind of visitation synodals be dewe to the archdeacon, wiche the bishope wolde now in any wise have, because of a decretale that saith quod episcopo debentur synodalia ; and for that text now wolde the bishope turne from his Peter-pens, calling them Prestations or pensions, and wolde have now dewe for synodalls, wiche the archdeacons have had and enjoyed this . . . hundrethe yeeres, without let, interruption, or contradiction, of any bishope. My synodals be not 10*l.* by yere, and yet must I give to my official 5 marks fec yerely, and as much to my register ; and also bere their costs yearly in riding to the sene 4 or 5*l.* so have I not 10*l.* clear for my synodalls. But put the case that these synodalls were the bishop's, yet wherefore should I be bounde to gather his synodalls ? or why should I give 20 nobles to my officers to serve him, and to be his collector ? Dicat Apollo.

* Synod. A payment made by the clergy when they met the bishop in synod, and claimed by the archdeacon, or any other spiritual person, only on the foot of composition or prescription. Burn.
D All

All archdeacons of England gathered Peter-pens of every fyer-houſhold within every pariſhe one peny, which were granted eight hundred yers paſt by King Hyvo, and aſtir conſyrmed by Inas, then by Offa Rex Merciorum, by Arnulphus, and other moe following, and by John for his time. Aſtir ſome antique authors, they were granted for a yerely preſt, or a perpetuall yerely ſubſidy. Episcopo Romano præſtabantur in ſubſidium, ſaith divers authors. Others ſay they were given to a ſcole in Rome, to the mayntenance of Engliſh ſcolars there, as Fabian and Guido, with other; but now th'archdeacons, after theſe pens gathered, paid the ſame in part, or all, to the collector of Rome, ſaving the archdeacon of Lincolne and Sarum; theſe payd the pens gathered to the biſhops, the biſhops payd to the collector, and had his acquitance by the name of Peter-pens. Th'archdeacons had their acquitance of the biſhops by the name of preſtation-money; ſo the biſhops of Lincolne payd, but he gathered none: th'archdeacon gathered and payd, not to the collector, but only to the biſhops. Soe, finally, ſeeing the biſhops never gathered Peter-pens, and yet payd them to the collectors every yere, and th'archdeacons gathered them yerely, and none to the collector, but only to the biſhops; what ſhould the biſhop his demaunde be other than Peter-pens?

To prove that this word Preſtation is very Peter-pens, it is ſo manifeſtly declared in the biſhop of Rome his own lawe, in an epiſtle-decretall, ſent episcopo Cantuar' & ſuffraganeis ſuis. The biſhop of Lincolne is one of his ſuffragans; and perchance it was meant for him that was then biſhop of Lincolne, if he were as nigh ſcrapyng as the biſhop that now ys at this preſent time. Textus eſt in capitulo de cenſibus, in the decretals, ea quæ de avaritia verba ſunt hæc. Ne gravetis parochias & eccleſias veſtras propter viſitationem beati Petri, cum feceritis collectam denariorum. Gloſſator Bernardus, one of the biſhops of Rome his ſecretaryes, expoundeth hoc verbum Collectum. Collecta, inquit, eſt præſtatio quædam quam Anglici ſolvunt eccleſiæ Romanæ; & debet eſſe moerata, &c. Soe the Preſtation is taken for Peter-pens in the biſhop of Rome his own lawe.

Penſions, or indemnities, be theſe. When a church is improprede to an abbey or college, then the archdeacon for ever loſyth his induction-money; and in recompence of that, he ſhall have yerely, out of the ſaid benefice ſoe improprede, 12*d.* or 2*s.* for a yerely penſion, more or leſſe, as hit is agreed at the tyme of the impropriation. And this money is called penſions, or indemnities. And like as the archdeacon conſervatur indemnis by this his yerely penſion, payd in the lieu of the induction; even ſoe episcopus conſervatur indemnis, and hath a like penſion for his indemnity, in the lieu of his inſtitution, which he likewise calleth his penſion.

The title of Archdeacon is of no leſſe antiquity than the primitive times of Chriſtianity; the uſe then being, that the deacons did elect out of themſelves one whom they knew to be moſt eminent for his induſtry, and gave him that title, to ſuperintend the clergy, by making viſitations.

ENDOWMENTS OF VICARAGES.

“THE method pursued in allotting vicars their portions was this. An inquiry was made, in the chapters of the rural deans *, into the value of the rectories, and the competent portions to be assigned to the vicarages; regard being always had, in proportioning the last to the nature and size of the cure. A return was then made to the bishop, who was to approve and confirm the acts of the chapters, and had power withal to make any necessary alteration in them; after which, the allotment was to be entered in the bishop’s register, he, in effect, having the whole management of the business in his hand †.

The quota usually apportioned to vicars comes next to be considered. At Stodham, [Herts], the vicar was to have the whole altaragium except one mark, the tythe of lambs, and a croft, which contained about seven acres. The rectory was judged to be worth 20 marks, and the profits of the vicarage six, so that the vicar enjoyed something less than a third part of the value of the living. Huffeburne was estimated at twelve marks, and the vicar was to have five marks and four shillings, to arise from the altarage, a house, a croft, and a croft and meadow on the south. By altaragium in these cases is evidently meant all small tithes and dues; and it is as clear, that the rule observed in providing for a vicar was to invest him with a revenue of five or six marks, six at the most, and five at the least ‡; these sums being esteemed a competent maintenance at the time for a single person, and even to enable him to maintain some degree of hospitality ||. It appears again, that the vicar’s portion consisted of manse, glebe, and some share of the profits of the living; and that in the smaller livings his part was proportionably the greatest.

As to the onera, as they were called, incident to ecclesiastical livings, the vicars were generally to bear some part of them. Thus the priory of Dunstable, in consideration of the large share it enjoyed of the profits of the above livings, was to entertain the archdeacon in his parochial visitation, to find books, vestments, utensils, to repair the chancels, and to pay the subsidies §; and the vicars were to take all other burthens upon them **.”

Thus far from the Life of Bishop Grosseteste by the late very learned Dr. Pegge; who, in the course of his enquiries on this subject, received from Mr. Fardell, Registrar of the diocese of Lincoln, the following remarks on Bp. Wells’s Roll.

“Mr. Johnson’s account, in the Archæologia ††, of Bishop Wells’s book of endowments, is not correct. He asserts, it contains the endowments of all the vi-

* These were episcopal officers, employed by, and under the archdeacons. They were usually concerned in estimating the value of livings, &c. † Sir Henry Chauncy, p. 37.

‡ The refectory of Mickleover, in the county of Derby, was rated in 1154, at twenty shillings for a tenth, and therefore was worth ten pounds per annum, and the vicar answered for a third part, 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* or five marks. || Burton’s Description of Leicestershire, p. 185.

§ Vicars, however, often paid tenths, &c. Thorne, inter X Script. col. 2162, 2170, seq. This, therefore, depended entirely on the particular terms and covenants of the ordinations.

** “Et sciendum, quod prior sustinebit onera quod hospicium archidiaconi, et sustentationem in libris, et cancellis, et vestimentis, utensilibus, et talligiis, pro sua portione, alia onera sustinebit vicarius.” Annal. Dunstap. ibidem. The usual onera of vicars in M. Paris, in Vit. Abb. p. 131. are “Parochialia, synodalia, archidiaconalia, ordinaria et consueta;” which shews, that these things varied in different places, according as the agreements were made. †† Vol. I. p. 30.

vicarages in the diocese; whereas it contains only an account of the endowments of such vicarages as were endowed by, or previous to the time of, Bishop Wells. Great numbers of vicarages were afterwards endowed; and the endowments are interspersed in the several Register-books of the Bishops of Lincoln till the Reformation, when the bishop's power to ordain vicarages ceased.

The book you refer to is a thin quarto, containing 32 leaves of vellum or parchment. The several years in which the respective ordinations were made are not ascertained, the only distinctions being—"auctoritate concilii ordinata"—"ex dudum ordinata"—"ab antiquo ordinata"—I therefore cannot point out with certainty such vicarages as were endowed prior to the year 1219; but rather think the greater part of those entered in this book were ordained before that time, because Bishop Wells, immediately upon succeeding to the see of Lincoln, set about carrying into execution the canon; and one made in the council at London in the year 1200, relative to the procuring of a better maintenance for the secular clergy. One endowment occurs in the first year of his presiding over the see.

I will give you a short account of this book, which I have in the autograph of my worthy and much-esteemed friend, the late Mr. Bradley; who describes it thus:

"The general title of the book is, Liber antiquus de Ordinationibus Vicariarum tempore Hugonis Wells; by which title it has been known for some hundred years; and therein are registered the endowments of some hundreds of vicarages between the years 1209 and 1235, when the bishop died; the diocese then extending over the counties of Lincoln, Leicester, Northampton, Rutland, Oxford, Bucks, Huntingdon, and Bedfordshire, with part of Hertfordshire. The endowments are arranged under their several counties." Mr. Bradley accounts for the necessity of the canon in 1200, for the better maintenance of the secular clergy, thus: "Before the year 1200, the superstitious Normans, as an atonement for their oppressions, exactions, plundering, dispossessing, and slaughter, of the Saxon and English noblemen and gentlemen, were persuaded by the priests of that age of the necessity of good works, and of founding and endowing religious houses, and bestowing benefactions to monks and friars, to pray for their souls, and the souls of their ancestors: for this purpose, and by this means, it was, that so many religious houses were erected; and parsonages or rectories, and perpetual advowsons, with the whole tithes and profits, were appropriated to abbeys and monasteries, reserving only a scanty allowance for the service of the cure by a secular priest, in some of them no more than what the monks thought proper to allow, and in others the cure was served by a friar of the monastery having episcopal ordination. In order to remedy this evil, and to make some provision for the secular clergy, at a general council held at London in the year 1200, a canon was enacted in these words: 'Decernimus ut in qualibet ecclesiâ monachorum, vel quorumlibet religiosorum, sui usus canonicè appropriatâ, vicarius instituatur provisione episcopi, honestam & sufficientem sustentationem de bonis ecclesiæ percepturus.' It was under the sanction of this canon that Bishop Wells took into consideration the state of the appropriate rectories in his diocese, and endowed so many vicarages, the vicars whereof being not otherwise sufficiently provided for before his time; and this accords for the words, auctoritate concilii, in the many endowments made by him during his incumbency on the bishoprick.

The

The late Dr. Ducarel took an account of the endowments in this book, which he considered as containing the endowments of all the vicarages in the diocese of Lincoln, when, in fact, it contains only a part of them; and I have reason to believe some clergymen were prevented from searching the office and finding their endowments, having been informed by Dr. Ducarel they were not recorded.

I hope to complete an accurate Repertory of the Endowments of all the Vicarages in this diocese; which will certainly be of use to the Clergy of it."

In the course of the correspondence on this subject, Dr. Pegge thus explained some terms, which occasionally occur in those endowments.

"Lætare is Midlent-Sunday *, when the Introit to the mass begins Lætare Jerusalem, as may be seen in the Missals. It is referred to in the Annals of Burton, p. 372, as an epoch, or day, well known, in these words, "Die dominicâ post dominicum quâ cantatur Lætare Jerusalem, in capitulo Westmonasteriensis, coram prælatis, &c." This was in 1256.—Procurations may be here intended; and masses, it seems, were to be on Midlent Sunday in this singular instance; or a pension, as, in cases of appropriating rectories to monasteries, archdeacons had a pension from the rectories oftentimes, in recompence of the loss of their rights.

There was a Legatum Principale for a vicar, at Wimeswold, in Leicestershire †, to receive 'omnes proventus illius ecclesiæ, exceptis decimis tam garbarum quam minoribus & principalibus legatis;' and of consequence the Legatum Secundum had a reference to that; and therefore, on translating this term, it may be expressed, I think, by saying, a mortuary of the second value, as mortuaries differed much in value, according to the rank and quality of the person deceased. It can never be supposed that two mortuaries were paid for one person, though there was such a thing, as you well know, as a corps present. I do not imagine that Legatum Secundum, a mere ecclesiastical expression, had any relation to the lord's heriot."

This produced from Mr. Fardell a farther elucidation of the same terms.

"The information you have given me respecting the term Lætare has enabled me to trace the origin of it more minutely than I had done before; and I am now certain it is not synonymous with Procurations, as I had first imagined; for, upon looking into the endowment of Erdete, in the county of Huntingdon, recorded in Bp. Sutton's Register-Book of Institutions, fol. 85. in which, after enumerating what particular species of tithe the vicar should receive, is added, "Onera autem ecclesiæ predictæ incumbencia sunt hæc, sustentatio vicarii & unius clerici, procuraciones archid', synodalia, & Lætare, quibus modò onerandus sit vicarius." This evidently shews that the Lætare is a payment of a different nature from Procurations; and, upon looking into Cowel's Interpreter, I find he thus explains the word:

'Lætare Jerusalem, the old duty of Quadragesimals, or the customary oblations made on Midlent-Sunday (when the proper hymn was Lætare Jerusalem, &c.) by the inhabitants within a diocese, to the mother cathedral church; which old custom of procession and oblation at that time was the beginning of the practice, which is still retained among us, of mothering, or going to visit parents on Midlent-Sunday.

† A paper of Dr. Pegge's, on the subject of Lætare Jerusalem, communicated to the Society of Antiquaries, was controverted by Sir H. C. Englefield, bart. and both suppressed together.

‡ Burton, p. 310.

These voluntary offerings on that Sunday were by degrees settled into an annual composition, or pecuniary payment, charged on the parochial priest, who was presumed to receive them from his people, and obliged to return them to the cathedral church.'

Under the word Quadragesimalia, Cowel says, 'It was the custom for people to visit their mother-church on Midlent Sunday, and to make their offerings at the high altar, as the like devotion was to be observed in Whitsun-week; but, as the processions and oblations at Whitsuntide were sometimes commuted into a rated payment of Pentecostals or Whitsun-farthings, so likewise the Lent devotion was changed into a customary rate, called Quadragesimalia and Denarii Quadragesimales, and sometimes Latare Jerusalem, because that hymn was sung on Midlent Sunday.'

This fully confirms your conjecture, and shews whence the payment derived its name and origin. And, in Bp. Gravesend's Roll of Institutions, anno 12. I find the endowment of Bilsby, where it is said, the impropiators shall bear all burthens incumbent upon the rectory, 'synodalibus & Latare Jerusalem duntaxat exceptis;" and to this day the impropiator there pays the Procurations, and the vicar the Synodals. This, I think, farther corroborates the conjecture, and evinces that the Latare was a payment, or customary offering, different from Procurations, but somewhat similar to Pentecostals, usually paid by the parish-priest to the mother-church of the diocese; and was probably paid to the archdeacon, for the use of the mother-church. At this time the archdeacon of Lincoln pays annually to the dean and chapter, at Whitsunday, 1*l.* 9*s.* 8*d.* under the denomination of Pentecostals. I presume, the archdeacon might also receive the Latare for the dean and chapter; and probably the two payments of Latare, or Pentecostals, being due nearly at the same time, might afterwards be considered as one, and accounted for under the name of Pentecostals only.

In looking into some old endowments, I meet with the term "principalis legato;" as, "vicar" in ecclia de Bramfeud habebit nomine ppet' vic' totum altaragium, cum principalis legato."—Lyndwood, de Decimis in cap. Quoniam propter, verb. Legati Principalis, says, "Istud dicitur mortuarium, & vocatur principale legatum, quia decedentes solebant, & in quibusdam paribus adhuc solent, optimum vel secundum optimum suum animal primo & ante cetera legata Deo & Ecclesie pro anima sua legare." And the same author, De Consuetudine, cap. Statutum, says, if the deceased had three or more animals, the best shall be given to him to whom it is due, and the second best be reserved for the church. As the customs of places varied very much with respect to the value of mortuaries, it seems not improbable that, when the custom prevailed for the minister to have the principal animal, or first choice of the deceased goods, it was called Principale Legatum; and when by custom he was to take the second best animal, or second choice of the goods of the deceased, it was called Secundum Legatum; and I think the text of the first abovementioned Legatine Constitution seems rather to favour this conjecture; for it says, 'In petitione autem principalis legati volumus quod consuetudo provincie, cum possessione Ecclesie, observetur.'—Your translation of the words Secundum Legatum, 'a mortuary of the second value,' I conceive to be the most proper that can be made use of.

I have

I have in my possession a parchment roll, containing the names of the mayors and bailiffs of the city of Lincoln, beginning in the 34th year of Edward III; and, when any very remarkable event has happened, the writer has noted it briefly; as, in the 11th year of Richard, he says, "This year the archbishop of York, with others, was impeached of trayson." The following words frequently occur, "Ludus de Pater noster hoc anno;" and there is also mentioned, "Ludus S̄ci Laurentii," "Ludus S̄cæ Sufanne," "Ludus de S̄co Jacobo," "Ludus Corpus X̄pi, &c."

I applied to a sensible Roman Catholic priest, for an explanation of the Ludus Pater Noster, Ludus Sc̄i Laurentii, &c.; but he could not give me any information upon the subject. May I request the favour of your explanation of these terms?

To which Dr. Pegge thus replied:

"It was customary in the Romish times to have processions, sports, sacred interludes, or plays, on various festivals, those particularly of the saints to whom the respective guilds or fraternities were sacred, and whom we may call their patron saints. Hence came the extraordinary celebrities of Corpus Christi * day, which is met with so often in authors prior to the Reformation. Thus, I conceive, there might be a gild of Pater Noster at Lincoln; of which the members in certain years, not every year, exhibited a grand and extraordinary show, for the entertainment of the people, and to induce them to become members of their society. Pater Nosters, I confess, are no Church holyday in those times. This, however, does not hinder but there might be a gild or fraternity of that denomination at Lincoln. This is certain, that a fraternity of the Rosary † occurs in Du Fresne, in v. and that is very near akin to it. This is the most probable explanation I can give of those passages. Indeed, if Pater Noster can signify the Chapel, or Rosary, as I suppose it may (see Du Fresne, v. Pater Noster); then Ludus de Pater Noster and Ludus Rosarii will be the same. But you will ask, how happens it that it is called by one name in one place, and by a different one in another ‡? I answer, because the passages were written in different times, and by different persons probably. Now these Pageants, as they were commonly called, consisted chiefly of representations of the legends or stories of the respective saints, as of St. Lawrence, St. Susanna, &c. But, as this was not the case with the Rosary, we know not now in what manner the gild celebrated this festival."

* Among the guilds at Leicester, that of Corpus Christi appears to have been the principal one. The others were called Trinity guild, St. George's guild, and St. Margaret's guild.

† The fraternity of the Rosary was instituted against the Saracen pirates, or against the Albigenses, by St. Dominic; for authors differ about it. Du Fresne in v. The prayer of the Rosary, invented by St. Dominic, was addressed to the Virg'n Mary, with meditations, containing a short recapitulation of the life of Christ. As no Ludus or pageant belonged to this fraternity, neither does the acceptance of Pater Noster, as synonymous with Rosarians, a string of beads, at all apply to it R. G.

‡ In France they had formerly an holyday, called, the Feast of Fools. "The priests and clerks went masqued to church, and, at their return from thence, went about the streets, and, mounted on stages, performing all the most impudent postures and buffoonries, with which watermen are wont to divert the foolish mob. That festival continued in France above 150 years, from the 12th to the 15th century. See Critical Dictionary, vol. III. p. 115.

Lettre

By the Q U E E N E.

A PROCLAMATION, with certayne Clauses of diuers Statutes, and other necessary additions, first published in the xix yeere * of the Queenes Maiesties reigne, and now reuiued by her Highnes commandement to be put in execution, upon the penalties in the same contained.

WH E R E A S the Queenes Maiestie hath by fundry former Proclamations notified vnto her louing Subiectes of this Realme the great inconuenience and mischief that hath growen to the same, by the great excesse of apparell in all states and degrees, but specially in the inferiour sort, contrarie to diuers Lawes and Statutes of the Realme, whereof notwithstanding there hath folowed no redresse, or very litle at al; whereby hath appeared no lesse contempt in the offendours, than lacke of ductifull care in those to whome the authoritie to see due execution of the lawes and orders prouided in that behalfe was committed; which thing might give her Maiestie iust cause (were it not that of her own gracious disposition she is naturally inclyned rather to clemencie then severitie, so long as there is any hope of redresse otherwayes) to commit the execution of the said lawes to such persons as would have proceeded therein with all extremitie. Notwithstanding, her Maiesty meaning to make some further tryall, before she have recourse to extreme remedies, and finding upon conference had with the Lordes and others of her pryue counsayle, for the redresse of so greuous and pernicious a fore in this commonwealth, the chief remedies for the same, to be example, and correction: Her Maiestie therefore for the first, whiche is example, thynketh it very meete and expedient, that the due execution in her Maiesties most honourable house, of such orders and articles as are annexed to this Proclamation, shoulde serue for a paterne throughout the whole Realme. and therefore her Maiestie hath already giuen, and by these presentes doth giue speciall charge to all those that beare office within the sayde houte, to see due obseruation of the same, which she trusteth wil be duely obserued. And further her Maiestie doth generally charge all Noblemen, of what estate or degree so euer they be, and all and every persons of her Priue Counsaile, all Archbishops and Bishops, and the rest of the Clergie, and all other persons, according to thei degrees, that they doo respectiuelly see the same speedily and duely executed in their private householde and families: and likewise doeth charge all Maiors and other head officers of Cities and Townes Corporate, the Chancellours of both the Universities, Gouvernours of Colledges, Readers, Aucientes & Benchers in euery the Innes of Court and Chauncerie, and generally all that haue any superioritie or gouernement ouer and upon any societie or felowship, and eche man in his owne householde for their children and seruantes, that they likewise doo cause the sayde orders to be straightly kept by all lawfull meanes that they can.

And for the seconde, which is correction, her Maiestie hath cause to thinke, that if there had bene that feueritie vsed by those to whom the ouersight of the due execution of the lawes prouided in that behalfe was committed, as to them in duetic appertained, both this sore had bene cured, and this Proclamation not needefull to haue bene published at this present.

For the better reformation whereof, her Maicsties will and pleasure is, and so doth straightly charge and commaunde, not onely al Justices of peace, and euerye of them, to make inquirie of the defaultes and breaking of the sayde orders, at euery their Quarter Sessions, and also the Justices of Assise in ther circuites, and to see such examples made, and due punishments extended upon the offendours, as by the Statutes of this Realme, with such qualifications as in this present Proclamation are conteyned, is provided in that behalfe: but also, that aswell the sayde Justices, as all Maiors, Shirifes, and other head officers, in Cities, Townes, and Boroughes, shall at any other time cause all such persons as shall be founde faultie, and transgressing agaynst this proclamation, after the last day of Marche next ensuyng, to be apprehended and brought before them; and finding them culpable, to commit them to pryson, there to remayne without bayle or mayneprise by the space of one moneth, unlesse the said parties so found culpable, or charged as culpable, shal enter into bonde to appeare before the Justices at the next Quarter Sessions of the peace, or of the Assises to be holden within the same Shyre, Citie, Borough, Towne Corporate, Fraunchise, or libertie, and there to be answerable for al such offences as shal be prouoed that they haue committed contrary to the true intent and meaning of this Proclamation.

And whereas it is appointed by the Statutes of this Realme, what every person shall or may weare in theyr apparell, according to the several rates of theyr lyuings in landes or fees, over and above all charges, and in some cases, of goodes, forasmuch as the lacke of the true and common understanding of every mans estate and liuing, in sort before expressed, hath been (as it seemeth) heretofore some principal cause of the lacke of the true execution of the sayde Statutes, and that it doeth manifestly appeare, that the same cause will also in time to come worke the like effect, for that there is no conuenient meanes to make the states of mens liuings and values, in such sort as is expressed in the seuerall statutes, to be commonly knowen, to such persons as ought to haue speciall care of the execution of the lawes and orders now prescribed: Her Maiestie, being desirous for the great benefite of al her Highnesse Subiectes, to haue these orders more duely executed than they haue beene, and finding that it is very harde for any mans state of liuing and value to be truly understood by other persons, if before prooue made they shoulde sense to take knowledge of any other values and rates than of such as be, or ought to be, for the greatest number expressed in the Subsidie booke, and so for lacke of the knowledge of the true rates and values mentioned in the saide statutes, the due execution of these orders may be defrauded; doeth therefore, for the auoyding of the inconuenience that may ensue, order and commaunde, that all persons, that by this Proclamation be appointed to have care of the execution of these orders, shall for the first calling, arreiting, committing, or any other pursuing of any person, for any offence committed against these orders, take knowledge of the rates and values, whereby such persons are assessed in the Subsidie bookes, and shall accordingly proceede, upon such knowledge of their values, to impeach such as will in their apparel offend to the contrary thereof. Neverthelessse, if any person shall finde hymself greued to be impeached therewith, and for the justifying of the wearing of his apparell, shall upon any arrest or inditement founde agaynst hym, auowe, and offer to prooue his luying to be such, and so great, as by the rates expressed in the statutes he may be warranted to weare the apparel for the which he is or shall be impeached; Her Maiesties meaning and pleasure is, that every such person shalbe admitted to make such prooffe, and thereupon shall receyue iudgement of condemnation, or acquittal, according to the rates expressed in the statutes, and not otherwise, without impeaching any officer, or other person, that did arrest, challenge, or proceed against him for such matter, though in the Subsidie book his values were not sufficient to warrant the values mentioned in the actes of Parliament: Not doubting, but that all such persons as, for the maintenance of their fond vanitie in apparell, will seeke to make their liuings to be knowen and prooued to be greater, than they were before in assessments of Subsidies taken to be, whereof her Maiestie had the losse, shalbe thought meet by such Commissioners as hereafter shall have authoritie to rate men upon the graut of any Subsidie, to be assessed in the Subsidie bookes, according to such values as themselves will auowe to have for defence of wearing of such kinde of apparell, and also will be content to be answerable to the charge of other necessarie services for the Realme, as causes shall require.

And because there are many persons, that percase shalbe founde in outward apparance more sumptuous in their apparell, than by common intendement the values of their possessions or goodes may warrant, and yet they are not assessed in any Subsidie booke, partly for that they are dwelling in such places of the Realme as are not chargeable to payments of Subsidies, or that percase they have escaped to be assessed, or otherwise not assessed, whereupon such persons may thinke to continue their disorder, without reformation by the maner here next before prescribed: Her Maiestie, for remedie hereof, commaundeth al maner of officers, that where they shall see any such persons in outward appearance so offendyng, and not having knowledge of their values by bookes of Subsidies, as afore is expressed, that neuerthelessse they shall stay such persons, and challenge them for such pretended offence, and deteyne them, as before by this Proclamation is limited, vntill they shall enter into bond, to make good prooffe that they can dispense so much in lande and fees, or be so much woorth in goodes, as by the lawes they be thereby warranted to weare such apparell: And that no publique officer shalbe at any tyme impeached for such stay and deteynor of any such person, so apparantly seeming to have offended.

Provided alwayes notwithstanding, that the sayd publique officer shall not at any time, under the colour of the execution of this present Proclamation, arrest any person or persons, whom either they themselves shalbe knowen and proved to malice, or els shalbe procured thereto by others, in respect of some particular quarell, upon payne of her Maiesties displeasure, and suche punishment as shall be thought meete by the Lordes and others of her Maiesties priuie Counsayle.

Given at our Palace of Westminster, the xii of Februarie, in the xxii yeere of our raigae.

Neceffarie Additions.

1. Inprimis, that all officers of her Maiesties housholde, and other her seruante in ordinarie, not conteyned within the rates limited and set forth by the Proclamation, shal observe such orders for their apparell, as shalbe from tyme to tyme set downe in wryting by the Lord Chamberlaine, the Master of the Horse, and other Maiesties principal officers of her housholde.
2. Item, if any person shal, in contempt and defrauding of this Proclamation deuise any newe kynde or fourme of apparell, and for garnishyng thereof, and thereby shalbe at greater charge than appertayneth to his degree and qualite, and is here aboue mentioned and entended: Then the sayde person to fusteyne the lyke punishment for his contempt, as if the sayde garment or garnishyng had been especially prohibited.

3. Item, that it shalbe lawfull for all Iustices of Peace, and Sheriffes of Shires, to wear Veluet or other Silkes in their Coates or Casockes, at such tymes as they shall attende upon the Queenes Maiesties person, or when they shall resort to places of Assises and Sessions, and other generall assemblies for the Queenes service.

4. Item, that no person under the degree of a Baron, a Knight of the Order, one of the Priuie Counsell, a Gentleman of her Maiesties priuie Chamber, or any other Gentleman ordinarily attendant upon her Maiesties person, shall weare any gardes of Veluet upon any one garment, exceedyng in the whole in Velvet the breadth of fixe inches.

5. Item, that it shalbe lawfull for the Lordes of Parliament, to give for their luyeries, Coates, or Cloakes, garded with Veluet or any other Silke, the gardes in the whole not exceedyng in breadth aboue foure inches.

6. Item, that it shalbe lawfull for the sonnes of those that may dispende xl l. by the yeere, being so rated at the last Subsidie, and for wardes whose land is xl l. by the yeere, to weare Sarcenet in the lynyng of their Hofe, Dublets, Hattes, or Cappes.

7. Item, that it shalbe lawful to weare in liueries, Silke Buttons, and Tassata, Grograyne, Veluet, or other Silke in the facing of Coates, as is commonly used.

8. Item, that all inferior persons, under the degrees aboue specified, not otherwyfe prouyded for, or limited by this Proclamation, shall confourme themselues in their apparell, in all thynges, according to the Statute made and prouided in anno 24 Henrici VIII. and in anno 1, 2, Philippi & Marie. Or els to fusteyne such punishment as by the sayd Statute is prouided.

9. Item, that all Apprentices at the lawe, and vtter barristers of the Innes of Court, and all Merchauntes of any societie, and al that keepe household in Citie or Towne *, and such as may dispend xxl. by the yeere, may weare a welt of Veluet in their Gownes, Jackets, or Coates.

That no person shalbe impeached for wearyng of any cloth made within the Realme, so long as he shal obserue the Order and Rates by this present Proclamation limited. But if any person shall willingly breake the tenor and effect of this Proclamation, then her Highnesse pleasure is, that every such offender shall haue the penalties of the lawes extended against them to the vttermost, without any toleration or fauour.

* I find the following entry, dated September 4, 26 Eliz. in a book belonging to the Corporation of Winchester: "Item, that no citizen of this citie, that hath been elected bayliff of the same, or to anie office above that degree, shall from henceforth were, in the strete within this citie, anie hose or stockings of white, grene, yellow, redde, blewe, weggett, or oringe color; neither shall were, at anie assemblie bourowghinote, or sessions, or at any sermon to be preached upon the fundaises or hollidaies, anie white, grene, yellowe, or red doublet, upon payne to forsayte and loose, for everie tyme wherin anie person or persons shall offend herein, iis. viid. to be levied by distresse upon everie offender or offenders, by the maiors fergant for the tyme being, to thuse of the poore people of the same citie."

A Commandment giuen by the Queenes most excellent Maiestie, the twelfth of Februarie, and xxii of her Highnesse Reigne, and declared by the Lord Chauncellor of Englande, and other the Lordes of her Maiesties most honourable Priuie Counsel in the Starre Chamber, concerning clokes and ruffes of excessiue length and depth.

IT is also to be understoode, that the saide xii day of Februarie, in this present yeere 1579, by the Queenes Maiesties expresse commaundement, it was declared and published by the Lord Chauncellor, and other the Lords of her Maiesties Councell in the Starre Chamber, that her Maiesties pleasure was, by aduise of her saide Councell, that from the one and twentieth of this moneth, no person shall vse or weare such excessiue long clokes, being in common sight monstrous, as nowe of late are begonne to be vsed, and before two yeeres past hath not bene used in this Realme. Neither also shoulde any person use or weare such great and excessiue ruffes in or about the vppermost part of their neckes, as had not been used before two yeeres past; but that all persons shoulde in modest and comely sort leave off such fonde disguised and monstrous manner of attyring themselves, as both was unupportable for charges, and undecent to be worne.

And this her Maieste commanded to be observed, upon paine of her high indignation, and the paines thereto due; and willed all officers to see to the reformation and redresse thereof, to the punishment of any offending in these cases, as persons wilfully disobeying or contemning her Maiesties commandement.

Geuen the xxii yeere of her Highnesse reigne, as is before expressed.

Expences of entertaining KING JAMES II. at COVENTRY, 1687.

(From the Corporation Books.)

ON the first of September, 1687, King James II. came to Coventry. The mayor* and aldermen, having notice of his intention, provided a cup of massy gold, weighing about 3 lbs. price 167*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* (another MS says 171*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*) Also, supposing he would choose to lodge at the White Friars, sent the constable to warn all householders between Spon-Bargates and Newgate to whiten their houses, &c.; and also, the inhabitants of Cross Cheaping, Baley-lane, and Hay-lane; also, they required all householders between Spon-Bargates and Newgate to sand their streets, and dress the fronts of their houses with green boughes, which was done. But, the day before, the harbinger came and declared his Majesty would lodge at the house of Richard Hopkins, esq. in High-street, near the drapery-door. The mayor ordered also the companies to meet that morning; and about noon the mayor and aldermen rode on horseback from St. Mary's Hall to Spon-Bars, being attended by the severall companies, with their streamers, and with drums, and with all manner of music that could be got; besides which, about 200 citizens, most Dissenters, went to meet his Majesty as far as Meriden, where his Majesty shewed them great respect. Also, the deputy-lieutenant met his Majesty at Guilford Ford, where Sir Thomas Norton made an excellent speech. About five at night his Majesty came to Spon-Bars, where the mayor presented the gold cup; and the steward made, or read, a speech to his Majesty, and the mayor delivered to the King the sword; after which the mayor and aldermen rode before his Majesty, the mayor carrying the sword; the senior alderman, Nathaniel Harriman, the cap of maintenance; alderman Webster, the great mace; and the next in seniority, the other mace; and so rode before his Majesty to his lodgings; the companies standing on both sides Spon-street till his Majesty was passed, and then followed into the city. Next morning, the mayor and aldermen attended his Majesty from his lodgings to the Cross, and thence through Trinity church unto St. Michael's, where he touched about 300 persons for the evil; then had a stately breakfast and banquet at St. Mary's Hall at the city's charge, and was attended thence to his lodgings, where he took horse, being attended by the mayor and aldermen on horseback as far as Bagginton Bridge, the severall companies, with their streamers, standing on both sides Much Park-street at his Majesty's passing by. Most of the nobility and gentry of the county waited on the King when at Coventry; and such numbers of country people flocked in, that standings at the windows of front rooms let at 12*d.* each.

CEREMONIALS OF VARIOUS FUNERALS.

The order of the Funerall of Edward Earle of Darby, who died at Latham Hall, on Friday the xxiiiiith of October, about xii of the clocke, and was buried at Ormskirke, on Thursday the 4th of December following, Anno Domini 1572.

First, after his departure his body was well seared, wrapt in lead, and chested; then the chappell, the house, with the two courts, was hanged with blacke cloath, and garnished with escutcheons of his armes.

Upon Saturday before the funerall, the body was brought into the chappell, where it was covered with a paule of blacke velvet, garnished with escutcheons of his armes, and thereon was sett his coate of armes, hearme, and creaste, fworde, and targett, and aboute him weare placed the stander, great banner, and six banerolls.

And on the Sondaye in the morning, before the sermon, the Earle of Darby his sonne being present, with a greate number of esquires and gentlemen, and the three chiefe officers, viz. the steward, threasurer, and controuler, standing about the body with white staves in their handes; Clarenceux King of Armes, with his riche coate on his backe, published this thanksgiving and stile of the defunct, in forme following :

“All honour, laude, and prayse, to Almighty God, who through his deere mercy hath taken out of this transitory life to his eternall joy and blisse, the Right Honourable Edward Earle of Darby, Lord Stanley, Straunge, and of Man, one of the Queene’s Majestie’s most Honourable Privie Counsell, and knight and companion of the most noble order of the Garter.”

And on Wenfday, the day before the funerall, at the beginning of evening prayer, the same was published by Norroy King of Armes.

The order and manner of the hearse wherin the body lay during the service.

At Ormskirk, two myles from Latham, was a stately hearse erected, of 5 principalls, 13 foote of length and 9 foote of breadth, 21 foote high, dubble rayled, all garnished, in this order as followeth.

First, the topp part and the rayles covered with blacke cloath, the valence and the principalls covered with blacke velvet; to the valence a fringe of silke.

The majesty being of taffita lyned with buckram, had thereon, curiously wrought in gould and silver, an hatchment of his armes, with his hearme, creaste, supporters, and word; and fowre other buckram escutcheons in mettle, and six greate buriall past escutcheons at the fowre corners, and the uppermoste topp; the valence sett forth with small escutcheons of his armes on buckram, in mettall within the garter. The rayles and posts also garnished with escutcheons of royall paper in mettle.

The which hearse was placed betwene the quire and the body of the church. The church was also hanged with black cloath, escutcheons also being sett thereon, not only of his owne armes within the garter, but also impaled with the three countesses his wives: and this being finished by Wednesdaye at night before the buriall, the order and proceeding on Thursday, being the appoynted day of the funerall, was in manner following.
